DEFENDS VETOING OF EDUCATIONAL AND STATE INSTITUTION APPROPRIATIONS.

SCORES LEGISLATORS

SAYS PLAYED POLITICS IN ASKING FOR INCREASE.

EDITORS DID NOT UNDERSTAND

Criticized Without Having Known All Facts Which Caused Use of Blue Pencil.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—Governor Colquitt today, in two long articles addressed to the editors of the Fort Worth Star Telegram and the Dallas News, explained his reasons for the veto of the educational and state institutions section of the appropriation bills. In these articles he shows conclusively that although he was censured severely for cutting down the amounts allowed by the Thirty-Third legislature for the support and maintenance of the state institutions, that his administration had allowed appropriations in greater amounts than any previous administration and that not the smallest appropriation made during the Colquitt administration was smaller than the largest appropriation allowed by previous governors. This was for all state institutions.

He further scores the legislators who played politics solely during the session, that they cared not for the demands of the state institutions as the facts and figures of his messages showed, but rather cared to extend them in order to create popular opinion in their own favor.

His reason for vetoing the university second year was explained by the statement that he had told the university authorities that he would allow as much as had been allowed the previous year for both years, but rather than take this the authorities had proceeded to boost the amounts $100,000 and consequently he had vetoed the second-year entirely. He scored the members of the appropriation committee and the editors of those papers who had taken occasion to criticize him because of his action without their having known the facts of the case and the reasons for his use of the blue pencil. The present pro rate for Texas universities far exceeds those of any state in the union and then he is criticized for an endeavor to hold them to a reasonable rate.

Lieutenant Governor Mayes arrived this afternoon and will enter the office as acting governor on Monday. The governor will leave for Panama tomorrow.

There are many counties which have not yet reported on the canvass of votes for the constitutional amendment. The secretary of state will confer with the attorneys general relating to instituting steps for prosecuting these offenders.

MRS. MATTHEWS ACQUITTED

Oklahoma Woman Was Charged with Aiding Negro to Murder Her Husband.

Guthrie, Okla., Sept. 20.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Lawrence Matthews, charged with helping James Chapman, a negro farm hand, to murder her husband, Lawrence Matthews, on their farm near Stillwater, Okla., in December, 1908, brought in a verdict Saturday afternoon acquitting her of the charge. The negro is being held for a 25-year sentence for the crime. He made numerous confessions implicating Mrs. Matthews. The state never clearly proved that Matthews was murdered. The woman declared Matthews went to the barn to feed some fighting mules and was kicked to death.

Mayor of Austin.
Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—Lieutenant Governor Will H. Mayes arrived in the capital today and was in consultation with Governor Colquitt during the morning. He will take charge of the executive office when the governor leaves for Panama.

Colquitt Invited.
Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—Governor Colquitt received an invitation this morning to address the people of Oklahoma at the Oklahoma State fair on October 1. Owing to the fact that he will be in Panama at that time, he was forced to tender his regrets.

FOUR INDIANA WARRANTS HONORED

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—Governor Colquitt today honored four executive warrants issued by the governor of Indiana for the return to that state of William H. Webb, Harry Haynes, Nicholas W. Muller and Edward J. Towner, wanted in connection with alleged irregularities in the affairs of the Columbia Casualty company of Lafayette, Ind. Not only that, but the governor offered rewards of $250 each for Messrs. Haynes and Towner, who did not appear at today's hearing. He declared them fugitives from justice in his proclamation, hanging up the reward.

Messrs. Muller and Webb were present at the hearing, which was held in the executive office, and were represented by counsel. After the hearing they were taken into custody by Sheriff Geo. Matthews of Travis county

HOLDS SOCIAL CLUBS MUST PAY

Where Pool Tables Are Operated Occupation Tax Is Collectible.

Austin, Sept. 20.—Another blow to social clubs was struck today with the announcement by the attorney general's department that clubs operating pool and billiard tables should be levied upon for the occupation taxes. In many clubs the tables are not operated for profit and no charge is made. But the department declares that all tables should be taxed, inasmuch as pool playing does not come under the provisions of the construction allowing clubs to be organized for pursuit of "innocent sports."

A test case will be made and the courts will be asked to determine whether such taxes should be paid by the clubs. Assistant Attorney General Keeling advised the county attorney of Travis county that if social clubs have the right to operate pool and billiard tables, they are taxable.

Attorney J. W. Maxwell of Austin is instituting proceedings to have the tables taxed.

POOL HALLS MUST CLOSE

Attorney General's Department Rules Cannot Be Operated After Election Decides Against.

Austin, Sept. 20.—The attorney general's department rendered an opinion to authorities at Mount Vernon, Tex., to the effect that pool halls at that place will have to close their places of business after an election is had resulting in favor of prohibiting the operation of such halls and in accordance with the law, the result of said election being declared and published, that such law becomes effective when the paper containing the last publication is mailed in the postoffice, and that it will be illegal thereafter for the pool halls to operate.

INSTITUTION IS OVERCROWDED

Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Austin Is Unable to Accommodate Applicants.

Austin, Sept. 20.—Of the nine hundred applications for entrance to the state institution for deaf and dumb, only four hundred and twenty-five can be accommodated, according to a statement made today by Superintendent Urbankie, and the institution will be crowded to accommodate this number. Governor Colquitt cut the appropriation of the special session of the legislature approximately $60,000. Of this amount $15,000 was for a new girls' dormitory and the remainder for other improvements. The school opens Wednesday.

COUNTY OFFICERS ON BOND

Sheriff and Deputies Accused of Police, and Members of Police Force Given Hearing.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 20.—Sheriff C. T. Ryan and Deputy Joe Longoria, jailed with W. C. Price, Bert Mitchell, Bert Jennings and Harry Wallace, all of whom are charged with the killing of Police Lieutenant Pugh Thursday night, were released today after a preliminary hearing on bond of $1,000 each. The six city policemen charged as a result of the same occurrence with intent to murder members of the sheriff's department, were released under appearance bond of $1,200 each.

Jennings Released.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 20.—Joe Jennings, the Brownsville and San Antonio cattleman who was arrested in Matamoros yesterday by the constitutionalists, was released late this afternoon. He gave an appearance bond of $400 and is to return to Matamoros some day next week for the hearing.

FOUR INDIANA WARRANTS HONORED

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—Governor Colquitt today honored four executive warrants issued by the governor of Indiana for the return to that state of William H. Webb, Harry Haynes, Nicholas W. Muller and Edward J. Towner, wanted in connection with alleged irregularities in the affairs of the Columbia Casualty company of Lafayette, Ind. Not only that, but the governor offered rewards of $250 each for Messrs. Haynes and Towner, who did not appear at today's hearing. He declared them fugitives from justice in his proclamation, hanging up the reward.

Brookline, Mass., Sept. 20.—Another name was added to America's list of victors in international sport here today when Francis Ouimet, a youthful amateur, won the nineteenth open championship tournament of the United States golf association.

The winning of this national title was lifted to an international plane, due to the sensational circumstances of the play and the calibre of the entrants whom Ouimet defeated during his four days' march to victory. Safely berthed in his qualifying round, the boy trailed the leaders in the first half of the championship round, tied with Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the famous English professionals, for first places in final round, then completely outplayed them today in the eighteen hole extra round which was necessary to decide the 1913 championship.

Wins With 72.
Ouimet won with a score of 72 strokes, two under par for one of the hardest courses in the country. Vardon finished five strokes behind Ouimet with 77; Ray took third place with 78.

It was not the actual defeat of this famous pair of golfers so much as the manner of that defeat that entitles Ouimet's name to rank with that of Maurice E. McClellan, champion in tennis, and Harry Payne Whitney, leader in polo. Ouimet, a tall slender youth just past his teens, not only outplayed and outwitted Vardon and Ray in the play off, but succeeded in battling his way through the largest and most remarkable field of entrants that ever played for an American title.

When Ouimet holed his final stroke the 200 persons who had tramped through the heavy mist and dripping grass behind the trio of players for almost three hours, realized what the victory meant to American golf and the elation which followed was pardonable under the circumstances.

Wins Without Fluke.
The pride in the Young American's victory was all the more justified because he had won without fluke of nerve or flaw in his play, responding in perfect form to a test of nerve, stamina and a knowledge of golf never before required of a player in a national tournament.

On the other hand his veteran opponents, tried players of many a hard match in various parts of the world, broke under the strain, leaving Ouimet to finish as coolly as he had started.

The very fact that Vardon and Ray could not hold up under the stress of the struggle shows the titanic form and strain of the final round. Vardon has five times won the English championship and in 1909 won the American open tournament at Wheaton, Ill., defeating J. H. Taylor, England's greatest golfer and present champion.

Before the tournament began Vardon and Ray were two to one favorites. Even after Ouimet had tied or beaten them in his honorific round, the Englishmen would defeat him and even money on Ray or Vardon against Ouimet alone.

The scenes of jubilation on the home greens after the game was won, were but natural expressions of pride and pleasure at Ouimet's success in retaining a championship for America which was considered earlier in the week destined to cross the Atlantic.

Ouimet was hoisted to the shoulders of those nearest him, while cheer after cheer rang out in his honor. Excited women tore bunches of flowers from their bodices and hurled them at the youthful winner; hundreds of men strove to pat him on the back or shake his hand.

His Mother Greets Him.
Among those who struggled to Ouimet's side was a little, plainly dressed woman whose hair was streaked with gray. She was buffeted first one way and then another in the crush, but persevering, stood almost directly under the champion as the throngs whirled and eddied about. With shining eyes she looked up and called the one word "Francis."

Ouimet glanced down and catching sight of her, little woman, before he tore his hands from those of his admirers and reaching down grasped her uplifted hands. What she said was lost in the cheering, but those near heard young Ouimet say:

"Thank you, mother, I'll be home soon."

The crowd, most of them unconscious of the incident, swept Ouimet onward while his mother slipped to the outskirts and hurried away to her home just across the street.

Ray and Vardon, whose fight for the open championship brought out the possibilities of Ouimet as a golfer, were not forgotten in the celebration of victory. Each Englishman was given a three times three before the stars started for the dressing quarters changed to dry clothing for the presentation of the medals and other prizes. During this ceremony in which Secretary John Reid, Jr., acted as master of ceremonies, both Ray and Vardon took the opportunity to praise Ouimet as a sportsman and golfer.

Englishmen Praise.
Ray said that Ouimet had played the best golf during the four days' struggle that he had ever seen in America and that it had been an honor to play with him and no dishonor to lose to him.

Vardon brought cheers when he frankly stated that they had never had a chance to win with Ouimet during the play off because the lad played better golf and never gave them an opening. He congratulated Ouimet and America on the victory.

HURLED TO DEATH ON DARK ROAD

ALEXANDER M'KECHNIE, AGED 78, KILLED IN COLLISION LAST NIGHT.

ACCOUNTS OF TRAGEDY VARY

Stygian Shadows Enveloped Scene of Accident, Hiding Vehicle That Hit the Buggy.

The comradeship of a life-time was tragically ended last night on a dark stretch of the Corsicana road, when Alexander McKechnie was accidentally killed by the side of the son with whom he had "batched it" for the past thirty-two years.

With his son, John, he was driving home in a buggy, when they collided in the darkness with another vehicle. He was thrown forward and killed by striking his forehead on the shafts. This was the account of the accident given by Q. M. Garcia, who was standing in the back of the buggy.

Jess Abbott, superintendent of the poor farm, near where the two McKechnies lived, says that it was the old man's custom every morning to drive his son to work in town and return for him in the afternoon.

The Drive to Death.

It was about 8 o'clock last night when the two started on the drive homeward, which was to end fatally. Garcia was accompanying them to stay over Sunday. When they had passed a few hundred yards beyond the poor farm a vehicle collided with them, throwing Garcia and John McKechnie to the ground, and the older man forward upon the shafts, killing him instantly. He was carried back to the residence of Jess Abbott, and removed later to the John Fall Undertaking establishment.

Conflicting Accounts.
John McKechnie said that the vehicle with which he collided was an automobile. Garcia thinks it was a buggy. He was stooping over to examine some bundles in the back of the buggy when the collision occurred, but when he picked himself up out of the dirt he saw two buggies nearby and heard women's voices. Neither he nor John McKechnie, in the excitement of the moment thought of anything but stopping their horses and helping the older man. They did not note the departure of the other vehicle.

An inquest will be held today by Justice of the Peace E. M. Richey. Alexander McKechnie was 78 years old and had lived in this county for thirty-two years. He was well known as a contractor, but for the past few years had retired from active work at that business and lived on the farm owned by himself and son near the poor farm. He leaves surviving him a son, Robert McKechnie of Corpus Christi, Mrs. John Shields of St. Louis, and another son living in St. Louis whose name could not be learned last night, in addition to the son, John McKechnie, a contractor, of this city.

The Weather

Under the influence of high winds prevailing yesterday, Waco can look for colder weather early this morning, according to the reading of the meteorological signs by Dr. I. Block, local volunteer observer. He adds that a moderation of the temperature should follow during the day or tonight, with clear skies. A high pressure was centered over Montana, with freezing weather yesterday, spreading southward into Texas, moderating as it traveled towards this state.

Local Temperatures.
Range of temperatures yesterday was as follows: Maximum 76, minimum 68, barometer 30.12, humidity 45; total wind passage 218 miles, the highest velocity of the wind coming between 9 and 10 a. m., when 14 miles was recorded.

THE UNIVERSITY IS UNIMPEDED SULZER WILL FIGHT TO END

BOARD OF REGENTS DECLARES ALL WORK WILL BE DONE.

LOCHRIDGE BUSINESS MANAGER NO CONCESSIONS TO GLYNN

Austin Man Will Have Supervision of Construction and Repair of Buildings and Other Matters.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—That the University of Texas will go forward unimpeded and with full efficiency, was the statement made by members of the board of regents, following the special meeting of the board today, at which I. P. Lochridge of Austin was elected as the first business manager of the institution and various vacation appointments to the faculty were confirmed.

Not only was the faculty not decreased, but all the vacation appointments made by the president—made in contemplation of increased attendance—were ratified. These numbered about forty. They included a full professor, three associate professors, one adjunct professor, seventeen instructors and others.

"There will be no reduction of efficiency, either this year or next," said Chairman Ousley tonight, "and all comes will be cared for."

To Carry Out Program.
When asked if this program can be carried out with the funds available, Mr. Ousley replied that it will be done "with the funds which the regents will be able to provide."

He added that the regents had not fully mapped out the plans with reference to university finances, but that the subject would receive further consideration at a meeting to be held in October.

Mr. Ousley's statement was corroborated by President H. E. Mezes, who declared that the plans with a few days ago would stand unmodified.

The regents present at today's meeting were Clarence Ousley of Fort Worth, William P. Burges of El Paso, George W. Littlefield of Austin, Dr. A. W. Fly of Galveston, J. W. Graham of Austin, Dr. Mezes and Secretary E. J. Matthews, also attended the meeting.

Governor O. B. Colquitt did not appear before the board. The chairman saw the governor and reported to his colleagues that the executive had nothing to communicate beyond what was contained in his veto messages and certain communications given to the press.

The board having been increased to nine members in accordance with the law, the members drew for terms, with the following result: Two years, Ousley, Graham, Stark; four years, Burges, Sanger, six years, Cook, Littlefield, Fly. Mr. Graham was appointed only Friday to succeed Senator Joseph Faust of New Braunfels, resigned.

Committees Appointed.
The chairman announced the following committee appointments: Auditing committee, Cook, chairman; Graham, committee on buildings and grounds, Graham, chairman; Littlefield, Fly, committee on complaints and grievances, Sanger, chairman; Burges, Hogg.

Executive committee, Ousley, chairman; Cook, chairman; Graham, Stark, chairman; Cook, Littlefield, Land committee, Littlefield, chairman; Hogg, Graham, legislative committee, Burges, chairman; Littlefield, Hogg, committee on medical department, Fly, chairman; Stark, Hogg.

The position of business manager, filled by the appointment of I. P. Lochridge, a well known business man of this city, is expected to be an important one.

SLAVERY FOUND IN PHILIPPINES

PHIPPS' REPORT BACKS UP CHARGES OF DEAN WORCESTER.

NAMES ARE SENT IN

INVESTIGATION IS COMPLETE. SHOWS BARTER AND SALE.

IS COMMON IN HILL TRIBES

Heads of Families Sell Their Sons and Daughters for $50 to $100 a Head.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Secretary Garrison had before him today a Philippine slavery report by W. H. Phipps, auditor for the islands, practically backing up the startling charges of Dean Worcester. It cites details of many cases of boys and girls being "sold into slavery at prices ranging from $50 to $100. Heads of savage families sell their daughters and regard the practice as a right."

I have no hesitancy in saying that I think the charges of Secretary Worcester that slavery exists in the Philippines are sustained," says Mr. Phipps. The Phipps report is based upon investigations conducted under the direction of the Philippine auditor by district auditors. It was accompanied by a list of names of 67 persons held as slaves, some being held outright and some under the so-called "debt" system the failure of which is shown by the fact that some of the slaves so held are more than sixty years old and have been held by their present owners since birth.

Many Forms.
"The almost universal report made to me by each person who has been asked to investigate," wrote Mr. Phipps, "was that slavery in some form existed to his personal knowledge; with a number it is a form of peonage which is the most extensive form of slavery practiced here; with many others it will be noted it is the barter and sale of human beings by one person to another who holds such person in absolute subjugation and they perform duties and labor for him without compensation further than scanty clothing and in many instances indifferent food."

All of the district auditors who assisted Mr. Phipps were obliged to promise that they perform duties and labor for him without compensation further than scanty clothing and in many instances indifferent food."

One investigator made this report: "My observation has been that the largest percentage of real slavery exists in those provinces adjacent to or in parts inhabited by hill tribes or so-called non-Christians. I myself have known of several instances where children have been purchased from the hill tribes and believe that a house canvass of the servants of the well-to-do class of Filipinos and a proper inquiry into their status will show that a large number of them are actually owned, and being acquired by purchase from the hill tribes and old men and women who have been the property of some family since childhood."

Traffic in Girls.
"There is a considerable traffic in girls. I personally have had a number of offers of this kind and it is a generally known fact that a large percentage of Chinese who have Filipino wives actually bought them at a stipulated price. A recent instance in which I was offered a boy and girl for the small amount of 20 pesos, 30 pesos and 40 pesos, was in August of last year at Cebu. Peonage exists in all parts of the island and in many instances amounts to slavery."

Another district auditor said he was reliably informed every Negrito servant in his district was originally enslaved. "They are generally bought," wrote this investigator, "when quite young, and kept as slaves until they are some old enough to shift for themselves."

The report said the commonest explanation of the presence of the alleged slaves in families is that the parents died and the family adopted the orphan children.

ROADS PROCLAMATION OF GOVERNOR

Austin, Sept. 20.—The governor issued the following proclamation today: "Whereas, an adequate system of improved public roads is one of the great needs of our state and good roads lend powerful aid to everything good in modern life, while bad roads form an obstacle in the path of progress. Recognizing this fact, the people of Texas have taken hold of this problem with tremendous interest, and it is now one of the foremost economic questions confronting our people, and much good work has been done years in the way of improving our public highways.

"Now, therefore, realizing the necessity for a system of work along this

Gaynor's Body Lies in State Private Services at Home

New York, Sept. 20.—In the rotunda of the city hall on the scene of his years of labor for the municipality whose executive he was, the body of Wm. J. Gaynor lies in state tonight, his coffin draped in the white silken folds of the mayor's official flag and watched over by a guard of honor of the city's police and firemen.

The mayor's body, landed here yesterday from the liner Lusitania and taken to his late home in Brooklyn, where private funeral services were held this afternoon, was brought this evening through a drizzling rain to the city hall, from the steps of which less than three weeks ago he accepted a people's nomination for re-election to the mayoralty.

Thousands gathered on that occasion to attest their confidence in his worth to the city as man and mayor. Tens of thousands crowded about the edifice and the approaches tonight and stood mute, heads bowed and bowed, paying silent tribute as his body was borne into the building.

Tomorrow at 4 o'clock the doors of the city hall will be opened and from that hour until sunset or later two separate lines of citizens will have opportunity to pass from the plaza in front of the building past the coffin on its bier in the somberly draped rotunda and on out through the north entrance after gazing on the dead mayor's features. On Monday the public funeral will be held in Old Trinity church.

Private Services.

The private services in the Gaynor home were held two hours before the body was brought to Manhattan. The little gathering there included only immediate members of the family and a few close friends. The service, brief and simple, was read by the Rev. Frank W. Page of Culpeper, Va., formerly pastor of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church in Brooklyn, of which Mayor Gaynor was a communicant.

The clergyman's tribute was personal and intimate. No one knew the man Gaynor better than the speaker himself, said Dr. Page, and his eulogy of the late mayor's character and good deeds was a heartfelt message of consolation to the mourning family and friends.

The city had lost its best servant when Mayor Gaynor died. Dr. Page concluded, and later his people probably would realize this and do in his memory what the people of Cleveland had done in Tom Johnson's—erect a monument to him.

Promptly at 4 o'clock 200 mounted policemen stood at attention outside as the coffin containing the body of the mayor was carried from the house by firemen and policemen and placed in the hearse, while departmental heads and members of the board of estimate, acting as escort, stood with bared heads. The funeral cortege then made its slow way across the Brooklyn bridge.

At least 50,000 persons stood uncovered in the drizzling rain as the solemn procession, headed by mounted police, marched to the city hall. Eight automobiles, following the hearse, carried members of the board of estimate, Mayor Arthur Kline, Robert Adams, the late mayor's secretary; R. A. Smith, commissioner of docks and ferries, and Police Commissioner Waldo. No member of the mayor's family accompanied the body.

During the day vehicles drove up to the Gaynor home with floral offerings and it was necessary to employ two automobiles to carry the flowers when the procession started. Conspicuous among the tributes was a wreath of white roses, four feet in diameter, sent by Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

RARE COLLECTION OF CURIOS

Gathered from All Parts of World for the Cotton Palace.

The curio and historic department of the Cotton Palace promises to be one of the most successful features of the exposition, this year, according to the report of the committee in charge. Collection of the historic relics was already begun and letters are being sent out over the state to those interested in the work.

Mrs. John F. Marshall, who is head of the department, stated yesterday that there would be prizes offered for the following articles:

Articles of greatest historic interest—First, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third, twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth, twenty-seventh, twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, thirtieth, thirty-first, thirty-second, thirty-third, thirty-fourth, thirty-fifth, thirty-sixth, thirty-seventh, thirty-eighth, thirty-ninth, fortieth, forty-first, forty-second, forty-third, forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, forty-eighth, forty-ninth, fiftieth, fifty-first, fifty-second, fifty-third, fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-sixth, fifty-seventh, fifty-eighth, fifty-ninth, sixtieth, sixty-first, sixty-second, sixty-third, sixty-fourth, sixty-fifth, sixty-sixth, sixty-seventh, sixty-eighth, sixty-ninth, seventieth, seventy-first, seventy-second, seventy-third, seventy-fourth, seventy-fifth, seventy-sixth, seventy-seventh, seventy-eighth, seventy-ninth, eightieth, eighty-first, eighty-second, eighty-third, eighty-fourth, eighty-fifth, eighty-sixth, eighty-seventh, eighty-eighth, eighty-ninth, ninetieth, ninety-first, ninety-second, ninety-third, ninety-fourth, ninety-fifth, ninety-sixth, ninety-seventh, ninety-eighth, ninety-ninth, one hundredth.

To Repair Rivadavia.

Boston, Sept. 20.—The official trial trips of the New Argentine super-dreadnaught Rivadavia have been suspended for a month until repairs can be made to the boilers of the vessel's starboard turbine.

The Rivadavia is to return to the yards of her builders, the Forester Shipbuilding Corporation, next Saturday to undergo these repairs which will reduce the steam pressure developed by the turbines while the turbines are operating at top speed. This excessive pressure has caused the turbine buckets to become overheated and to curl.

Today the Rivadavia tested her big 14-inch guns.

SITUATION NOW IS CHANGING

MEXICO'S POLITICS ASSUME A NEW ASPECT—GAMBOA IS MENTIONED.

LIBERAL PARTY DEFIES HUERTA

Means Fight Against Catholic Influence in Governmental Affairs. Diaz Not Recalled.

Mexico City, Sept. 20.—Political affairs in Mexico have undergone a marked change in the last few days. The liberal party's defiance of President Huerta in the chamber of deputies yesterday, growing out of opposition to the appointment of Eduardo Tamariz, one of the leaders of the Catholic party, as minister of public instruction, appears to have opened the fight squarely on the issue of the Catholic party influence in governmental affairs, with the liberals and affiliated elements in congress lined up against it. Rumors regarding the action of President Huerta is likely to take, went so far today as to deal with the possibility of his dissolving congress to rid himself of opposition from that source and backing Frederico Gamboa, the foreign minister, as his choice for the presidency in the coming elections. Other rumors were that General Huerta would bring about a postponement of the elections pending the pacification of the country and would either remain in the presidency or retire in favor of Minister Gamboa.

No one rumors appears to have better foundation than another. President Huerta declared himself on the subject of the possible dissolution of congress, saying he has no intention of going to that extremity.

Diaz Not Recalled. While it was authorized today a few days ago that General Huerta had determined to recall General Felix Diaz, pursuant to a settled plan of action, it is now said that he has abandoned that course. So far as can be ascertained he has not yet recalled Diaz.

In the fact of overwhelming odds against him in the chamber of deputies, General Huerta said today he would consider the withdrawal of the appointment of Tamariz or might possibly shift him to some other ministry where there would be less antagonism.

To Avenge Deaths. San Antonio, Sept. 20.—A committee of four representatives of the Junta Constitucionalista de San Antonio, Texas, met last night and immediately following the exercises at a conference with S. M. Robertson, brother of the San Antonio man murdered in Mexico and more than a year ago.

Robertson to aid in avenging the death of his brother and that of any other innocent Americans killed in Mexico.

Refuse Carranza Admittance. El Paso, Sept. 20.—Today a request from General Venustiano Carranza, constitutional leader, to pass through the United States on the way from Nogales, Sonora, to Ciudad Portillo Diaz to rejoin his command. The rebel leader was referred to the state department at Washington. Carranza has been in Sonora in conference with constitutionalist chiefs.

Hernandez, former secretary of state of Chihuahua, secretary of the Maderista junta here and now one of Maximino Castillo's chiefs, was arrested today by the United States army and held at Fort Bliss on the charge of violating the neutrality law. Hernandez family has been living in El Paso and Hernandez crossed the border several days ago, announcing he was through with revolutions.

Says Order Blunder. Los Angeles, Sept. 20.—An appeal to President Wilson to investigate the circumstances under which American settlers in the Yaqui valley in Sonora left their homes and came to the United States was telegraphed from Los Angeles today by Charles O'Brien.

In the message Mr. O'Brien said he was appearing directly to the president because he had received no response, except through news dispatches, to a request he had made to the state department that the settlers be returned to their Sonora homes at the expense of the United States or that their property in Mexico be protected by this nation.

Mr. O'Brien wrote of "the apparently deplorable blunder" which caused 139 refugees who recently arrived here on the U. S. S. Buffalo to "abandon their homes and their property" without necessity for such action.

He declared Consul General Robert Vail of Guaymas and Lieutenant R. L. Henry virtually had ordered the settlers to leave on forty-eight hours' notice and had failed to acquaint them with the contents of President Wilson's message regarding the quitting of Mexico by Americans.

He added that telegraphic advices to him received from Sonora stated all was quiet there and Yaqui Indians were causing no trouble.

Mormons Leave. Douglas, Ariz., Sept. 20.—An exodus of Mormons from Colonia, Morales, Oaxaca and Colonia San Jose, Mexico, has begun.

Chief C. H. Copeland arrived here today with his family and reported that other Mormon families were on their way to the border.

Mr. Copeland said President Wilson's message was responsible for the exodus, adding however, that conditions in the colonies in Sonora were anything but satisfactory.

HIS IDENTITY IS A MYSTERY. Body of Switch Engine Victim Not Clyde Gregory's, It Is Now Believed.

All efforts on the part of Chief of Police Hollis Barron to locate relatives of Clyde Gregory in and around Waco have been of no avail. Young Gregory was killed by a switch engine in the railroad yards at Shawnee, Okla., September 8. It was believed by Shawnee officials that the boy's parents resided near Waco. Chief Barron received a letter asking that he interest himself in locating the lad's relatives.

He pursued his investigation for several days with no result. Yesterday he sent a letter to Fleming-Brown Undertaking establishment at Shawnee, which company holds the boy's body, stating that he had not been successful in finding the parents of Gregory.

On a False Trail. In the letter addressed to Chief Barron it was stated that Loving Gregory, who resided seven miles west of Waco, was Clyde Gregory's father.

Mass of Information Is Ready for Governor Felker

Concord, N. H., Sept. 20.—A mass of information bearing upon extradition precedents in New Hampshire lay before counsel for Harry K. Thaw tonight ready for presentation before Governor Felker Tuesday in an effort to defeat the attempt to have the slayer of Stanford White returned to Matteawan asylum. The order of the procedure of the defense will be decided Monday. It had been hoped to submit an outline of the plans to Thaw's mother and sister, Mrs. Geo. Lauder Carnegie, today, but no members of the family except Harry are here.

There was considerable uncertainty tonight as to whether Mrs. Thaw would be able to make the trip here before the extradition hearing Tuesday. She is in charge of a physician and a trained nurse and it is believed the excitement so to attend the proceedings next week may make it inadvisable for her to come to Concord.

While Thaw's counsel were working today in the state library building their consultation room was invaded by moving picture operators. They were promptly expelled by former Governor Stone of Pennsylvania, leader of the Thaw forces, who deprecates the introduction of what he calls the "circus element" into the case.

Mr. Barron investigated this statement and found that Loving Gregory had moved to Kemp in Henderson county, also that he had no son of the age and description of Clyde Gregory.

Yesterday afternoon Chief Barron obtained information which leads him to believe that the boy killed in Shawnee was Clyde Howell.

Descriptions Tally. This information was obtained from a boy here who told the chief that Clyde Howell left here three weeks ago en route to Oklahoma, and that he was making his way on freight trains. The description of the boy given as that of Clyde Gregory fitted the description of Clyde Howell, so Chief Barron's information said. Mr. Barron wrote the Shawnee officials instructing them to write to Howell's parents, who reside near Fort Worth and who are said to be engaged in the cattle business.

exercise all the functions of the office to which he was elected. The statement of Mr. Taylor came as a great surprise to the office of the acting governor. With the receipt of the communication from the governor's secretary yesterday, it was believed the right of Mr. Glynn to exercise the functions of governor had been recognized by Mr. Sulzer. During this

FORT AVENUE FORTY-TWO CLUB IS ENTERTAINED

Mrs. D. C. Hays of North Eighteenth street opened her home on Thursday afternoon to the Fort Avenue Forty-two club. Ferns and palms were used for decorations. Guests and members enjoying this game were the Mesdames W. H. Jones, A. P. Angier, Frank Crow, Boone Crow, J. W. Pearson, Mrs. Moore, D. M. Blackstrum, N. O. Olive, M. L. Wilson, A. B. Hughes, A. C. Bostick, W. B. Ragland, A. C. Hanna, G. L. Gooch, J. M. Curry.

MRS. JOHN MARSHALL MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

As chairman of the curio collection for the Cotton Palace, Mrs. John Marshall requests any who are interested to secure a copy of the catalogues which are now ready for distribution from the Cotton Palace headquarters. In this the prizes for the curio are listed, and other information given. Mrs. Marshall further requests that those who will enter relics write very briefly with typewriter a history, and notify her that both relic and notice is ready. She will then give instructions for delivery or collection for the Palace.

MISS ELEANOR SMILEY BECOMES A MONDAY BRIDE

At the First Presbyterian church, at high noon, on Monday, Miss Eleanor Smiley becomes the bride of James Barnard of Abilene. No cards of invitation will be issued, but announcements of the interesting event will be mailed to friends out of the city. All are cordially invited to attend the service. Immediate departure will be taken for Abilene.

RECEPTION AT Y. M. C. A. TO BE ON MONDAY

In arranging for the open house at the Young Men's Christian association between six and ten o'clock on Monday, the wives of the directors are in the lead. Each has invited more than twenty to remain during these hours, which means that the social side of this significant event will be pronounced. The building now is remodeled, conveniently and attractively so, and it is now another in the aggregation of enterprises which makes this city proud. The women are especially gratified that such a wholesome place for recreation and development is afforded their boys. It is open house after six o'clock, and every woman in this city is welcome. These should make it convenient to call and inspect just what the Y. M. C. A. offers the boys of Waco. Decorations, refreshments and a cordial welcome is awaiting those who call.

THE LAST BAND CONCERT TO BE GIVEN TODAY

At Cameron park this afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, Alessandro and his popular band will give the last concert for this season. The program will be a grand finale, made as it is from requests for the favorite selections rendered during the summer season. So many are these requests that all could not be granted, so Alessandro announces that he has included those for which the greatest demand has been. A sacred number will be given; numerous calls have placed the southern melodies as one number. A new wait, something very pleasing, will be heard. One number deserving special attention will be the composition of the youngest Alessandro brother. In all, the last concert will be the best. It is a matter of congratulation to the band that this season has been such a success. Never have such crowds assembled; never has there been such good order; never has there been such applause; never has there been such demand from neighborhoods for a concert, and never has there been so many requests for repetition. This is the record, and it is one of which both the band and Commissioner Caulfield, who superintended the concerts, should feel more than gratified.

The month of October will be devoted by the band to practice for the Cotton Palace programs. Special music will be rehearsed for the several days, all German music for German day, all Italian for Italian day, and so on.

AN INTERESTING CARD FROM MRS. H. G. BOSTWICK

In their visit to relatives in Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Bostwick have made quite an interesting find. They send post cards to their friends bearing the picture of the home of Daniel Webster Emmett, the author of "Dixie." A portrait of this author surmounts the picture, and his form in the doorway is also recognized. It is a humble two-room building near Mr. Vermorel (the northern soil, then, gave us this southern song.) Mrs. Bostwick recalls that, at the age of eighty-eight, Emmet died in 1904. His wife was laid away twelve years before. Their graves are side by side near the home where they lived, always very poor. Mr. and Mrs. Bostwick will reach home within the coming week.

THE EVANGELIA SETTLEMENT MAKES GENERAL REQUEST

At the last meeting of the board of directors for the Evangelia Settlement, new plans for the winter were launched.

Among these is the organization of a cooking class among the women in the Settlement district. Miss Frances van Boddie has offered to secure sufficient cooking utensils, but delighted should any one donate a wood cooking stove, or, if not this, if one could be secured at second hand price, the board would appreciate having such telephoned to Miss MacDonald at the Settlement House.

THE MARY WEST CHAPTER TO MEET ON WEDNESDAY

The regular meeting of the Mary West chapter will be on next Wednesday at 2 o'clock with Mrs. T. A. Blair, 822 North Fifteenth street. The subject is "Reconstruction," and following is the program:

1. Roll call. Your opinion of Lincoln's conciliatory policy toward the south at the close of the War Between the States.
2. Vocal solo, "For Southland Loved."
3. Reading, The Magnolia—Mrs. Frank Ish.
4. Paper, Reconstruction—Mrs. D. M. Wilson.
5. Music, violin solo, Southern Melodies—Miss Irene Perry.
6. Discussion, led by Mrs. R. L. Abbott.

The Ku Klux Klan, organized in Gilles county, Tennessee. Objects, methods and results of this organization in restoring order in the south.
7. Piano solo, "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground"—Mrs. W. H. Kendall.
8. Reading, Ode to the Mocking Bird—Miss Bianca McKinney.
9. Social hour.

At this meeting officers will be elected for the ensuing year and all members are urged to be present. A report from all Cotton Palace committees is expected.

Mrs. T. A. Blair, chairman of Circle

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmothers used a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

No. 1, will entertain the chapter, assisted by the following members of that circle: Mesdames O. K. Steller, George Denton, C. W. Payne, J. O. Hall, R. W. Jablonowski, J. C. Lowry, Sarah Hardy, Walter Plunkett, L. E. McBride, J. S. Drisdell, Jane P. Dean, Miss Mary Herring.

MRS. W. W. LASTINGER, Historian.

THE NUMBER TWO SOCIETY HOLDS IMPORTANT SESSION

Under the direction of Circle Number Nine, the last program for the Number Two society was rendered on Friday. Mrs. Albert Hoggess was chairman. One feature especially pleasing was the voice number from Mrs. A. G. Elliott. Much business was transacted, since this was the well-known president's chair of Mrs. G. B. Foscoe, who had spent the summer in Europe. Members who were not present are requested to note the change of hour. The society will hereafter assemble at hand after three o'clock, bringing the all day session of the Federation of Missionary Societies, it was decided that all the Number Two should attend, and those who so desire may withdraw for their own meeting at the hour for such. A new roster of officers is soon to be announced.

CARD GAME AT THE HUACO FOR MISS VESTA COOPER

In compliment to her visitor from Temple, Miss Vesta Cooper, Mrs. Cullen Cooper was hostess at the Huaco club during Saturday morning. Cards were the diversion, and the guests of congenial age to Miss Cooper. All remarked upon the pleasing details which brought the reluctant finish to Mrs. Cooper's hospitality. Herself a girl, among bright, affable girls, Mrs. Cooper prolonged her pleasure until afternoon approached. For the prize feature in the game Miss Cooper was presented a fancy ivory hat pin holder. The leading score gave a pair of brilliant buckles for evening slippers to Miss Marian Duncan. The consolation fell to Miss Sallie Thompson. The luncheon plate was quite attractively served, and it afforded opportunity for a last pleasing word with Miss Cooper, who is returning home with Monday. Those invited to the game were the Mesdames Cooper, Hardy of Corsicana, Gertrude Wilson, Charabel Knight, Maydee Caulfield, Janet Gorman, Nora Gorman, Ellen Harden, Frances van Boddie, Mary Shelton, Marian Duncan, Lucille Hill, Melodie Colkin, Sallie Thompson, Stella Lacy.

FEDERATION OF MISSIONS TO HOLD ALL DAY SESSION

On Friday, beginning at 10 o'clock, the Federation of Missionary Societies will hold an all day session. This will be at the Austin Avenue Methodist church. The hour for closing is five o'clock. Lunch will be served between half after twelve and two o'clock. The following is the arranged program:

Hymn—Mrs. H. D. Knickerbocker, organist.
Devotional hour—Mrs. C. H. Carrier.
Prayer—Mrs. Susan Thornton Price.

10:15—Music. Solo by Mrs. J. W. Hale.
10:25—Roll call. Minutes read.
11:00—Unfinished business. Reports of committees. On travelers' aid, Miss Jackson; on finances, Mrs. T. D. Hays. Adjournment.
12:30 to 2—Lunch in basement of church.
2:00—Devotional hour, Miss Ivy. New business.
2:30—Vacation notes, led by Mrs. G. B. Foscoe.

Five minute talks, Mrs. W. T. Perry, Mrs. R. G. Patton, Mrs. W. W. Woodson, Miss MacDonald, Miss Kate Friend, Mrs. Frank Allen, Mrs. John G. Kendall, Dr. Frank Calvin.
3:15—Music. Solo, Mrs. Cullen Cooper.

Talk—Dr. Ingram, probation officer. General discussion. Adjournment.
All of the city ministers are invited to attend the meeting and be the guests of the Federation for lunch. All of the members of the Federation are expected to take a lunch, the extras to be supplied by the Austin Avenue Missionary society. Everybody is invited to attend the meeting.

Society Notes.

The summer has not been altogether idle with the Henry Downs chapter. Mrs. John P. Marshall has several desirable names to present for membership.

Miss Virginia Rose has decided to re-enter school. She leaves within a few days for Washington City. Mr. and Mrs. Israel Friedlander, after the two weeks wedding journey in the north, return home to open a pretty little home on Gorman avenue.

Mrs. Robert McAnally, with the first of October, becomes matron of her own home, the former Coleman cottage on Columbus near Eighteenth.

Mrs. F. Arisur Johnson will winter in downtown apartments on Franklin between Fifth and Sixth streets. Miss Vesta Cooper of Temple, who is visiting Mrs. Cullen Cooper on West Washington, will be sojourner by invitation at the First Baptist church this morning.

One of the changes in residence to be noted within the coming week finds Mrs. H. M. Minier matron of the Ben Gray, McAnally residence, Washington and Fourteenth.

Just a little while and it will be going over to the Dallas Fair. And, think of it. On the interurban. This will be a novel sure enough to the Waco women.

Among your resolutions for social life during the new approaching season, are you decided that you shall remember to send The Morning News all items, and these promptly? We hope so.

Miss Lucille Ellsworth of North Ninth street is leaving within the next few days to spend the winter in taking a special course at the University of Chicago.

Remember, it is now the duty of every mother in this city to get into touch with the school and the school life of her child.

The first holiday gifts ever exchanged were pins. Suppose we were to send a friend a paper of pins today? What would she think? And yet there was a time when pins were as much appreciated as we now do a piece of silver.

We are all about come home, what about park, Columbus street? It is a sorry looking sight just now. Something must be done before Cotton Palace visitors arrive.

Mrs. Araminta Branson as chairman of that division for the Mary West chapter is in the Cotton Palace, requests anyone who has a genuinely interesting Confederate relic to communicate with her.

Reorganizing the several church choirs is now in order. It is hoped that many will feel it their duty to assist in this part of the service.

Good music means so much to the attendance of church, especially among the strangers.

Did you know we had a cat and dog hospital in this city? This is a place where the pet's broken bones can be reset, and other attention given if the animal is sick. Inquire about the hospital and patronize it.

Mrs. Horace Pickett writes of every day full of interest in her visit to New York City. However, she is about ending this, and will reach home with the early days of October.

The know alls of anatomy are nothing if not persistent; they insist that it is not proper to rock the baby.

Nothing so far is definite concerning the resumption of meetings by the Domestic Science. However, it is more than probable that these will fall into line in order to assist in the work of Cotton Palace as the members have done in former seasons.

Does it not sound refreshing to hear about the women's societies resuming, the opening of the many homes, the rumors of weddings, debutante courtesies, and such? And, to add to this, comes the brisk blow of Saturday to renew the spirit with which to enjoy this awakening.

Wear your hair parted on the side, so some of the returned travelers tell us. We will not repeat what they tell us about sitting our skirt.

In the good rules to husbands one of the most important precepts is, "Don't, pray don't criticize your wife's dress; she will not stand it."

Little Mothers classes are being established in our larger cities. These teach mothers of first babies, especially those from the humble homes, how to care for the baby physically as well as what should be the ventilation and the health conditions under which the child should be reared. Why not such as this at the Evangelia House, and, why not such a feature, if Waco has a Better Baby Show?

Perhaps we have not all noticed it, but the Daughters of the American Revolution have had their Texas flag waving over the Old Spring every Sunday during the summer.

Miss Marie Leslie will be with Mrs. Hargrove, Ninth and Jefferson, this winter.

The Mesdames Cleo Rice and Minnie Graves are with Mrs. Delaney, Nineteenth and Sanger, for the school year.

ANOTHER PHASE OF THE FUTURES TAX.

As well as condemning the principle of the Clarke cotton futures tax amendment to the tariff bill, and offering argument like that of other newspapers that hope the conferees will alter, if they do not strike out this feature, Washington Post presents a somewhat novel discussion of the objections to the tax in declaring that the senate progressives who are assembling Wall street unparisably in a final effort to legislate that and other exchanges onto the criminal list at this session could but "scotch the snake" by closing the lid down on the speculative markets. The progressives denounce Wall street as incalculably worse than the Louisiana lottery, and more deserving of a similar fate than befell that institution at the hands of congress. It was found necessary to penalize the sale of lottery tickets, the use of the mails as a channel of information as to drawings, the possession of tickets by any person whatsoever, and to resort to other extraordinary restrictions before the scheme was suppressed. The result proved that congress could stamp out a lottery concern, but the job called for the exercise of all its powers, and had the lottery any basis of legitimacy to stand on it might have withstood the test. It is seen, therefore, that the mere forbidding of transactions in "futures" can only have the effect, as we have said, of "scotching the snake." Halfway measures won't do.

Besides stopping the sale of stocks of all kinds, foodstuffs, cotton, mineral products, and other commodities on the exchanges throughout the country, congress will find it essential to success to penalize labor and production—all the activities, in fact, that contribute to the assembling of raw materials for purposes of speculation. The Post insists, for must not congress dam the sources of supply before the evils pictured by the progressives can be entraped? Not only that, but inasmuch as the exchanges give play to the natural forces which quicken incentive and optimism in farmers, carriers, distributors, and bankers, what must be the collateral effect on our welfare? All of them know, if the politicians do not, that buoyancy is the secret of prosperity. "Bear" the markets by eliminating the factor which has so much to do in advancing prices to the maximum value of the stocks and commodities dealt in, and the whole fabric of finance and commerce will have received a paralyzing blow.

"The lottery served no good purpose, but the exchanges serve many good purposes that far outweigh the attendant evils. Congress will never adjourn if it elects to change human nature and tinker with world-old and world-wide rules of life."

"SCORING" THE MILK SELLER.

There has been much discussion of late regarding the efforts made in various cities to improve the quality of the milk supply. A different aspect of the subject has been raised by the investigator in charge of the market-milk investigations of the bureau of animal industry. He remarks that it has been a too prevalent custom in the past to lay all of the blame for dirty milk on the shoulders of the milk producer. While this may be an easy and convenient way, to shift the burden of responsibility from city to country, it is apt not only to hurt the dairy industry unfairly, but to close the eyes of reformers and health authorities to questions that lie nearer home. Milk inspection, to be complete, must apply to the place and modes of delivery as well as to the farm and its environment.

Precisely as systems of "scoring" dairy farms have been planned and are actually in operation as a basis for selling graded milk, so it is now proposed to devise a scheme of inspection and method of control for the stores and distributing plants concerned in the milk industry. There is the widest variation in the practices now prevalent in our American cities. In some there is rigorous control exercised by efficient health authorities, under whom a "license" or a "permit" carries with it an assurance of reliable supervision. In other places there are dead-letter regulations or no laws whatever. There are communities in which the sale of milk in bulk is forbidden; elsewhere it is freely tolerated.

The conditions essential for the preservation and delivery of milk in a sanitary condition are now well known in a professional way. It is perhaps not too early, therefore, to bring pressure to bear at every point at which a violation of the necessary provisions spells failure. To attempt to "standardize" stores handling milk and to rate them in the public eye along the lines which are followed by the inspectors who safeguard the sources of supply of cities like New York, may be premature in 1913. But the Journal of the American Medical Association, discussing the question editorially, thinks that high ideals are worth striving for. It is not difficult to educate an interested public by a system of propaganda. Draconic ordinances cause unnecessary hardships and friction. The fortunate community is one that succeeds in securing co-operation at every step, first by inculcation and then by liberal enforcement of reasonable measures.

NOVEMBER 5 AND 6.

We have it on no less authority than the 1912 Good Roads Year Book that eighteen states have worked and are working State convicts on State and county road systems with success that ranges from the fair to the absolute. When Governor Colquitt a year or more ago offered Dallas and Tarrant counties judges the use of trustworthy convicts from State's prison, "honor men," to work on these counties' roads at 50 cents a day each and upkeep, his offer was rejected. Lately, in Dallas, he renewed this offer and there is more disposition—official, press and public—to accept it. We reiterate these facts solely for the purpose of pointing the view that government in Texas, both the State government and the governments of its political subdivisions, will do better and more progressively for the people and for public improvement if they will cease regarding as "experimental" those systems and methods of public improvement and public work that have long been tried in other governments of this nation and quite as long have proved their worth. And among these are many matters of road building that have but recently come, or are yet to come, to Texas that needs decent road building probably as much as any State in the Union.

It is likely our governor regarded and examined as an "experiment" the novel, and universally popular and successful, "good roads days" for all his State exploited late in July by Governor Major, of Missouri; Governor Hodges, of Kansas, co-operated with Missouri's governor—the two donated overalls and handled spades and picks and logs. Much mud was lifted out of Missouri and Missouri was lifted out of much mud in some districts; then Hodges projected the same sort of popular improvement for Kansas, and then Governor Hay proclaimed good roads days for Arkansas. In Missouri, in Kansas and in Arkansas "good roads days" brought hundreds of men and not a few women to the highways and byways prepared to fling dirt and drag logs and dump gravel. So Mr. Colquitt had respectable and hearty precedent enough for proclaiming November 5 and 6, next, to be "good roads days" for Texas. To paraphrase Emerson, one who appropriately quotes a good sentence is in a class with the writer of it. Our governor is to be thanked for this proclamation quite as gratefully as if he had originated the plan. Texas needs these general good roads days and will need them periodically through several years. Soil formations, climatic conditions, heavy use of roads in farming regions, much motor car travel over all its wide area make the roads problem the greatest of Texas' many problems of regional development.

If a fair majority of the men in every road precinct of every county—which, of course, means throughout every county commissioner's precinct in the State—will on November 5 and 6 farm themselves with these implements of district development and state progress, muster their energy and give of their enthusiasm, the results of good roads days in Texas will outline the achievements of the men of Missouri, Alabama, Kansas and Arkansas. In this vast region there are no State highway systems made and maintained by the State, as there are in the smaller commonwealths of the north and east whose table-level roads, from State into State and metropolis to metropolis, are the pride of the land.

Good roads must be built in the southwest by community pride, district energy and the inspiration of the opportunity for counties to participate in the benefits of transcountry systems projected by the biggest of the nation's good roads associations.

Two enterprises of general benefit to the State, in principle or aim or in need, stand out in the administration of Mr. Colquitt—the cotton conference of southern governors he called in New Orleans late in 1911 and his proclamation of good roads days for this November 5 and 6. Let each county, each road district care for its own on those two days and it will consider itself better qualified to claim the county's share of trade and tourist highway travel, better adapted to develop the county seat as a trade center, better conditioned to ask for inclusion in the long routes of cross-country road improvement that are in prospect for the State.

WACO'S SCHOOL YEAR BEGINS.

Even with the communities of Texas that have latest realized that every dollar spent for the education of their young—on bright, strong, sanitary buildings; on skilled, thoroughly earnest teachers; on proper compensation for trained superintendents and special lecturers, on the right degree of athletic and gymnastic exercise—is a dollar expended on the structure of a great city in the building, it is relatively a far cry from the days of tiny school houses and teaching by the card, the hornbook, the battered cardboard speller and reader.

Today there are teachers certificated from the higher educational institutions of the State, its normal schools, from some of the best colleges of the land, for the teaching and guidance of Waco children. There are courses in science, in literature, in mathematics, in language; by way of domestic training, there are courses in household economy; for trades, there is manual training; there are music and drawing—there is teaching in the appreciation of all that is fine and beautiful and historic in art and in nature. There is medical inspection.

The growing demand for fireproof, rightly sanitized buildings is fruitfully increasing expenditures for making premises safe. Future building must meet this demand thoroughly. The city's scholastic census, growing steadily, is bringing additions to several schoolhouses and it will not be many years before there must be a bigger high school, more grade schools, more teachers and—we earnestly hope—smaller classes for every teacher.

Scientific, therefore sensible methods of teaching have for years replaced the haphazardness resulting from the necessity of one pedagogical instructing several ages in several subjects. Except for the grade classes in grade schools, there is specialization in teaching as in medicine and the applied sciences.

Waco's schools are progressing toward the highest class. We believe there is conscientious governance of the system, by trustees and superintendent and principals, on the whole; we feel sure they will agree there is still much to be desired in point of generous public provision for bettering every phase of the system.

There is in Waco the spirit of co-operation by parents with school control and teachers, especially on the part of the mothers' organizations, for the children's sake and the teachers' comfort. If this continues to be co-operation, if it does not lapse into officiousness, unreasonableness and controversy in any respect, it will be an invaluable factor in the success of teachers, system heads and pupils.

Some seven thousands of the children of Waco and environs who tomorrow will begin a new school year have much to be grateful for. We are assured this term will witness an appreciable advance in method and an improvement in school conditions generally, as the majority of terms have witnessed. The school children of Waco, and they who are in charge, have our every wish for a useful, successful year in their work for our city's future citizenship and womanhood.

The American Electric Railway Association will hold its annual convention in Atlantic City next month. The preliminary announcement of its program indicates the growing attention which public service corporations are giving to the matter of relations with the public and employees. Technical matters, being left largely to the allied associations, composed of the technical men of the business, the parent association, in which are found the heads of the companies, devotes its attention largely to subjects of general interest to the industry. This year it will hear the report of a committee composed of representatives of its own organization, the National Electric Light Association, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the American Telegraph and Telephone Company, on a form of agreement and a code of practice for the joint use of poles in city and village streets, which it is expected will lead to the gradual elimination of many of the unsightly barriers to the "city beautiful." "Profit Sharing With Employees," "Relation of Carriers to the Development of the Territory They Serve," "Relief of City Congestion," "Present Tendency of Public Service Laws and Regulations," "Valuation" and "Electric Railway Securities From the Investor's Viewpoint," are some of the subjects which will be discussed. They indicate the closer relations of the public service corporations and the public, compared with a few years back.

In the October Woman's Home Companion Mary Heaton Vorse begins a series of articles showing how the Montessori principle of education may be used by the American mothers at home. The fundamental principle of Dr. Montessori's system of education is liberty. No child, she thinks, should ever have a task imposed on it. Discipline, Dr. Montessori says, must come through liberty. We do not consider an individual disciplined only when he has been rendered as artificially silent as a mute and immovable as a paralytic. Such a person is an individual annihilated, not disciplined. Following is an interesting extract from the article:

The poignant charm of the little to most children fortunate enough to have one, what is it but the sense that at last is a place of their very own—a place where nothing can get hurt, a place of protection from 'do' and 'don't' of grown-ups.

When you think of it, it is astonishing how much room we devote to potential 'company' and how little to our children. I know whole towns full of cell-to-do people who have a sitting room and formal parlor both, besides a spare bedroom, often two, while the little children have for all their space a bed which they occupy in a room of their mother or older sister, a room cluttered with beds, bureaus, and grown-up furniture of all sorts.

Why is it not possible to sacrifice bravely the spare bedrooms or, in case of need, even the sacred parlor, so the children may have a place for their very own, unencumbered by grown-up furniture? The fittings for such a room can be of the very simplest: little tables and chairs that the children can move themselves; low cupboards to keep their things, book shelves, low placed blackboards, and small brushes and dust pans. Then they can begin to develop the sense of responsibility that the children feel toward their room in the Casa-del-Bambini. Here they may have plants which belong to them, and it is astonishing to see the comfort that a child will take in a plant that is his very own, and the time he will bestow upon it to see the responsibility of the care is his.

Every child should have its own place where it may put away its things, small bowls and pitchers for washing, and tables and chairs to eat at and work at, in which they may take some comfort and sit in a natural, unstrained position. To many people all this may seem a self-evident thing. But for one family of my acquaintance who have given their children work space and play space enough, I know twenty who cherish extra spare bedrooms for one family where the children have their own furniture and their own things. I know countless families where the hair chair or a solitary small chair is the baby's one belonging.

TEXAS VIEWPOINTS.

The Teague Herald.

A fraternally generous notice in Teague Chronicle has it that J. J. Moody & Sons, formerly of Brainerd, has acquired the Teague Herald and Col. J. J. Moody is now editor of that bustling little newspaper. The daily edition has been suspended and the management announces that only a weekly edition will be issued. "Mr. Moody is a newspaper man of valued experience, is well known generally and comes to the city well recommended as to his qualifications in his profession. The Chronicle wishes the management much success in their new field of endeavor." The Herald's contemporaries away from home join in the broad-minded tribute of its home fellow worker. It has been pleasant to get Teague Herald daily and we are assured the new weekly will be quite as creditable to its makers and territory.

At That, a Hero.

"Big Tim" Sullivan who rose from newsboy to congressman, is dead. Confined to his home because of mental trouble, he escaped from his nurses and was killed a few hours afterward by a train. The newsboys of New York, as well as many others of the needy class, will miss the big-hearted, generous Irishman and his annual picnics." Editor Penn of the Laredo Times in that last sentence brings a wealth of praise. It is a little soon after Mr. Sullivan's death, but we would like before many days to learn that New York's multitude of newsboys have each a few pennies to spare for a memorial to their friend and benefactor. Unlike Col. Cody—for whom newsboys in Texas have proposed help in his bankruptcy—"Big Tim" did nothing to make the street Arabs of his city discontented with their lot. He tried to brighten their lives a bit. He paid for hot coffee and buns for them when the day was dull and the earnings used up at home. He gave them picnics. The young 'uns grinned at him and he grinned back. Viewpoints is not qualified to sob in print. But he admired "Big Tim" for his bigger nature and never lost that admiration through all the mass of condemnation for the methods and evil influences of the particular political company that made "Big Tim" and had him traveling with it. "Big Tim" politically was persona non grata with hundreds in New York; personally he was idolized by more hundreds of the sort whose idolatry may be a man's best recommendation. Doubtless Mr. Sullivan had the thing been suggested to him in life would have turned down any suggestion that he be remembered by his friends of the street, after death. But the memento should be brought forward. Let the newsboys cut out Buffalo Bill's fund and buy a bronze tablet. Mr. Sullivan did not inspire to run away to fight redskins and wear a alshooter. His liberality warmed young stomachs in cold days and gave courage to fight the battle of making a living. He deserved an happier end and more manifestations of friendship and appreciation at the last.

Sure, What Else?

Stockman and Farmer puts it thus: "United States Senator Morris Sheppard in a recent speech branded the doctrine of protection as a curse and a crime, and all but called advocates of an import duty on wool and other farm and ranch products an undesirable citizens." This is terrible. What would S. and F. have Mr. Sheppard brand protection—a complement and a cherry blossom? And have not we Democrats for uncounted years bestowed on the unregenerate Republican beneficiaries of protection epithets the mildest of which makes "undesirable citizen" a term for a Sunday school leaflet? Or would S. and F. have our junior senator follow the example of his colleagues from Louisiana? Sugar is a "farm product," too, it will remember.

Claude Rises; Loyce Enters.

Leave it to Sir Harry Schwenker, of Brady Standard, to josh out the old Claude Callan from the sanctum of Menard Messenger to the sallicum (long shot) of Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and burrah into the Messenger's chair of paragraphs the new editor, Loyce Callan. As far as Schwenker is concerned, the two cities tale of Brady and Menard, through Standard and Messenger exchanges weekly, will know no stalling. We dare say Loyce, the successor of Claude, will respond the more vigorously as Harry tries his mettle in each issue. We hope so. The State's press for long has had its grin over this friendly, town rivalry contest; it would be a distinct loss if the Schwenkerisms and Callanisms should pass into nothingness. "The Menard Messenger," touches Schwenker, "last week appeared under the editorial charge of Loyce Callan, who quite fully maintained the paper's reputation for wit and brilliance. Loyce will doubtless prove a worthy successor to his uncle, Claude Callan, and while avowedly eschewing politics, will doubtless some day be in line for governor or ambassador to the Hitchy-Koo Islands—the latter job being of somewhat lesser rank than the Brady post-mastership. Let the happy burrahing go on!"

Sound Views on State Printing.
(Denton Record and Chronicle.)
The issuance, in September, of the Texas State Board of Health Bulletin for May, moves the Waco News to remark that "nothing but the conditions under which the state's public printing is turned out at Austin, in contract jump instead of by the sensible method of permitting each institution to arrange for its own printing—locally if possible, is responsible for such a ludicrous delay. Every state institution in Texas must send to Austin for its printing. The contractors take advantage of the 'must' feature of their contracts and the institutions are seriously hindered every year by the inexcusable delays incident to even their most important 'rush' jobs. The local colleges issue a summer bulletin, designed as a sort of annual catalogue. Both have tried repeatedly to get their work out in a reasonable time—have sent their copy in early, hurried back the proofs and done everything else in their power to get their bulletins here in time to be of material use for the information of prospective students. The catalogues sometimes are issued as early as August and sometimes later—when much of their possible benefits has been lost. If each institution outside the capital were permitted to arrange for its own printing, as our Waco contemporary suggests, and had some control over its disposal, not only would the get better work and quicker work, but those institutions at Austin would be correspondingly benefited. The different state institutions have practically no power to punish delays or to secure their work when they want it. The system ought to be changed so they could get their work where they can secure the best prices and the promptest delivery.

An Unique Expression of Friendship.

(Hamilton Herald.)
The Herald devotes some considerable space this week to the big expression to be held in our neighborhood, Waco, beginning November 1. We are not paid for this, but we have a very friendly feeling for Waco for several reasons. For many years between 1870 and 1880 our people bought most of their supplies from Waco. It was our nearest railroad point and goods were hauled from there in wagons before the Texas Central was built west from Ross. This editor has had relatives living in Waco and the Herald has had friends and patrons there for thirty-odd years. This paper nominated and supported the gallant Ross for governor and has always been proud to honor the splendid representatives of that city who have come before the people seeking political preferment. We have many personal friends in Waco, and cannot help but feel an interest in their welfare and prosperity. But to be candid, Hamilton does owe Waco anything. We have no obligations resting on us as a community to help boom Waco. They have never done anything for Hamilton. They refused to assist us in forcing the Cotton Belt to comply with its contract with our people and extend the road from Gateville to Hamilton ten or twelve years ago when we were without railroad facilities. They extended belated help to us during the regular session of the legislature but passed that would give Hamilton improved service and lower freight rates. We sent the biggest excursion to the Cotton Palace in 1911 that came from any town tributary to Waco, and when we got there they held us up for 25 cents a head to go up in an elevator and take a look at the town. We say Hamilton is not indebted to Waco, for many of her citizens, and a majority of them, it would seem, sat and cheered lustily when a disgruntled and defeated candidate for office in this county upon invitation stood before them and publicly slandered Hamilton. But for all that, we have no ill-feeling for Waco. She has a fine citizenship and we love her still. We want to see her grow and are willing to accord her all praise for her great enterprise and splendid accomplishments. The Cotton Palace is a credit to that city and to the state. It is a novel exhibition and new features are being added to it each year. It is a tribute to the push and energy of the people who are doing so much to make Waco a great city. We want our people to visit the Cotton Palace and to meet and mingle with the citizens there. We have known some of them nearly all our life. They are the salt of the earth. Let us cultivate close business relations with our neighbors and thereby all will be benefited. Let's go to the big Cotton Palace this year.

Useful Knowledge.

(Dallas Times Herald.)
Says the Waco Morning News in regard to one instance of the application of practical education which has come to its attention:

"Boys in the Ishpeming, Michigan, high school repair the school building for pay, and a co-operative school farm for profit, and are about to erect a gymnasium for their school in the same business-like way they have learned to do other things for themselves and the community. All the work is under the direct supervision of the regular school authorities, according to H. W. Foshier, of the United States bureau of education. These plans to meet the actual needs of the community through its schools developed out of peculiar local conditions. Ishpeming is a mining and industrial town of some 3,000 inhabitants in the upper Michigan peninsula. Under the state law, children are not allowed to work in the mines and factories until they are eighteen years of age. The compulsory age is fourteen. As there are almost no other industries in the region, there is more than the usual danger of 'drifting' on the part of the growing boys. It was to meet the problem of these boys that the school authorities have undertaken the effort. Not only have the boys become interested in school, but their parents have been brought to them in a thoroughly understandable way the direct economic value of education."

Among the various facts of present day education, this plan of cultivating in the boy habits of useful work stands out conspicuous for its common sense. As a rule, the growing boy demands almost constant activity of some kind. He must have something to do. Very frequently the fact that he has nothing useful to do makes him do undesirable things which he would sorely dream of if mind and body were kept in healthful activity. It is not likely that all the boys who worked on the Ishpeming school house will turn out to be good carpenters and plasterers, nor is such an outcome to be desired. The important thing is that they are being kept out of mischief by useful activity and are laying habits of work that will serve them in good stead when school days are over and the struggle for existence begins.

WACO AND THE MORNING NEWS.

Dollars "Are" Right.
Even James Hays permitted it to get by reading "11,998 ARE lost by exchange companies." These theories are naturally clever and expeditious, but we doubt if even they could have stolen that sum a dollar at a time—Denton Record and Chronicle.

No, These Are for Humans.
The Waco News says: "Gradually Wacoans are accustomed themselves to the little white pillars on the street corners, which are called drinking fountains." Evidently, it must be a source of some wonderment to any body or anything shall drink water in that town—Austin Statesman.

People don't; they are for horses—Palestine Herald.

Straley Shouts for Joy.

Praise From the County.

Rev. E. E. Ingram of Waco has been appointed to the newly created office of probation officer of McLennan county. Dr. Ingram has been pastor of the Central Presbyterian church of Waco for the past nine years and the city press commend the appointment, referring to Dr. Ingram as a man of broad judgment, wise counsel and a friend to young men—especially fitted for the responsibility involved—Mart Herald.

Alliterative Avocation.

Rosebud News: "Regal" Rockdale, "Celestial" Cameron, "Towering" Temple, "Royal" Rogers, "Lovely" Lee and "Matchless" Martin are the towns but they're not in the same class with "Tipproahs" Rosebud as a cotton market.

This is going some, but S-P imagines that "Wonderful" Waco and "Miraculous" Mart, being in that class of the woods, will be heard from—State Press, Dallas, News.

Concealing the Facts.

Waco News: "Nothing but the conditions under which the state public printing is turned out at Austin, in contract jump instead of by the sensible method of permitting each institution to arrange for its own printing—locally, if possible—is responsible for such a ludicrous delay. Every state institution in Texas must send to Austin for its printing. The contractors take advantage of the 'must' feature of their contracts and the institutions are seriously hindered every year by the inexcusable delays incident to even their most important 'rush' jobs. The local colleges issue a summer bulletin, designed as a sort of annual catalogue. Both have tried repeatedly to get their work out in a reasonable time—have sent their copy in early, hurried back the proofs and done everything else in their power to get their bulletins here in time to be of material use for the information of prospective students. The catalogues sometimes are issued as early as August and sometimes later—when much of their possible benefits has been lost. If each institution outside the capital were permitted to arrange for its own printing, as our Waco contemporary suggests, and had some control over its disposal, not only would the get better work and quicker work, but those institutions at Austin would be correspondingly benefited. The different state institutions have practically no power to punish delays or to secure their work when they want it. The system ought to be changed so they could get their work where they can secure the best prices and the promptest delivery."

Practically all of the state's printing is delayed from weeks to months. Yet the state pays about as much for it as though it were done promptly. The suppression of facts would not be much worse were a studied effort made to conceal the truth from the people. Even the laws which people are expected to obey are not published until long after they have taken effect. Some day, perhaps, the printing business will be put on a sensible basis—State Press, Delavoston News.

LETTER FROM A READER.

To the Waco Morning News:
Your editorial in today's paper, "Church is Not Involved," is a logical one, in one that commends itself to any fair-minded man.

Today there are so many that will condemn the Catholic church because some members, because some priests lead a scandalous life—they will condemn other churches for the self-same reason.

That some men in the ministry of our holy religion forget the sanctity of their lofty station and cease to give light in the sanctuary, we do not deny; nor do we deny that some have lost the spirit of their vocation, and give grave scandal. But would you condemn the collective body of clergymen for the evil deeds of some of its members?

Would you condemn all citizens of the United States and its government just because some are criminals?

Would you condemn a peach or apple tree and all its fruit just because you find a few rotten apples on the ground?

Even among the twelve apostles selected and schooled in holiness by Jesus Christ himself there was one bad apostle, one that committed a heinous and scandalous offense. The ratio one in twelve, does, by no means, hold good in the priesthood today—hardly one in a thousand.

What a beautiful and eloquent homily that of yours, in your editorial, "on the influence for good that comes from the church;" for the world admits, were it not for the benign and divine influence of the church, in all ages, we would now be in darkness in barbarism.

Such editorials as just referred to have a most powerful influence, yea, the press and the pulpit are the most powerful agencies in the world, and as one occupying the pulpit, great respect and appreciation is hereby expressed to you of the press—the editor of the Waco Morning News, for your fearless, logical and erudite editorial.

Yours cordially,

P. A. HECKMAN,

Rector St. Mary's (Catholic) Church, Temple, Tex., October 18.

MORNING.

HEALTH AND HYGIENE NOTED

Teachers Will Test Sight and Hearing of the Children—Improvements This Term.

Vaccination will be free to the pupils of the Waco public schools this year if they call on Dr. J. R. Ferrell, school physician.

The announcement was made yesterday morning at the high school when the teachers met together for the first time this year. Dr. Ferrell making that statement among others in reference to school hygiene. Heretofore the cost of vaccination has been $1, and there has been much complaint about it among the patrons of the schools. Every pupil entering the schools is required to be vaccinated or to show a scar or successful vaccination. If the pupil is vaccinated at the beginning of the school year and it does not "take," the process will have to be repeated in February. All pupils applying to Dr. Ferrell for vaccination will be given the treatment free under directions of the school board. A pupil, however, is not required to go to Dr. Ferrell if it is desired to have the vaccination performed by the family physician, and the question of cost in that instance will be a private matter.

Tests of Sight and Hearing.
Dr. Ferrell also requested the teachers to take up at once the tests of hearing and vision so that it can be determined at once whether a pupil is defective in either of these senses, the object being to place the desk of such pupil that he can both see and hear all that which is for his benefit in the work of the school.

It was also announced that arrangements have been made for the health officer to report to Dr. Ferrell every case of contagious disease in the city. When such a report is made the school physician will ascertain if there are children in the home attending the schools, and arrange to prevent a spread of the contagion.

Instructed as to Teeth.
"I don't think it necessary to have a toothbrush drill in our schools as they do in some cities," said Dr. Ferrell, "but I believe it would be well for the teachers to call attention to the necessity for care of the teeth and mouth. The mouth is one source of disease, and it is serious, and you cannot impress it upon the children with too much emphasis, so that they will keep the mouth well disinfected."

The Ungraded Rooms.

Superintendent J. C. Lattimore called attention especially to the "ungraded rooms," which are inaugurated in the schools of Waco for the first time this year. There will be four of these and possibly five, one at East Waco, one at South Eighth, one at Central school and one at South Eleventh. Dr. Lattimore hopes to inaugurate one at Brook Avenue. These are for those who are more advanced than the third grade, and who cannot very well be placed in any particular grade because of being more advanced than the grade, and best equipped in other work. They are the character of students that in colleges are called "irregulars," because they are not confining their efforts to a particular course. He said that it is necessary to get the best teachers for these ungraded rooms, and that it is hoped that each teacher will have a small number of pupils so that she can do individual work with each, advance the pupil rapidly, and send him to the grade to which he has qualified himself. He asked the co-operation of all teachers in making the ungraded rooms a success.

Competent Substitutes.
Superintendent Lattimore also announced that the policy of the board of trustees this year is to provide just competent teachers as substitutes as those of the regular corps. He said that it is necessary for the substitute to be competent so as to go into the schools and fill any position that is assigned. His idea is that they should be above the average, so that when they take up the work it is known that it will be well done.

Superintendent Lattimore gave the teachers a short lecture on telephone ethics. He said that whenever he is called on the telephone that he always answers "This is Mr. Lattimore." When the reply comes "Who is it?" He suggested that teachers be more careful in the use of the telephone and in that way get the most efficient service; that much of the fault in the use of the telephone is with the person who is using it. He suggested that it would be well for the teachers to give the pupils lectures on how to use the telephone.

As to the Age Limit.
The superintendent also called attention to the age limit. If a child is 7 years of age on May 31 next or on date prior to that, the child is eligible to admission to the schools, but if it will not be 7 years old until June 1 it cannot enter the schools, and the payment of tuition will not benefit, as the rooms are crowded and all the space is needed for children within the school age.

About Old and New Books.
Mr. Lattimore made the announcement about the books. They are to be had from J. M. Freeman & Sons, 224 South Eleventh street. He said that Mr. Freeman has arranged the books by grades, and that every facility for quick service has been provided. He called attention to the fact that in exchanging old books for new, the exchange must be made at the time the new book is purchased and not the purchase made at one time and the old book offered at another. He also explained that readers will be exchanged for readers; arithmetics for arithmetics, etc.; that readers do not exchange for geographies.

How About the Elephants?
While Mr. Lattimore was giving out instructions regarding the handling of the pupils when they are enrolled Monday, Mr. Genheimer, principal of the high school, spoke up, "How about the 24th?"
The superintendent hesitated. He knew at once, as does every child in town know, that the 24th is the date for the circus. It will be an important question in the schools next Wednesday. "No conclusion has been reached about the 24th."

Therefore, the children are on the anxious seat about circus day.

Contracts for Teachers.
Mr. Lattimore then handed out contracts to all teachers to be signed. He read the contract over and directed how it should be filled in, and how signed. He read this paragraph as a part of the contract:

"That said Mary Roe reserves the right to discontinue said services at any time during the continuance of this contract upon two weeks' notice given to said board of trustees; and said board of trustees expressly reserve to themselves and their successors the right upon two weeks' notice to said teacher to annul this contract without having to assign any reason for such action."

Mr. Lattimore said: "In regard to this clause, it has never been enforced on but one teacher in fifteen years. He left the schools against his own consent. When he finally agreed to let me send a substitute to take his place, the board paid him for the balance of that month and all of the next. You need not be afraid of losing your place under that clause. That clause was put in the contract a number of years ago by the board. The board thinks it best to have it read that way. If it is necessary to dismiss a teacher, it is better to have it done quietly without publicity as to the reasons. The teacher is better off and so is the school. A teacher can go then to another place, and the school to which he will go can assume that he was let out because he 'kept in' somebody's boy, or because some board member did not like him. I don't think you need fear that clause being enforced."

Large Attendance.
There were a large number at the meeting. Before the gathering assembled in the hall, the hundred and fifty of the teachers gathered in one place on the first floor and every one tried to outtalk all the others. No such babel of feminine tongues was ever heard. It was the first gathering of the teachers since they had been away for the summer, and all were delighted to meet again. A cordial greeting was given each of the new teachers.

Announcement by Superintendent.
Superintendent J. C. Lattimore makes the following announcement:

The various buildings are about completed and will be ready for the schools Monday morning. In North Waco the new building will not be ready and the present building will have to answer for a few weeks. As the numbers that will attend this school cannot be definitely determined until the schools actually open, positive announcements cannot be made until after Monday or Tuesday. It is probable that the first, second and third grades will be on half day sessions, but it is hoped that the fourth and fifth can remain all day. Definite announcement will be made to the children at the building by Tuesday or Wednesday. Monday morning it is hoped that every child in this district and pupils transferred from the adjacent territory outside the limits will be at the schools ready for enrollment so that the number belonging to this school can be determined and definite arrangements can be made for taking care of them.

All pupils south and east of a line from the corner of Irving and Fifteenth street, down Fifteenth to Windsor and west on Windsor to the city limits, will go to Brook Avenue school. Pupils west and north of this line and pupils transferred from the adjacent territory will go to the first through the fifth grades, will go to North Waco. All sixth grade children will continue to go to Brook Avenue as heretofore. Low sixth pupils from the district will go to Brook Avenue, others to Columbus street.

Low sixth grade pupils from Bell Hill, South Eighth street and South Third street schools will go to South Eighth street school. High sixth grade pupils from the city excepting Brook Avenue will go to the Central school.

All parents are requested to start their children to school Monday morning.

Pupils entering the low first grade for the first time must start during the first four weeks or remain until the middle of the year.

It will not be necessary for the children to take their books to school Monday or Tuesday, as they will be taken up classifying pupils and assigning them to their respective rooms. Tuesday pupils should go prepared to stay all day as regular work will begin then.

IS NOT ON HIGHWAY ROUTE

Hillsboro and Waco Not Members of Organization and Are Left Off.

Hillsboro, Tex., Sept. 20.—Hillsboro like Waco, and for the same reason, will not be on the official route of the Colorado-to-the-Gulf highway, according to the announcement of President C. G. Denman, of the Young Men's Booster club, at the joint meeting of that organization with the Board of Trade last night.

Mr. Denman gave as the reason "carelessness which is inexplicable." He said that the $100 for membership in the organization had been raised, but in some way the correspondence had not been attended to and when the money was sent it was found the limit had expired.

This time, he said, the Hill county roads did not kill the proposition. It is stated that for the same reason Waco was left off the route, which is now being logged through Corsicana and Mexia.

WANTS STORES TO CLOSE.

Hillsboro Merchants Anxious to Help Agricultural Fair.

Hillsboro, Tex., Sept. 20.—Joe Cornish, who organized the Hillsboro Agricultural Fair association, is anxious that every store in the city be closed on Thursday, October 2, which is Hillsboro day, at the fair, and President Thompson of the Board of Trade last night promised to jog the memories of the committee which has this matter in charge.

Mr. Thompson said that a committee had been appointed some time ago for this purpose, but that its members had probably forgotten that they were in charge of the matter.

STUDENTS ASSEMBLE

ENROLLMENT AT BAYLOR BIDS FAIR TO BREAK THE RECORD.

Regular Class Work Will Be Begun
Next Wednesday—Preliminaries
Tomorrow and Tuesday.

With many pupils already on the ground and with the largest advance requisition of boarding quarters in the history of the institution, the enrollment for the fall term of the sixtieth annual session of Baylor university promises to exceed all former records.

Work of classification for the new term will begin promptly Monday morning, following the chapel exercises at 9 o'clock. There was a meeting of the entire faculty Saturday afternoon for the purpose of receiving such announcements as was necessary for the students to know, and the announcement of vital interest to the students was made at the chapel hour Monday morning.

Begin Classes Wednesday.

Both Monday and Tuesday will be given over to the work of classification and regular class work will be taken up Wednesday morning, following the formal opening, which will begin in Carroll chapel at 9 o'clock. In keeping with an old custom, the new members of the faculty will be presented at that time. These will include Dr. J. H. Stoutemeyer, who comes from the University of Minnesota to take the chair of philosophy and pedagogy, and Norman C. Paine, director of athletics, who has been on the field for the football training camp. His nickname of "Red," by which he was known at the University of Chicago, where he made three of the major teams, has followed him to Baylor and, like most red-headed people, he is making good.

Prof. Hawkins Returns.
Prof. J. E. Hawkins, who has been absent for a year on a leave of absence, studying in Germany, has returned to resume his place in the department of romance languages. He will be given a few minutes Wednesday to tell how he enjoyed his year abroad. The principal address, however, will be made by President Brooks. The public is invited to attend these exercises.

Student activities have been evident about the campus for several days. The society campaign committees have been making their usual active canvases for members among the new arrivals, while the football practice has attracted special attention from the fact that the squad looks more promising than it usually does at this stage of the season.

Ready for Football Season.
The cool weather has permitted Paine to put the boys into light scrimmage work sooner than he had anticipated and as a result they have begun to give some indication of what they can do on the gridiron.

Among the developments of the week have been the punting proclivities exhibited by Matthews, Williams, Crossland and Ferguson, all of whom have demonstrated their ability to make place kicks from anywhere within the forty-yard line. Not since the days of "Robbie" Robinson has the Baylor eleven been strong on punting, and goals from the field. If the team can develop strength on those points this year it will make a much better showing in the strenuous contests that lie out before it.

Whir of the Lariat.
R. V. Elzey, editor, and Chas. M. Martin, business manager of the Lariat, the student weekly, have been on the field getting their work shaped up. The first edition of their paper will appear Wednesday, the day of publication having been changed from Saturday. W. Roy Christian, editor, and T. E. Sanderford, business manager of the Literary, will get out the first issue of the monthly magazine tomorrow. Both publications will be published this year by the Baylor press, affording larger employment to the students who are working their way through school.

SANATORIUM IS HIRSHFIELD PLAN

SUGGESTS A MOVEMENT TO BUILD ONE IN THIS CITY.

TO MAKE THIS HEALTH RESORT

Believes a Stock Company Could Be Formed of Patriotic People. Outlines Method.

By D. E. Hirschfield.

At the invitation of The Morning News I am giving here my views on the question of building in Waco a modern up-to-date sanatorium, or bath house, where the water now flowing out of the Bell's Hill well, recently developed by the Waco Hot Well Development Company, may be utilized for suffering humanity, as well as for ordinary bathing purposes.

I have recently advocated such a bath house, in every public way possible to get the subject before the public and sound out sentiment. I have also taken the matter up in a communication to the Young Men's Business League for the consideration of that live organization. This has been done by me for the benefit of our city directly, and indirectly myself, by increasing the circulation of money in the commercial arteries of Waco, thus helping every person in business here.

My idea of such a bathing institution in Waco is to have the initial one located as near as possible to the business heart so that patrons may come from hotel and where it would be the most convenient to the greatest number of people. In this way the success of the enterprise would not be dependent on the health seekers or tourists, who may be attracted by reason of the water and bathing facilities. But the general traveling public and our local population would add very materially to the patronage of such an undertaking. Now these points call to the attention of the investing public the investment attractiveness of putting their money into the enterprise.

In constructing a bath house, care should be taken as to its cleanliness, the service, and convenience afforded to patrons in security from unbecoming benefits, by catching cold, etc. I would provide the most modern sanitary arrangements and banish wood entirely as far as possible. Wood in such a place early rots out and absorbs hot water in such a way as to soon work out its destruction and sanitary usefulness.

Water Now Too Hot.

The water from the Bell's Hill well is too hot to bathe in unless allowed to cool. It comes from a strata 200 to 600 feet below that formerly known, and is very pure. Individuals who have drunk it and who have bathed in it, attest its qualities more eloquently than any others. At this early stage of its discovery, many people have been reported already and one very well known and prominent Waco business man who had been confined to his bed with a stubborn case of stomach trouble, gives this water full credit for having gotten him out of his bed. He can again mingle with his fellow men as of yore.

With such a panacea to those who suffer with the many diseases which human flesh is heir to, here at our heartstone, should we deny the right to sufferers to get the benefit of such a gift of nature? Shall we permit the value of this gift of God to remain undeveloped?

Waco is, admittedly one of the prettiest and most beautiful spots in all the country. There is no place more inviting or attractive to the average person than is Waco. We are getting the facilities to care more properly for the floating population coming and going, before, ever before. Our hotels and more of them, our increased number of restaurants and our inter-urban facilities, all tend to better our condition as a city, and a place of entertainment. We want more people to build a greater city here. We must build a bigger pay roll distributed among the tradespeople.

Estimate of What Will Follow. To be conservative, I will estimate that the bath house I have pictured will attract the first year fifty average daily health seekers and tourists. (This is very small indeed.) The very small estimate for those would be a per capita expenditure in Waco of $3. This is equal to a pay roll of $1500 monthly.

There is a class of people from the cold sections of the United States, financial independence, who seek a balmy climate and good accommodations away from home every winter. These people are usually liberal in their expenditures. A large proportion do a vast expense for good service and congenial surroundings. They often make investments in winter homes. Such visitations also lead to other investments and business alignments. Very, very often, to sentimental attachments which result in matrimonial alliances. There is no reason why Waco's attractiveness and its hot water conductivity should not be properly placed before such a tourist element and get them coming this way to spend their winters. It is true we might lose some of our superior femininity by inroads of the opposite sex, but turn about is fair play and the conditions might also be reversed. This might we secure additional capital for Waco enterprises.

Let us get the hotels going and a fine bathing establishment to create another prosperity factor in our development. We should use our glorious water here for Waco's financial benefit.

Wants a Corporation.

To get the bath house I have in mind, a corporation will be the first step and as a nucleus to this my own personal opinion is that the Waco Hot Well Development Company stockholders will be willing to take $6500 stock as a starter. Those who have invested in this stock have performed a good service for the Waco people. In the bath house proposition, it will be a good business investment for that stock to be converted, as I suggest, if the stockholders would agree to it.

Now, if the business organizations will just get behind the movement and sell adequate additional stock to insure the enterprise, then Waco will have taken another step forward on the road to greatness. If prospective investors will but investigate, they will learn that the bath houses in Marlin have always earned big dividends and those in Hot Springs are the biggest money earning enterprises in that famous health resort. The local business will be a paying proposition, but the service and location must be considered, to make of it no experiment. Physicians Ought to Help.

It is rather surprising that the medical brethren of this city have been, and are so little interested, apparently, and it does look like they could help to push along such a valuable asset to our city. All we have to do is to "break the ice" and the coming of one will pave the opening wedge of other sanatoriums, or bath houses. Note the construction of the "Riggins Hotel." This movement has stimulated other hotel enterprises and those already built are getting busy "priming up" to save their present business. It is up to Waco citizenship to make

The Official Premium List and Catalogue of Cotton Palace Ready

It Shows a Larger Array of Awards Than Ever Before Also More Substantial Prizes in Many Departments—Copies Free to Exhibitors. Contains All Rules and Regulations.

The official premium list and catalogue of the Texas Cotton Palace is now ready for free distribution to all exhibitors desiring same, by addressing Secretary Seth N. Mayfield, Waco, Texas.

The livestock department will be one of the greatest features this year. The finest thoroughbred horses, mules and jacks, registered cattle, sheep, goats, swine, etc., in the entire state will be on exhibition. Extensive improvements have been made in this division, new ground added and all lovers of fine stock will see an array pre-eminent. Superintendent W. T. Abernathy requests all exhibitors to make their entries early, as available space is going fast.

The corn and cotton department and the boys' and girls' club divisions are in charge of D. A. Saunders, superintendent, who has prepared a very attractive list of awards, including prizes for the greatest yields per acre, etc. The cotton modeling department is in charge of Mrs. John B. Cooper, as will be noted below.

On exhibition in the cotton department there will be stalks and bales of the best and largest yield, longest staple cotton raised in this year's crop, besides a most interesting exhibit of foreign cotton, making this exhibit exceedingly interesting and instructive to people living in the cotton states, as well as to those who have never seen cotton before.

The bee and honey department will be under the direction of W. H. Laws of Beeville, Bee county, while F. L. Aten of Round Rock will be the judge.

The women's departments will be under the general chairmanship of Mrs. J. W. Bass, with most capable aides in the various divisions, including the cotton modeling contest in charge of Mrs. John B. Cooper; the art department, under the direction of the Waco Art league, Mrs. A. H. Newman, superintendent; China division, under Mrs. Wm. Green, superintendent; arts and crafts, Mrs. W. E. Spell, superintendent; textile, Mrs. J. S. Hill, superintendent; culinary, Miss Esther Gross superintendent; historical and curio, Mrs. John F. Marshall, superintendent; German exhibit, Mrs. E. C. Wosniog, superintendent; Bohemian department, Mrs. M. J. Mazanec, superintendent; Italian department, Mrs. Joe Pinto, superintendent; floral department, Mrs. John G. Fall, superintendent of the amateur division and T. J. Wolfe, superintendent of the professional division. The floral displays this year will be absolutely unparalleled. Three large green houses have been erected on the Cotton Palace grounds, where 10,000 chrysanthemums will add their beauty to the general attractiveness of the exposition as a whole.

The "Call of the Woman" department is under the superintendency of Mrs. A. W. Koch, and is a new feature, added to afford those women who from necessity or inclination make articles to sell or who engage in business or professional pursuits, and every possible phase of the "call of the woman" will be shown. The Japanese loan exhibit department is in charge of Mrs. W. O. Wilkes. The Daughters of the Confederacy will have an interesting space, this department being in charge of Mrs. J. W. Downs. Woman's day will be looked after by Mrs. F. J. Lennox, when a monster parade will be pulled off.

The woman's labor-saving device department will be in charge of Mrs. W. J. Neale and Mrs. Ben G. Kendall.

In former years man's ingenuity has been devoted to the improvement in machinery to reduce the labor of man. They seemed to have overlooked the woman with her housework. Late years have brought a change and today are to be seen many practical labor-saving devices which shorten woman's work. In this department will be shown an extensive array of these. Competent demonstrators will be employed for the purpose of showing the articles to best advantage.

The 1913 poultry show will be under the direction of John K. Strecker Jr., with George M. Knebel as judge.

The greater and better baby show of the 1913 Cotton Palace will be held under the direction of Chairman C. H. Cox on Monday evening, November 3rd. A big array of handsome prizes will be awarded, including cash and valuable merchandise. Prizes will be awarded to the best babies, the best twins, etc., and to the father of the baby coming the longest distance, also the mother, and similar awards unique and of value.

OBJECT TO CHROMOS

DESCENDANTS OF DIPLOMATS TO RE-PICTURE THE EMBASSY.

Americans Not Pleased With the Likenesses of Their Forebears Who Were at the Court of St. James.

London, Sept. 20.—Through the objection of their descendants to the quality of the portraits of his predecessors, which hang on the walls of his private office, Ambassador Page hopes to secure an improvement in the gallery. During the past fortnight one grandson and one great-grandson have assured the ambassador with some warmth that the presentments of their distinguished ancestors were almost libelous, and they offered to replace the offending portraits with ones which would be better art, if not better likenesses. Dr. Page assured them that such contributions to the artistic improvement of the historic collection would be welcomed, and he expressed the hope that other disgruntled diplomatic descendants would call to examine the pictures of their forebears.

When President Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard University, called recently upon the ambassador he was almost overcome when he saw the chromo which serves to perpetuate the features of his grandfather, Abbott Lawrence, who once represented the United States at the Court of St. James. The Lowell family has always run to brains rather than beauty, but the Harvard president declared that his ancestor did not even look intelligent in the embassy portrait.

C. C. Pinckney, of Richmond, who called several days later, was the next protestant. When he saw the picture of his great grandfather, Thomas Pinckney, first regularly accredited minister to the Court of St. James, from Washington, he paraphrased the saying of another famous ancestor by exclaiming, "Millions for art but not one cent for chrome."

Ambassador Page is now patiently awaiting the arrival of portraits of some of his early predecessors done in the best Trumbull and Stuart styles.

800 MILES ON A PONY.

Colorado Boy Makes Long Journey To See Parents.

(Port Collins, Col.) Dispatch.—Mounted on a jaded pony, a tired boy rode into Port Collins, having come 800 miles from Abiquiu, Rio Arriba county, N. M., because he was homesick and wanted to see his parents, who live here.

The boy is Raymond Lopez, and he set out on his journey 24 days ago. He camped out at night the greater part of the time and accepted the hospitality of farm houses only when it rained. He had been living with relatives in New Mexico for the last year and the longing to see his parents finally became so strong that he could resist it no longer and set out on his long ride.

The pony has evidently been owned by every person in the county, for it is so covered with brand marks that there is scarcely any hair left.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Cleanses tender little stomach, liver, bowels without injury.

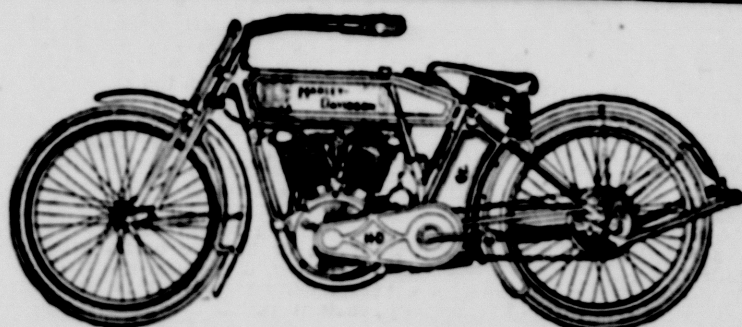

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a thorough "inside cleansing" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other fig syrup with contempt.

MUSICAL AMERICA.

Nation Spends Three Times as Much for Music as on Army and Navy. (Leslie's Weekly.)

Americans spend on music three times the amount spent on the army and navy. This statement, which was made at the annual convention of the New York State Music Teachers' association, seems to flatter our musical taste. To be exact the amount is $10,000,000 a year, and it is more than any single interest. It is more than any other country devotes to the same object.

Likewise it might be stated that Americans spend more for works of art than do any other people, and from these premises it might be argued that we are the most musical and artistic people in the world. Perhaps, however, it would be a little closer to the truth to say that we are able and willing to pay more for good music than any other people, and are not greatly disturbed if usually the artists who supply our demands are born and trained in other lands.

Nevertheless the figures do indicate a great and growing interest in music, an interest that ought to be encouraged. A nation does not become musical in a day or generation, but a love of good music and the opportunity to hear and enjoy it are first steps in the direction of American musical culture. And the phonograph and automatic piano, it might be added, have no small place in helping to create and to increase a taste for good music.

The mechanical musical instrument not only amuses and entertains, it also educates one in the appreciation of good music. Every home should possess such an instrument, in most households, even when some members can play, they cannot, as a rule, perform difficult classical music. Unless there were automatic musical instruments to fall back upon, the family would miss hearing much of the best music. Even in those homes so fortunate as to have some one who can play well the most difficult compositions, the mechanical instrument has its place, for the single performer in the home can't satisfy at all times the musical desires of every member of the family. The great masters now stand ready to give their best to suit the mood of the hour. By putting the world-famous music creations in the hands of the people mechanical instruments help to educate the taste away from rag time. Nor have they had any deterring effect upon the numbers studying music. Never before in this country were there so many children and young people taking lessons as now.

Mr. Frank Damrosch, director of the Institute of Musical Arts, thinks the musical advance of this country within the last quarter of a century has been astonishing and gratifying. "Twenty-five or thirty years ago," says Mr. Damrosch, "the rank and file of American people were decidedly ignorant of music. Now there is hardly a town, small as it may be, in which there is not at least one musical organization."

All this indicates that America is rapidly developing into a musical nation. Likewise the coming of other nationalities to our shores, representing people with musical and artistic traditions, and the absorption of this element, will have its influence in producing in the generations to come a higher order of musical and artistic ability. Let the people sing!

Joseph Skipsay, a minor poet of Northumberland, learned to read by committing to memory the appearance of the big letters on the placards stuck up on the hoardings by the pit mouth. As a trapper boy in the pit he wrote and ciphered on the "trap door" in the intervals when no wagon was passing through, and then taught himself grammar, and without any education of any kind, by slow degrees and some keen native instinct, he found out and became acquainted with masterpieces of literature. Then he commenced to write and compose lyrics, and the day came when the pitman-poet numbered among his friends Tennyson, Rossetti, Burne-Jones, William Morris and Lord Morley.

STATISTICS OF TEXAS INDUSTRIES

COMMERCIAL SECRETARIES ISSUE A BOOKLET ON WEALTH OF STATE.

VALUABLE DATA FOR PEOPLE

Gives Reliable Information About the State for Those Who Are Seeking Investment.

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 20.—In order to provide dependable data for home-seekers, furnish reliable information for prospective investors and supply instructive facts to the citizenship of Texas, the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association has prepared a pamphlet giving detailed statistics and comparisons of the various lines of Texas industry. The booklet contains 123 pages of statistical matter.

The book is entitled "Industrial Texas" and contains much valuable statistics on the United States and world production and consumption.

One of the principal features of the book is a balance sheet, showing the production and consumption of all lines of industry in the state for the year 1912. Fifty-five industries are listed and the total production, which consists of farm, mine, factory and fishery output, is valued at $797,248,525, while the total consumption for that year has an aggregate value of $767,744,959. This leaves a profit of $29,503,566 in production over consumption, to which must be added the net influx of foreign capital into the state, which amounts to $180,940,000, making the grand total net increase $140,446,566. The per capita production for 1912 amounts to $19.51, and the consumption $18.69, leaving a gain of $0.82 per capita for the year. The per capita investment of foreign capital for 1912 was $45.24.

Another prominent part of the booklet is a table showing the 1912 production of Texas by counties. The value of the agricultural, manufacturing, mineral and fishery output is shown by counties and is the first data of this kind compiled since the association issued its Texas product map in 1908.

There are a dozen general heads discussed in the book, viz: "Textile Fibres," "Cereals and Feedstuffs," "Sundry Crops," "Livestock," "Minerals and Miscellaneous Products," "Fish and Oysters," "Property Values," "Farms and Farm Property," "Transportation," "Manufacturing," "Population" and "Miscellaneous Statistics."

Cotton Leading Agricultural Crop. Under the head of "Textile Fibres," a comprehensive discussion of cotton, wool and silk appears. As cotton is the world's leading textile fibre, and Texas is the leading cotton producing unit of the world, the larger portion of the discussion relates to the Texas industry, although detailed data and comparisons of the United States and world's textile fibres are also shown. The cotton production of Texas, by counties, is another important part of the booklet.

In 1912, Texas produced $244,544,000 worth of textile fibres, consumed $141,452,000, and had a surplus valued at $103,092,000, which was sold in other states and countries. Cotton and wool were the only fibres produced in the state commercially during 1912, and cotton constituted 99 per cent of the total value of the textile fibres.

Surplus of Cereals and Feedstuffs. The cereal and feedstuff production of Texas in 1912 was valued at $227,388,000 and the consumption $213,962,213. It was the first year in many seasons that the production in Texas exceeded the requirement. Corn is the leading cereal of Texas, and cotton seed the most important feedstuff. The value of these two crops in 1912 constituted 44 per cent of the total value of the cereal and feedstuff yield. We produce oats and corn in large quantities in Texas and the cereal industry of the state is fully explained, while national, as well as world statistics, are also given in detail.

Millions for Sundry Crops. A discussion under the head of sundry crops gives Texas, United States and world data for broom corn, potatoes, peanuts, beans, fruits, vegetables, nuts, coffee, tea, sugar, tobacco and other products. The total production of these crops in 1912, according to the booklet, is $50,979,000, while the requirement for the year was valued at $48,194,000, showing a net loss of $2,785,000. None of the articles classified under the head of sundry crops are produced in quantities sufficient for export trade and the per capita loss on these products in 1912 was $8.54. The bulk of the money expended outside of the state for these articles is for sugar, Irish potatoes, coffee and tea.

Texas Livestock Production. The livestock section of the pamphlet is bristling with live statistical comparisons and the industry of Texas, the United States and the world is fully explained. In Texas, during 1912, the production of horses, mules, cattle and sheep exceeded the requirement, but the imports of pork, bees and honey, dairy products and leather goods more than offset this surplus. The per capita production was $24.54 in 1912, and the consumption $25.07, leaving a loss of $0.53 per capita during the year. The total livestock production of Texas in 1912 was valued at $98,165,000, the consumption at $100,266,000, leaving a loss of $2,000,000. Texas, as a whole, is a heavy consumer of pork and pork products, and $45,500,000 was spent for these products last year and $24,187,000 of this amount was expended outside the state.

Petroleum Leads the Minerals. A comprehensive chapter relating to the mineral resources of the state and nation is contained in the book, and much interesting information pertaining to the mining industry of the world is also shown. There are nineteen commercial minerals produced in Texas and petroleum is by far the most important. The value of the 1912 petroleum production of Texas constituted 45 per cent of the state's total mine output for that year. The Texas mines and wells yielded products in 1912 valued at approximately $30,837,000.

Following the production and consumption discussions are statistical analyses of Texas farm property, transportation facilities, population, irrigation and manufacturing, and various other industries. The pamphlet is equipped with a detailed index, which, together with the complete statistical information, renders it invaluable as a ready reference book on the growth, present conditions and future prospects of Texas. The pamphlet is to receive a wide distribution, and 20,000 copies have been printed.

This plan will move over a hundred pianos into Waco homes—It is time for you to join in this big saving and enjoy terms as low as 16c a day

THERE IS A CERTAIN PRIDE in having a piano in your home, the name of which you are proud to tell your friends, a name that stands for quality, highest character and worth—a Chickering, an Emerson, a Haines Bros., Krell, Goggan or Armstrong. POSSIBLY YOU HAVE LONG DESIRED SUCH A PIANO, but could not see your way clear to pay the price, or to meet the payments always demanded. This has perhaps held you back. IF YOU WERE OFFERED A SAVING OF $100 AND OVER and the opportunity to purchase a piano of such quality, on weekly payments of $1.25 to $2.00, would you hesitate any longer? IF WE CAN PROVE TO YOU—mind you, PROVE—that we are selling such pianos at the above saving in price and terms, would you buy? Don't take our word altogether. Come, see for yourself.

You want a piano; you want one of these fine old makes—you want to save on the prices and terms.

Then don't wait. Come today or tomorrow if you can—the earlier the better as the stock is selling fast—AND IF YOU DO NOT FIND EVERYTHING AS REPRESENTED, IF YOU ARE NOT SATISFIED THAT THIS IS THE ONE BIG OPPORTUNITY YOU HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR DON'T BUY.

It's worth your while to investigate at least. It will be money in your pocket. It means piano satisfaction for a lifetime. It means securing one of the world's best known makes at terms you will never have offered you again.

Here is your opportunity, the one big opportunity of a lifetime. Grasp it. Don't let it get away from you. Put on your hat and come straight to the Thos. Goggan & Bros. store, 412 Austin Ave. and make sure of it.

Every Player-Piano buyer should know about our music roll library.

There are no rolls to buy when you purchase your Player-Piano here. We deliver 12 rolls with each player. These rolls may be exchanged any time for other rolls and customers play and enjoy thousands of pieces without the expense of buying the rolls outright.

HAVE COMMERCIAL SECRETARY.

Two Organizations at Hillsboro Make Temporary Arrangements.
Hillsboro, Tex., Sept. 20.—A secretary to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of F. L. Vanderburgh will be elected immediately by the joint executive committees of the Board of Trade and the Booster Club, his salary to be not less than $150 a month. At least until January 1 he will serve both organizations as separate bodies, but when the time for the annual election arrives it will be decided whether or not it is wished to centralize the influence of the two organizations by consolidation under the name of the Hillsboro Chamber of Commerce.

These matters were definitely decided at a joint membership meeting of the Board of Trade and the Young Men's Booster club, called by President L. J. Thompson, of the former, and President C. G. Denman of the latter, and held in the offices of the Evening Mirror at 8 o'clock last night.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W. Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

CELEBRATION OF ANNIVERSARY

To Be Held in Central Christian Church Today—Historical Sketch
by Miss Ada Thompson.

The date of the founding of the Rebekah degree of Odd Fellowship falling upon Saturday this year, the formal celebration of the event was deferred until today. This was done for the better convenience of the housewives among the members of the local lodge. The celebration today will be confined to a religious observance, the festival features being postponed until Friday, when a "Tacky Party" and public entertainment will be given at Moose hall under the auspices of Waco Rebekah lodge I. O. O. F.

The feature of the religious services, which will be held in Central Christian church at 11 o'clock this morning, will be the special sermon to be preached by Rev. F. N. Calvin, pastor of the church, by special request of the lodge.

The Three Links.
To those who are unfamiliar with the order, its aims and objects, the following sketch, dealing with the origin and history of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the founding of the Rebekah degree, written for the Morning News by Miss Ada Thompson, vice grand, will be peculiarly interesting at this time:

"The three links, the emblem of the Odd Fellows, directs our attention to the greatest fraternal organization in existence, the largest numerically, the strongest financially and unlimited in its power for good among mankind.

"At the Seven Stars Inn, Baltimore, Md., April 26, 1819, Thomas Widley instituted Washington Lodge No. 1, with five charter members. This was the first lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows in America. From this has developed over fifty-five grand lodges in this country and Canada, fifteen grand lodges in foreign countries (these are composed of 12,792 subordinate lodges), fifty-two grand encampments, formed out of 2,789 encampments; forty Rebekah assemblies, composed of 5,769 Rebekah degrees; and thirty patriarchal militant departments, made up of 250 cantons.

The Rebekah Degree.
"The Rebekah degree was added by Schuyler Colfax of Indiana in 1850. Its special objects and purposes are to care for the old and poor Odd Fellows and their wives and particularly for the education and support of the orphans; to visit the sick and relieve the distressed, meanwhile cultivating social and fraternal relations among the families of Odd Fellows.

"The three links represent three great principles—friendship, love and truth, which are vital forces in the world of today, so interwoven and intermingled that it is difficult to determine where the one ends and the other begins. Only three links! Yet they are long enough to encircle our country, to reach from the sunny plains of Mexico to the cold, barren mountains of Alaska.

To Make Men Better.
"The teachings of Odd Fellowship, as illustrated by the Rebekah degree, serve to make men and women better, because they inculcate the principles of benevolence and charity, of fraternity and humanity. We are commanded to visit the sick and relieve the distressed, bury the dead and educate the orphan, than which no greater humanitarian ethics were ever written in history or enacted into statutes.

"An institution that represents such beneficent principles, counsels and commands elevating doctrines, encourages high and lofty motives, must ever be a dominant factor in the universal uplift of mankind. It must and does command the profound respect, the sincere and expressed gratitude of a civilized world. Its purposes are as broad as the needs of humanity and its work will endure as long as troubles beset our pathway and sorrow and sadness wring tears from our hearts.

"The foundation upon which this beneficent world is built, is the spirit of a true Rebekah, is that of religion made practical. To see a service of humanity that needs to be done, and to do it without hope of human praise or reward, is as high an aim as could inspire a noble heart.

Basic Principles.
"The basic principles of the Rebekah degree have existed since before the time of Christ, hence are not new, but founded upon the teachings of the Bible.

"It is not so much what we get out of the order that especially benefits us, as it is what we put into it of personal effort and sacrifice. No person can visit the sick and minister to the suffering without being benefited thereby. The flowers carried to the sick room is not only a cause of pleasure to the sufferer, but rebounds in the form of a blessing on the giver, and when we see the practical work of the order illustrated in the home where the elderly brother or sister may pass their declining years comfortably and happily, or the little orphan babe taken from the cold world, protected from the rough storms of life, educated and given every assistance and encouragement to develop all the good there is within that young mind, we feel a just and worthy pride in our work."

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR

MISS PEARL WARNER

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Warner, North Twelfth street, entertained from 4 to 8 p. m., in honor of the twelfth birthday of their daughter, Pearl. Decorations were pink and white. There were present Misses Alga McLane, Nina Mae Williams, Lois Sappington, Joycelin Woody, Inez Pouncey, Emily Wortham, Ruth Huber, Francis Carlson, Dot Pouncey, Ethel Johnson, Gladys Gohagan and Lucile Eligh; Marvin Baugh, Cecil Baugh, Benny French, Cliff Williams, Job Sappington, Charlie Slaughter and Gordon Thompson.

P. M'S. ARRANGE FOR BIG MEET

REPRESENTATIVES OF 3,000 TEX.
AS POSTMASTERS COM-PLETE PROGRAM.

GATHER BY THE GULF OCT. 10

Two Organizations to Act in Union.
Double Convention Will Be Memorable Affair.

At a meeting of the executive committee with President J. L. Vaughan of the Texas Postmasters' association, and A. S. Davis, president of the Texas Postmasters' League, McGregor, Texas, organizations that represent the postmasters of all classes, three thousand in all, outlined programs for the next meeting of the associations to be held at Galveston October 10 to 13. Representatives of the postmaster general will certainly be present for the reason that the usual time of the meetings in May was changed to October at the request of departmental heads so that they might be present.

Interest Widespread.
Secretaries of the associations report a very live interest on the part of these associations, and the unique quaintness of a meeting there in the fall of the year is apparently very attractive. There will be from all indications the largest attendance of any association meetings.

Hearty Welcome Awaits.
Postmaster Griffin at Galveston has assured the officers of the associations that special efforts are being made for the entertainment of the visiting postmasters. The postmasters will meet and hold their sessions at the Hotel Galveston. Opportunities will be afforded the postmasters to observe how mail is handled for the great camps of soldiers near Galveston and on the ships in near-by waters.

Get Leave of Absence.
General Burleson has granted six days' leave of absence for all Texas postmasters to attend these association meetings. It is now the policy and has been for years for postmasters to attend these meetings and good of the service follows every association meeting. Department officials recommend that all postmasters attend conventions. Special rates on all railroads of one and one-third fare have been granted. The program outlined today is as follows:

Friday, October 10, 9:30 a. m.—Convention called to order by President J. L. Vaughan.

Song, "America".....

Address of Welcome.....

Reply to Address of Welcome.....

INTERURBAN TRANSPORTATION.

Must Pay Gross Receipts Tax, but Not Franchise.

Austin, Tex., Sept. 20.—The department of state was advised that, under the new law, the interstate transportation of passengers or freight or both, are required to pay the gross receipt tax imposed by law, and being transportation companies are expressly exempt from the payment of the franchise tax imposed by Chapter 3, Title 126.

Becker in Serious Condition.

Temple, Tex., Sept. 20.—August Becker, one of the victims of the cutting affray that occurred at Bartlett Wednesday night of the present week, and who is a patient at a local surgical institution, continues to lie in a dangerous condition and his recovery is still a matter of grave doubt. It has been ascertained that the knife which inflicted the injury penetrated the lung. Becker was local deputy sheriff at Bartlett.

Sells Soudan Grass Seed.

Temple, Tex., Sept. 20.—Paul Montgomery of Belton has sold 250 pounds of Soudan grass seed to a development company at Monte Cristo, Tex., at the rate of 15 per pound. Mr. Montgomery raised 500 pounds of the seed on a tract containing one and one-half acres of land. In addition to the money derived from the sale of the seed, which profited him at the rate of $32 per acre, he has left a splendid supply of fodder.

For work in connection with the navy France has ordered thirty-five more dirigible balloons.

TRAINING SCHOOL CONDITIONS

Probation Officer Kenney Found Great Improver at Gatesville.

T. G. Kenney, who is in charge of the Harris County Training school for boys, located at Seabrook, was in the city yesterday evening, guest of Frank E. Burkhalter and Rev. E. E. Ingram, probation officer of the county, who recently visited the Seabrook school.

Mr. Kenney has been to Gatesville to take a couple of boys, and was on his way back to Houston. He visited the Gatesville school a year ago, speaking last night he said: "I am very much impressed with Superintendent Eddins of the Gatesville school and believe that he is making good progress in the work he has undertaken. When I was at Gatesville a year ago the conditions were all out of tune with modern conditions. Now I find it much better. The place is cleaner, there is more attention being given to sanitary methods and there is a better spirit among the boys there."

Many Boys on Parole.

At the Seabrook school there are seventy-eight boys. Altogether Mr. Kenney has had 140 boys under his control, but many are now out on parole.

"Harris county has just recently purchased a site consisting of 130 acres on the lake and there will be a $50,000 building erected at once and this building will be equipped. We teach each boy a trade, in addition to requiring that he take studies in letters."

Before coming to Texas Mr. Kenney was engaged in juvenile work in Minnesota. He is an earnest worker in the juvenile cause.

NEW INSURANCE COMPANY.

Attorney General Files Charter for Cotton States Mutual.

Austin, Sept. 20.—The attorney general has approved and the commission of insurance filed the charter of the Cotton States Mutual Fire Insurance company of Dallas. Purpose: To write fire, storm, lightning and hail insurance.

Directors: F. A. Blevins, J. E. Blevins, J. W. Gough, H. E. Gordon, D. T. Colquhoun, E. F. Woodland, Dallas; E. A. Strickland, Georgetown; M. V. and W. G. Brown, St. Louis, Mo.

Deepest Well, 3,000 Feet.

Charles E. Moore stated yesterday that the rig for the well in the South Bosque oil field had been erected, and that drilling would probably start Tuesday. This well, if necessary, will be carried to a depth of 3,000 feet, which will be the deepest in the county.

From the Land of Confusion.

Three travelers from the Celestial kingdom journeyed into Waco yesterday afternoon, tarried awhile and departed. They were registered as follows: Kaufman County: Common School district, number 6, $2,500 five-tens, five per cent; Bishop Independent school district $75,000 twenty-fours, fives; Limestone common school district 35 and 34 with $4,000 and $1,500 respectively, ten-twenty, fives.

Approves Bond Issues.

Austin, Sept. 20.—The attorney general today approved the following bond issues: Kaufman County: Common School district, number 6, $2,500 five-tens, five per cent; Bishop Independent school district $75,000 twenty-fours, fives; Limestone common school district 35 and 34 with $4,000 and $1,500 respectively, ten-twenty, fives.

FEEL HEADACHY, DIZZY, BILIOUS?
CLEAN YOUR LIVER! A DIME A BOX

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a stick stomach. Poisonous, constipated matter, gases and bile generated in the bowels, instead of being carried out of the system, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, sickening headache. Cascarets will remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the bile and constipation poison move on and out of the bowels. One taken tonight straightens you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular, and make you feel bright and cheerful for months. Tomorrow is the feast day of St. Thomas of Villanova, the glory of the Spanish church in the sixteenth century, was born A. D. 1550. He was educated at Alcala under the eye of Cardinal Ximenes, and professed philosophy there and at Salamanca. A thirst for the science of the saints led him after two years to resign his duties and to enter the house of the Austin friars in the latter city. It was in the chair of truth that the fervor of his charity became first publicly known. Crucifix in hand he would fall into rapture, exclaiming, "Christian, look here, look here!" Charles V. listened to him as an oracle, and appointed him archbishop of Valencia. On being led to his throne in church, he pushed the silken cushions aside, and with tears kissed the ground. His first visit was to the prison, the sum with which the chapter presented him for his palace was devoted to the public hospital. As a child he had given his meal to the poor, and two-thirds of his episcopal revenues were now annually spent in alms. He daily fed five hundred needy persons, brought up himself the orphanage of the city, and sheltered the neglected foundlings with a mother's care. During his eleven years episcopate not one poor maiden was married without an alms from the saint. Spurred by his example, the rich and the selfish became liberal and generous, and when, on the nativity of our Lady, A. D. 1565, St. Thomas came to die, he was well nigh the only poor man in his see.

In a recent novel by a popular writer allusion is made to the chapel of Our Lady of Grace at Honfleur. It is not generally known and it may be news to a great many who read the novel to know that the origin of this sanctuary dates from the time of Robert the Magnificent, father of William the Conqueror. In 1064 he was on the sea, sailing in the direction of England, when a violent storm arose in the channel, whereupon he made a promise that if his ship escaped the danger of the tempest, and that he returned safely to his kingdom, he would build three chapels in honor of Our Blessed Lady. One of these three chapels was that of Our Lady of Grace. The sanctuary, built on a high cliff, remained standing until 1538, when an earthquake knocked down the cliff and the chapel, except a portion of the wall and the statue of the Blessed Virgin on the altar. For many years the faithful assembled to pray in the ruins until a new chapel was erected at a short distance from the former one. Pilgrims, especially sailors, flocked to this sanctuary. The revolution pillaged the chapel, but did not destroy it, and when more peaceful days came the faithful returned to the shrine with the same faith as heretofore.

MARRIAGE AID TO LONGEVITY.

Chicago Health Department Makes Conclusive Showing.

Chicago.—Married persons live longer than those who are single, according to statistics gathered by Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, of the public health department, and made public today. He has figured out that the death rate of Chicago bachelors is 29.5 per cent, higher than that of married men. The mortality rate of unmarried women is 40 per cent higher than that of married women, he says.

The death rate for bachelors in Chicago is 19.8 per 1000, while the rate for married men is 15.3. The rate of single women is 14.3, while that of those who marry is only 10.3.

PARCEL POST GROWS

WASHINGTON OFFICIALS EXPECT TO EXTEND THE SERVICE IN NEAR FUTURE.

People Pleased With It and the Receipts Indicate It Is Being Patronized Generally.

At Washington officials of the post-office department profess to have no doubt whatever as to the future of the parcel post system. They admit that it is by no means perfect yet, but point to the fact that while the express companies have been long in existence the parcel post has been in operation only seven months, and hence in view of this fact it is not fair to draw a comparison between the two services. They admit that the parcel post service must be developed and improved, but at the same time say this must be done cautiously and with care in view of the immensity of the problem and the responsibility entailed. Details must be worked out through continued and extended operation.

Without answering the express companies directly the post office department officials point out that the parcel post was not established for the purpose of favoring any one particular shippers of produce or other perishable goods, manufacturers, mail order concerns, farmers or others. The government's object, they say, is to serve the entire public to the best of its ability and without distinction.

That the parcel post has met with the approval and support of the public, they declare, is proved by the fact that since its establishment the number of parcels handled by post offices of the country has averaged 3.5 for each inhabitant of the United States. The estimated total of parcels passing through the postoffices during January, the first month of the new system's operation, was $3,730,826. In February there was an increase of 23.91 per cent, the estimated number of parcels being 47,994,318.

In March it was estimated that 61,674,778 parcels passed through the postoffices, an increase over February of 28.29 per cent. In April the estimated total was 59,546,678 parcels, a decrease of 3.28 per cent compared with the previous month, it is true, but the total of $3,646,478 in April as against the $3,730,826 carried in January showed an increase of 2.14 per cent, which growth the postoffice department heads assert is plain proof of the popularity of the system with the public.

With April the monthly reports of the experimental stage of the undertaking ended. The approach of hot weather, vacation time and the end of spring saving served to mark a falling off of parcel post business, a similar falling off being experienced by the express companies, as might be expected. The sum of $7,076,517.18 was paid by shippers for parcel post postage from January 1 to June 30.

Postmaster Morgan of New York is an enthusiastic believer in the parcel post and confident that its future is full of promise to the people of this country.

The proposed increase in weight limit, the reduction in postage rates and other advantages which the government hopes to put in operation can not but be a matter of gratification to the public," he said. "The postoffice department has already done a very great deal to improve the service since its establishment and has correspondingly increased the popularity of the system."

"As an illustration and taking the business at the general postoffice station in New York alone, a total of 17,054,549 parcels have been handled between January 1 and April 30, while 2,652,258 parcel post packages have been delivered from the general postoffice proper, not counting any of the branch postoffices in the city. The total number of insured parcel post packages delivered was 154,885, and the total number received at the general postoffice only during the six months mentioned was 22,111.

"This is a fair indication of how favorably the parcel post system has been received in New York. That the increase will be very great cannot be doubted."

Presbyterian.

CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. E. E. Ingram, Pastor.
(Twelfth and Washington.)

It is the plan of Pastor E. E. Ingram to make today long to be remembered in the annals of the Central Presbyterian church. The day is to be filled with religious treats. The morning service marks the beginning of a two weeks' revival, with services every night at 7:30. For the music during the time Mrs. J. W. Carroll has been engaged for the piano, and Mrs. J. G. Wren to lead in the singing and do the solo work. A song treat is in store for this service in the solo of Miss Stella Lacy, who will sing "Day of Peace."

The following is the program arranged for the night service at 7:30 o'clock:
Prelude
Doxology
Invocation
Responsive Reading—Psalm 134
 Gloria Patri
Scripture Lesson
Quartette, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," by Shelley
Mr. Gaylord N. Bebout, Dr. S. M. Meyers, Mrs. Gaylord N. Bebout and Mrs. J. G. Wren.

Postlude
Mrs. J. W. Carroll will preside at the piano. Dr. S. M. Meyers, choir director.

SECOND PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. J. J. Grier, Pastor.

Pastor Grier will preach at both of the services of the day. The evening sermon will be at 7:30 o'clock. The Christian Endeavor meets at 6:30 p. m. T. A. Warren, president. Sunday school at 9:30 a. m. S. Y. Lee, superintendent.

Christian Science.

"Matter" will be the subject of the lesson of the Christian Science church for the morning service in the auditorium of the public library at 11 o'clock. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a. m. Wednesday evening testimonial services each week at 8 o'clock. The reading room is on the eighteenth floor of the Amicable building. Hours 11 to 1 and 4 to 7 o'clock.

Methodist.

HERRING AVENUE.

Rev. W. T. Gray, Pastor.

Rev. R. A. Burroughs, manager of the Methodist Orphanage, will speak at the morning hour. Pastor Gray will preach at 7 p. m. on the theme "Our Father's Bread." Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all visitors by the pastor.

MORROW STREET.

Rev. A. D. Porter, Pastor.
(Eleventh and Morrow.)

"The Church" will be Pastor Porter's theme for the morning hour. This sermon is the first in a series of doctrinal discourses. A musical service will precede a special sermon for the young people at the night service. Rev. E. Rosemond Standford will preach on a theme in keeping with the nature of the young people's rally planned for the hour. Mrs. Schuh will sing at the morning hour and the Misses Bruyere will sing at the evening service. A hearty welcome is assured to all visitors.

CLAY STREET.

Rev. W. M. Bowden, Pastor.

The revival meetings of the church are still in progress. J. J. Creed, pastor of the Elm Street Methodist church, has been assisting in conducting the services. Both sermons today will be preached by Pastor Bowden. Special music at both hours. An effort is being made to increase the Sunday school attendance to the 200 mark. The school meets promptly at 9:30 a. m. Mr. Moore, superintendent. As a result of the revival now in progress there have been several conversions and donations and fourteen accessions to the church membership. Visitors are cordially invited to attend all services.

ELM STREET.

Rev. J. J. Creed, Pastor.
(On the East Side.)

There will be a special missionary rally at the night service. The program will consist of a catechism on missionary and benevolent enterprises of the church, talks on allied subjects and appropriate musical selections. The subject of the program is "What Are We Doing for Others?" "Centrifugal and Centripetal Forces in the Spiritual World" will be Pastor Creed's subject for the morning sermon.

The program arranged for the evening is as follows:
"Tense discussions and answers of these questions: Where is the Waco district personnel? When and where does the next grand conference meet? How many bishops have we and who are they? How many church schools have we and which are the leading ones in Texas? Who are superan-

Duchess of Roxburghe Has Heir for Fortune

This is the story which came from London with the announcement of the birth of a baby boy to the Duchess of Roxburghe, who was Miss May Wilson Goelet, with a fortune of about $20,000,000 when she married the duke in 1903.

In announcing the birth of an heir today the Duke of Roxburghe admitted that his wife had practised a form of eugenics, and said that they both attributed the sex of the new born infant to this fact.

Desiring a male heir to the dukedom, the duchess went to Vienna in 1909 and there consulted Dr. Leopold Schenck, a noted scientist, who is a world-famous authority on embryology. He is connected with the University of Vienna and has given much study to the parental determination of sex.

Dr. Schenck advised the duchess and she followed his instructions. The principal thing that he told her to do in order to insure a male child was to avoid all food containing sugar. She did so, according to the duke, and bore a son.

AUSTIN AVENUE.

Rev. Hubert D. Knickerbocker, Pastor.
(Twelfth and Austin.)

"God's Harvest Counter" will be the subject of the sermon at 11 a. m. As a unique object lesson illustration the pastor will "sell" silver 25 cent pieces for 10 cents each. A special fall rally of the membership is expected at this service. At night the third in the series on "Modern Prophets and Their Messages" will be given. The subject will be "George Stuart, the Apostle of Laughter and Tears." Night services now begin at 7:45 o'clock.

A STATEMENT.

Because of the absence of one of its editors in New York, and also because sickness in his home and added duties made it impossible for the other editor to do all the work incident to its publication, there has appeared no issue of Life Stories for the past two months.

It is the purpose of the editors to publish the magazine regularly from now on, and to do their utmost to furnish every subscriber twelve issues for his dollar. The next number will appear soon, much of the material being now in the hands of the printer. We trust this statement will be satisfactory, and that the magazine will merit the encouragement and support of all.

GIRLS! CLEAN AND BEAUTIFY HAIR NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Stop washing hair! Try this! Make it glossy, soft and abundant.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, lustre and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, invigorates the scalp, stops itching and falling hair. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful. You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

GRAND JURY NOT READY TO REPORT

INVESTIGATING BODY ADJOURNS OVER TO TOMORROW AT WEEK'S END.

100 WITNESSES SUMMONED

They Will Come from Falls County to Testify in Murder Case, Court News.

After being in session for five days, the grand jury in the Fifty-Fourth District court recessed at noon yesterday until Monday morning. As was expected, the work of the body was not made public. It is understood, however, that fifteen or twenty true bills have been returned, and that the grand jury may make public a few bills early this week.

County Attorney John McNamara has been closeted with the investigating body during the past week. A great many cases await the attention of the grand jury.

Cloud of Witnesses. A severance has been obtained in the trial of Bud Reed and Bounce Beaty, charged with the murder of John Richey. Reed will be placed on trial Monday morning in the Fifty-Fourth district court. The case was brought to this county from Falls county on a change of venue. A special venire of seventy-five men in each case has been drawn from which to obtain a jury. Also about 100 witnesses from Falls county are expected to attend the trial. County Attorney Frank Offert of that county will conduct the prosecution. He will be assisted by County Attorney John McNamara's office.

Richey was killed on the public road near Marlin and his head was severed from the body. Three arrests were made in connection with the crime. Buss Wyres was convicted at the last term of court at Marlin, and is now in jail in Waco, pending an appeal. Reed and Beaty are also in jail here, where they have been since Wyres' trial.

Addleman Motion Overruled. Judge Richard L. Munroe, in the Fifty-Fourth District court, yesterday morning overruled the motion of Addleman to dissolve a temporary injunction obtained by W. L. Terry, straining Addleman from ousting Terry from a building occupied by the Dixie theater on Austin street. The case has been set down for trial October 16. As it is set at a time when the criminal trial will docket, it is on trial, there is a strong probability that it will be deferred to a later date. The motion of Addleman to dissolve the injunction was argued Friday and taken under consideration by Judge Munroe. Yesterday morning he rendered his verdict. This action compels the trial of the case in court.

Neighbor Causes Arrest. Charged with disturbing the peace and sought on a citation which will be served giving notice that his wife has brought action for divorce. B. E. Walsh was arrested at Axtell yesterday. Constable Leslie Stegall left last night to return the man to Waco. The complaint against Walsh was filed by Mrs. A. R. Cooper, and charges that Walsh disturbed the peace by abusing his wife. This action was followed by suit for divorce brought by Florence Walsh, in which cruel and abusive treatment is alleged. Mrs. Walsh also asks custody of their children, Lillie and Wilburn.

Verdict for Plaintiff. Verdict in favor of the plaintiff was returned by Justice Harvey M. Richey yesterday in the forcible detainer suit of Mollie Adams vs. Bell Pence. Suit was for possession of house at 404 North Second street.

Suits Against Railroad. Two suits for alleged personal injuries, both asking damages in the sum of $5,000, were filed against the International and Great Northern Railroad company yesterday in the Nineteenth District court. The suits grew out of an accident at a railroad crossing on the Waco-Marlin road. According to the petitions a wagon was struck by a train of the defendant company June 28. Adeline Byrd sued the Great Northern on the allegation that as a result of the train striking the wagon her husband, John Byrd, received injuries from which he died two days later. Herbert Wood brought suit on the allegation that he was injured in the accident. The Byrds and Wood were returning from Waco to the Byrd farm near Marlin when the accident occurred.

RAILROAD AS AN EDUCATOR

I. & G. N. Will Send Lecturers Into the County Schools to Instruct Pupils.

A whirlwind campaign in the county schools is being planned for November by the industrial and agricultural department of the International and Great Northern railroad, with the assistance of County Superintendent R. L. Abbott.

R. P. Elrod, assistant agricultural and industrial agent of the I. & G. N., was in the city yesterday working on the plans for the campaign. It is proposed to visit fifteen or twenty of the county schools adjacent to the I. & G. N. and deliver lectures on seed selection and other agricultural subjects, discuss boys' and girls' hog clubs and beef clubs, and in other ways bring before the children and their parents those subjects that will be interesting. Mr. Elrod will be accompanied on the trip by Prof. Abbott, Col. C. C. French of Fort Worth and William Connolly of the Texas Department of Agriculture. He hopes to interest the business men of Waco in the project, having the merchants here represented on the trip through the county. It is believed that such a campaign will interest the parents as well as the children and will result in better agriculture.

TAUGHT SCHOOL IN NEW YORK. NOW SHE WILL SING AT LA SCALA

From teaching in a public school in New York to singing prima donna roles in grand opera is an achievement which has just been accomplished by Miss Laya Machat, a young woman who left her home in Bath Beach, Brooklyn, two years ago to finish her studies in vocal music in Italy. Her brother has received a letter from her telling of signing a contract with La Scala Theatre in Milan, where she will sing prima donna roles in grand opera for the season of 1913 and 1914, beginning next December. Miss Machat attended public schools in Brooklyn after her arrival from Russia with her parents when a child and made a specialty of physical culture for years, with the result that she was appointed to teach swimming and athletics in the New York public schools.

Millionaire's Heir Dislike His Yacht—Fastest in the World

The sons of M. C. D. Borden, the late milk millionaire, don't want anything to do with his fast steam yacht, Sovereign, the speediest pleasure yacht in the world. While hundreds and thousands of Americans have gone speed mad, these young men, in possession of a vessel which can sail "faster around any other like craft, have made up their minds that they will stick to business.

Mr. Borden was determined to have a boat which could make forty miles an hour. Shortly after she was finished he died, and the vessel was among his assets. She cost $275,000, and the milk millionaire didn't believe he had wasted a cent. The Sovereign is 156 feet long with a beam of 16 1/2 feet.

HILLSBORO BOOSTERS READY

Uniforms Bought and Program Arranged for Interurban Celebration.

Hillsboro, Sept. 20.—Factory cost on a $2.50 linen duster, uniform hats with a "Hillsboro" band about them, shrill voiced musical instruments, callopes, all complete for the small sum of $175, chanted A. L. Blanchard, chairman of the committee arranging for the celebration of the interurban opening of the Board of Trade and Young Men's Booster club last evening.

The supply is now on hand and Mr. Blanchard is taking orders. Mr. Blanchard is also preparing to have a practice drill on the square before the date of the celebration, so that every fellow may know his place and not be playing false-to-staccato on his callopes when the man next to him is in a high mesmerism.

President Thompson announced that the cars from Waxahachie and points north and from Waco and intermediate points would reach this city at exactly 2 o'clock, remaining here until 3 o'clock, at which time the stockholders, uniformed members of the Board of Trade and Booster club and the Third Regiment band, will go to pay Waco a visit. This was the information which Mr. Thompson received.

Philadelphia, Sept. 20.—A two-bagger by Barry in the eighth inning enabled Philadelphia to defeat Detroit today 4 to 2. With two men out in the home half of the eighth, the bases were filled on Baker's single, a safe sent by McInnis and a pass to Walsh. Barry then hit a low line which struck Loosen on the leg and went for a two-bagger.

Catcher McKee's hand was split by a foul tip for the first time.

The Athletics and the Detroit play two games on Monday. If the league leaders win both they will clinch the pennant.

Washington, 8, St. Louis 3. Washington, Sept. 20.—By winning today while Cleveland was losing, Washington brought about a tie for second place in the American league race. Each club has won 52 and lost 61 games and has a percentage of .573. Washington got a two-run lead in the first inning today with four successive singles off Baumgardner, coupled with a wild pitch and sacrifice fly. Washington scored in the sixth when Engle went to pieces, but Washington tied it up, then won in the seventh when McInnis singled, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Modler's Texas leaguer. Modler and Miller scored subsequently.

New York 7, Cleveland 3. New York, Sept. 20.—New York had little trouble in defeating Cleveland here today 7 to 3. New York clinched the victory in the first inning, scoring all its runs off Greig before there was a man out. Greig, who was the only pitcher faced the crack Cleveland left-hander, fumbled relieved Greig and pitched shut ball for the rest of the game. "Cal" pitched his usual effective game for New York, holding the visitors to seven scattered hits.

Pittsburgh 1-3, Brooklyn 0-4. Pittsburgh, Sept. 20.—Pittsburgh won the first game 1 to 0 and Brooklyn the second 4 to 3 in this afternoon's double header. In the first contest, Pittsburgh's batters lyned to four scattered hits, while Allen, who held Pittsburgh to six hits, lost out in the eighth, when Indian doubled and Viox singled for the winning run.

Duffy, a Pittsburgh recruit from Great Falls, Mont., and Brown, a Southern leaguer, started the game. Duffy was hit hard in the third and Brown was wild for Pittsburgh in the fourth. Cooper supplanted Duffy for Pittsburgh and Hagen took Brown's place after the fifth inning. Not a hit was made off Hagen in the four innings he worked. With Moran on third and two out in the seventh Cooper lost his game with a wild pitch.

Gilbert Britton, a young shortstop from the Houston club, took the place of Viox in the two games. He fielded brilliantly and hit the ball hard but could get none of them safe.

CHANGE IN RULINGS.

Commission Says Optional Agreement is Amended by New Law.

Cincinnati, Sept. 20.—The National Baseball Commission announced today that the rule of the commission prescribing the conditions under which an optional agreement will be approved and validated had been amended by the addition of the following paragraph:

"A purchased major league player who has participated in a game and been regularly relieved, however, he subject to draft in the year of his release regardless of the approved optional agreement."

The commission also construed the rule relating to the number of players on a major league club to mean that the club will not be required to include in its list of players a player who is so incapacitated by injury or illness that he is unable to render services.

Merkle Sued.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE GAME

More Lively Ball Has Increased the Sport and Made Better Scores Possible.

All over the country there has been a great deal of interest during the past week in the open golf tournament at the course of the Brookline Country club, in which the amateurs and professionals of the world participated. This interest extended to the membership of the Hauc Country club at Waco because of the large number who are now playing every day.

When Vardon and J. H. Taylor came to America for the national open in 1909 they easily outclassed the field of resident "pros," the pair in question finishing first and second respectively. They had nothing to fear from the Scotch and English golfers who had made America their home, while for the native born players, the present formidable trio—McDermott, McNamara and Michael J. Brady, were unheard of.

To what extent the game had advanced since then may be best gleaned by a peep into history, and if figures count for anything it is possible that frequent returns might have had a damaging effect on Vardon's reputation, as was the case with Hilton when, after his successes at Apawamis and the National Links in 1911, he met with quick reverses the following years. Vardon was at Wheaton with a seventy-two hole score of 313, two strokes better than Taylor, while David Bell, the third man, failed to get better than 323.

Those were the days when the old solid gutty ball still ruled supreme, and while a certain percentage of the subsequent reduction in scores must be attributed to the advent of the rubber ball, it is also a fact that the quality of golf has greatly improved. At Myopia in 1901 the totals of the leaders, the late Will Anderson and Alec Smith, who tied for first money, flew up to 311, but the difference was not made for by the difficult nature of the links.

Lively Balls Help.

With the livelier balls to help them, the golfers did much better at Garden City in 1902, when the painstaking Lawrence Auchincloss with four consecutive rounds, better than 30, won the title, his total of 307 being five strokes better than Stewart Gardner and Walter J. Travis, who were tied for second place. The tournament caused the professionals more worry than any tourney before or since, because of the prominence of Travis, who at this time stood practically in a class by himself among the amateurs.

Always a steady medal player, especially over his home course, Travis was rightly feared on that occasion, and the salaried brigade breathed easier when the "old man" got no more than second.

The following year at Battsford the open was made memorable because of the tie for first place between a dapper and old David Brown, who had won the open championship of Great Britain many years before. Starting the last round Anderson had a comfortable lead of one stroke on the native of Musselburgh, and all went well until Will hooked his drive to the woods at the short ninth. Before he could get clear several valuable strokes were wasted, with the result that he lost him a 9. Right after that Anderson learned that Brown had finished with a total of 307, and that it would be necessary to play practically par golf all the way in to tie. That is exactly what Anderson did. The following day he defeated Brown in the play, as he did Smith at Myopia.

All Anderson One Year.

There was nothing to it but Anderson the next year at Glen View, when the Scotch won with the total of 303, five shots better than Gilbert Nicholls, his closest rival. Back to difficult Myopia in 1905 Anderson won the open title for the fourth time, his total of 314 being two strokes less than Alec Smith's score.

The last names after knocking at the door so often, realized his ambition by winning the championship at Onwentsia in 1906. He had the distinction of being the first national open winner in America to get below 300 over the seventy-two hole score, and his score of 295 was seven strokes better than his brother Will, who got second. Will Smith, by the way, came up from Mexico to compete, as he has on numerous other occasions since.

BREAKS RECORD FOR LONG SWIM

SAMUEL RICHARDS

"The Battery to Sandy Hook in one tide," slogan of distance swimmers ever since Captain Matthew Webb made his ineffectual attempt nearly three decades ago, became an accomplished fact. Samuel Richards, the Boston amateur, performed the feat in eight hours and twelve minutes, and, not content with his success in arriving at his goal, he started back to the Manhattan shore and made an extra mile.

1907 Alec Ross won with 302. Alec Smith did not compete that year, having gone abroad to try for the British title. In 1908 the scene again shifted to Myopia, where a high wind and a course more difficult than ever so baffled the "pros" that at the end of the seventy-two hole struggle the best they had to show was a tie at 322 between Fred McLeod and Will Smith.

McLeod, that was the last time a high total got a contestant anywhere, for the following year at Englewood George Sargent made golfers the world over take notice by reeling off four exceptional rounds for a total of 290.

This meeting also marked the first big prominence on the part of the native born. Tom McNamara, starting with a fine 73 and supplementing this with a record round of 69 in the afternoon, easily led the field at the end of the first day. He had a 75 for his third round, which enabled him to start the last eighteen hole circuit with a two stroke lead over Sargent. It was here that the last named came along with a 71 and brushed the Irish-American aside. McNamara, however, finished second, four strokes away.

From Caddy Ranks.

In that tourney was a youngster from Merchantville, N. J., McDermott, who only recently had risen from the caddy ranks. He didn't attract any attention, finishing about fiftieth on the list with a score of 322, though then, as has been his wont ever since, he was not making any apologies for his game. A year later they were forced to take him seriously, for at the Philadelphia Cricket club McDermott finished in a triple tie with a total of 293, on the money. Alec Smith, with a 71, McDermott getting second money, his round of 75 leading the younger Smith by two strokes.

Out at Wheaton in 1911 McDermott again found himself mixed up in a triple deadlock, this time with M. J. Brady, another home boy, and G. O. Simpson. They all had totals of 307, but on the playoff McDermott won, scoring 80 as against 82 for Brady, who was three strokes better than Simpson. Thus after seventeen years an American had won the open title, and as if to prove further that McDermott was no fluke, the doughty homebred retained his title a year ago at Buffalo, returning a total of 294, two strokes better than McNamara.

McDermott, it is also worthy of mention that Brady tied with Alec Smith for third place, both making the seventy-two holes in 299.

HEARINGS CONTINUED

SENATE BANKING COMMITTEE TO INVITE DISCUSSION OF MEASURE.Frank T. Vanderlip Will Appear; Also Talbot of New York—Experts to Be Always Present.

Washington, Sept. 20.—The banking and currency committee of the senate prepared to continue its hearings on the administration currency bill as passed by the house today and decided to invite Frank T. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York to discuss the measure before the committee. Later Vice President Talbot of the same institution will be invited to appear.

The committee has decided to have in attendance an expert from the office of the comptroller of the currency to keep the committee straight on technical questions during the examination of witnesses in future.

Monday the committee will hear Samuel Untermyer, who as attorney for the Pujo sub-committee of the house banking and currency committee, which conducted the extensive money trust investigation of the last congress.

W. W. Flanagan of Montclair, N. J., was before the committee today. He approved the bill in principle, but suggested a number of amendments. His examination developed an inclination on the part of Senators Reed of Missouri and Hitchcock of Nebraska to question various provisions of the measure. Senator Hitchcock questioned the banker closely as to the possibility of the proposed federal reserve board expanding and contracting credit through the country to suit its political purposes and of the regional reserve banks exercising a baneful influence over member banks through the regulation of loans and discounts.

On the latter point Senator Reed asked several questions, indicating that he feared that the power conferred on the regional banks would enable them to dominate, not only the banks, but the industrial institutions in their districts. Mr. Flanagan said he expected no such evil results in operations of the bill.

QUIMET ADDS NAME TO LIST

and Ray, took occasion to apologize "in a slight way" as he put it, for the outbursts of cheering at inopportune times.

This was a delicate reference to a feature of today's play which is quite likely to be a subject of international comment by the golfing contingents of England and the United States. Several times today the gallery violated the ethics of the sport by cheering wildly whenever Quimet gained a point.

The same outbursts occurred yesterday, but Quimet was then playing with Geo. Sargent, who had no chance for first place. Today it was different, and these outbursts plainly annoyed both Ray and Vardon. Approaching the seventeenth hole, Ray deliberately halted a swing and refused to play until the cheering ceased. This action of the gallery had little or no effect on the result, but a number of golfers publicly stated their regret that cheering like that at boat races or football games should have occurred, although they realized and stated that it was impossible to check these outbursts of enthusiasm. It was exactly 10 o'clock when the trio tied up in the drizzle for the start. The fairways and greens were water-soaked and in many places churned to the consistency of muddy paste by the tramping of hundreds of feet. Overhead low-hanging clouds appeared to be part of the mist.

Rounds in Detail.

The following was the play in detail: First Hole—Quimet had the honor and drove off 220 yards down a lane of 2,000 persons. Vardon followed with the same distance and Ray five yards better. Vardon and Quimet were on the green in 3 and Ray in 4. Score—Quimet 5, Vardon 5, Ray 5.

Second Hole—After good drives, Vardon overplayed while Quimet and Ray were on the green in two. Quimet had a chance for a 3 while Ray rimmed the cup and missed the same figure. All made fours.

Third Hole—Ray pulled the second shot into the trees and was short of the green. He missed a 45-foot putt for a four and took one more than the others. Quimet and Vardon missed an easy 2.

Fourth Hole—Quimet pulled his drive, the ball going to the edge of the woods. Both Englishmen were wide.

John J. McGraw, Leader of New York Giants, Who Is Preparing for World's Series Contest

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants of the National League, is to have another chance to win the world's baseball championship, for there is but little doubt his club will take the pennant in the National league and meet the Athletics of Philadelphia, who will certainly win the American league flag. McGraw had a chance last year when he met the Boston Red Sox of the American league, and lost. He had a chance a year before that when Baker and his big bat were the chief cause of his losing the championship in the games with the Athletics. McGraw won eight years ago when the Giants beat the Athletics. So he has one world's championship to his credit. It is probable that most of the baseball experts this year will pick the Athletics to beat the Giants.

WACO'S POPULATION OVER 40,000; THE FIRST AUTHENTIC STATEMENT

Exact Figures Will Not Be Known Even to Enumerators Until Count Is Made in Houston—Book Will Be Off the Press About November 1.

The first authentic information concerning the result of the canvass of the city made by the enumerators employed by Polk & Co., publishers of the new city directory, was issued yesterday afternoon by F. B. York, who has been in charge of the directory work since George Hillis, district superintendent for the publishing house, left for Fort Worth to inaugurate the canvass for a new city directory in that town.

Exceeds 40,000.

Mr. York's estimate of the present population of Waco is approximately 40,000. The federal census taken in 1910 gave this city 26,425. While no exact figures upon which to base a precise calculation are available at this time it is estimated that in the last three years Waco has increased in population at the phenomenal rate of 50 per cent.

"We have not made the count," said Mr. York, "and no one knows exactly what the result of our canvass of the city will show. Therefore all announcements heretofore made as to the census of Waco giving statistics were based purely upon conjecture. No one in this office or connected with it has authorized any statement regarding the result of the work done by the enumerators."

Copy Is Shipped.

The new directory will be printed in Houston and we are this very hour shipping the copy to the printers. We believe we have got the name and number of every inhabitant of Waco. The work of the enumerators has been thorough, but just how many names and addresses we have compiled will not be known until the count is made by the men who edit the final copy.

and all the sheets are ready for the typesetters. It is safe to say, however, that the population of Waco will be shown to have increased at a marvelous rate since the federal census of 1910 was taken. I think a pretty safe estimate of the total would be about 40,000."

Larger Volume This Year.

Mr. York stated that the new directory to be published by Polk & Co., Detroit, will be considerably larger in volume than its predecessor. It will carry much miscellaneous information not carried in the old city directory. The publishing concern is the largest in America, having branch offices in New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Pittsburgh and practically every other large city between the Dominion of Canada and Mexico. The Waco 1911-12 directory was compiled and published by Morrison & Fourmy, which firm is interested in the concern that will publish the new directory. The ill health of Mr. Morrison was the reason the work was turned over this year to Polk & Co., Manager York explained.

At Work Since June.

The canvass of the city by the Polk & Co. enumerators began early in June and was completed last Friday. Compilation and classification of the data turned in by the force of enumerators was in progress in the local office while the men in quest of the names and addresses of the city's residents pursued their labors. This force of canvassers numbers from five to ten men. Manager York is confident that no place of habitation within the boundaries of the city was overlooked. He said that the new Waco directory would be printed, bound and ready for circulation about November 1.

Y. M. B. L. DATE IS FIXED GAZE CHARTER-WISE

PRESIDENT CRAWFORD DESIGNATES NOV. 11 FOR COTTON PALACE.

Committee Is Appointed, with J. J. Hutcheson as General Chairman. Will Surpass Previous Efforts.

President W. V. Crawford, of the Young Men's Business League, acting under instruction of the directors, has selected November 11 as Y. M. B. L. day at the Cotton Palace.

He has named J. J. Hutcheson as general chairman with power to subdivide his committee and appoint sub-chairmen for the various duties. The following will be the committee:

James Hays Quarles, Will Lacy, Sam Knight, Langdon Luedde, Frank Trau, S. S. Fleming, R. V. McClain, A. G. Steele and Frank Wells. Secretary Hagedorn will act with this committee.

This date, November 11, does not conflict with any other date, leaving the entire day to the Young Men's Business League. The organization has always made a big event of Y. M. B. L. day and it is proposed to out-do all past efforts to make this the greatest affair yet pulled off by the organization.

Chairman Hutcheson will call a meeting of his committee the first part of next week and plans will be outlined by the members and the various committees taken from this general committee will start to work on the details immediately. It is proposed to have the entire membership which now numbers upwards of 1,200, take part in the stunts to be arranged. The various Young Men's Business Leagues from over the state will be invited to send as many representatives from their organizations as possible.

Mission's New Management.

Pending the selection of a suitable worker to lead, the Downtown Mission will have the direct oversight of the board in control, the resignation of Rev. Mr. Boyles taking effect at once. Meetings at 2 p. m. today at the hall and every night this week. This work is fostered by all the churches in the city, and plans for the fall and winter are under advisement.

Marked progress in Alabama high schools is reported to the United States bureau of education. In 1909 there were fifty high schools, few of them with courses of more than three years in length; now there are 132 institutions doing high school work, all but fourteen of which have full four-year courses.

CITIZENS DISPLAY KEENER INTEREST AND MORE WIDE SPREAD.

Watch with Eager Anticipation for Developments This Week.

Interest in the city charter will be revived by the resumption of the meetings of the committee which has had charge of the writing of the organic law of the city.

Since the committee finished its work of revision, Judge Marshall Suratt, attorney for the committee, has been engaged in putting it in legal language. This work is now about completed, and there is to be a meeting held Tuesday night to discuss it. The following call has been issued by Col. A. R. McCollum, chairman:

"The members of the subcommittee on charter revision are requested to meet on Monday night, September 22, at 8 o'clock, in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the Amicable building. The purpose of this meeting is for final consideration of the charter, which has been framed, and all members of the subcommittee are earnestly requested to be present at the time and place named. It is probable that two or three meetings will be necessary in order to go over the charter thoroughly. A. R. McCOLLUM, Chairman of Committee."

BEGIN TICKET SALE

RIGGINS TESTIMONIAL BANQUET TO BE BRILLIANT AFFAIR.

Chairman Crawford of Campaign Committee Names Men Who Will Distribute Invitation Cards.

A three days' campaign for the sale of tickets to the banquet to be given as a testimonial to the enterprise and public spirit of J. W. Riggins, owner of the ten-story hotel now rising in the heart of Waco, by the Young Men's Business League and the Chamber of Commerce, will be begun next Tuesday. Frank Trau, general chairman of arrangements, yesterday afternoon announced his appointment of the working teams as follows:

Team No. 1—E. W. Marshall, captain; Charles Moore, James Riley, Tom Frimm and H. Bain.

Team No. 2—J. J. Powers, captain; F. E. McLarty, E. E. Ingram, T. A. Caulfield and Walton Taylor.

Team No. 3—Dr. J. J. Dean, captain; M. Kendrick, Ed Ainsworth, Pat Hopkins and Sam Hirschberg.

Team No. 4—Dr. W. B. Georgia, captain; J. Blair Gilmer, C. C. Beckley, E. R. Smith and M. B. Davis.

Team No. 5—Crate Dalton, captain; A. G. Steele, J. M. Clements, Chester Shumway and John Dollins.

The ticket distributors will meet at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and start on their canvass of the professional and business men, and other public spirited citizens, from that point. They will devote three days to the work. Citizens desiring tickets to the Riggins testimonial banquet, which will be held October 21, may secure them from any member of the teams named above or from Chairman Trau. The banquet will be one of the most brilliant affairs of the kind ever tendered to an individual citizen in this section.

the other should be free to propose to the girl whom they both loved.

This is not the only instance on record of a duel by avalanche. A few years ago two Italians, named Guetta and Soratto, decided to test fate in this manner, and also for the love of a woman.

For three mornings they tempted Nature, but nothing serious happened. On the fourth day Guetta was knocked down by a falling avalanche, but not much hurt. Then it was that their food supply gave out, and they returned home to get some more. By this time the police had come to hear of their strange duel and threatened them both with imprisonment. So the undaunted rivals settled their differences in another and less adventurous way. They drew lots for their lady love. Soratto won and after Guetta had left the village he was married to the girl of his choice.

Some years ago two determined rivals decided to fight a duel with dynamite. They arranged that each should sit on a barrel of dynamite to which a fuse was attached. Whichever fuse burned down first would, of course, have decided which was the winner. As luck would have it, however, both fuses went out some time before the dynamite was reached, and the rivals were so astonished at this unexpected happening that they made up their quarrel then and there.

A particularly terrible kind of duel was fought on one occasion in Mexico. The opponents were an Indian settler and a rich cattle-owner. The weapons chosen were butcher's knives, and it was settled that each combatant was to hold out his hand in turn to have one of his fingers cut off. The first to show the least sign of suffering pain was to have a bullet put through his heart by the other.

Instead, he showed them a pill-box containing four pills and informed them that while three of the pills were quite harmless, the fourth contained a poison which would instantly kill any one who swallowed it.

The rivals agreed that each should take a pill until one of the other drew the fatal pellet. The first two "draws" had no result, and then each duelist had another chance. The doctor made them swallow the remaining pills, simultaneously, and a moment or two later one of the combatants fell back in his last agony.

Another extraordinary method of settling a dispute was that hit upon by a doctor in America some years ago. Two of his friends had seriously quarreled, and told him that they had set their minds on a duel. He replied that if they would leave all the arrangements to him he would provide them with a novelty.

They submitted to be guided by him and on the day fixed for the encounter they made their appearance at the place agreed upon. The doctor was there before them, and, to their surprise, he had no weapons of any kind.

Parents Should Read This

Though it is An Advertisement Written for Dr. W. B. Georgia & Co., We Believe It Will Enlighten and Interest You.

That backwardness in school work is often due to eye strain is well known to the up-to-date educator, says the New York World.

It is claimed by some expert medical men that the majority of children who are rated as defective mentally, are not suffering from weakness of intellect, but from defective eyesight that can only be remedied by properly made glasses.

Many parents are misled in the belief that once a child begins wearing glasses that it means that the child's eyes become so accustomed to their use that they must wear glasses the rest of their natural born days.

A parent could make no greater mistake than to deprive the children from useful vision with glasses on this theory. Because ninety-nine times out of every hundred the errors of a child's eyes can be permanently corrected by the use of proper lenses. The time required to wear the glasses to accomplish these results is from one to three years, depending on the nature of the defects.

But suppose that the one child in a hundred had hyperopia (short eye ball) or myopia (long eye ball) that would necessitate the constant use of glasses throughout life, wouldn't it be far better to assist the child in growing and prevent more serious trouble, than to wait until the child has reached his or her majority and the eyes have become amblyopic, or possibly totally blind?

When you suspect a child of having eye strain the sooner you have the defects corrected by glasses, the sooner the child will have relief and the better it will be for his health and eyes.

To get the proper glasses you must consult a specialist who makes the eye a special study.

Dr. W. B. Georgia has been practicing optometry fourteen years, he has prescribed glasses for over 25,000 people living in all parts of the United States.

There is no guess work in his methods; you cannot make a mistake when you buy glasses for yourself or children from him.

Leopard Coat, Winter Decree of Fashion

This is the leopard-seal coat, one of the decrees of fashion for this winter. You must have some kind of a fur coat and if your taste runs that way you may have one which may be seen a long distance off. Paris and London will wear them, and New York is trying to get up courage enough. The bold and conspicuous effect of this yellow and black pelt is, however, somewhat toned down, by judicious combination with seal or skunk. Even so, leopard is very very gay, and can be worn with success only by exceedingly beautiful and chic women in company with gowns and accessories of dress bearing the hall mark of perfection. But since leopard

SENT FREE TO MEN A Most Pleading Remedy Given to Quickly Restore Lost Vitality.

A Free Trial Treatment Sent By Mail to All Who Write.

Free trial treatments of Enervia, a most pleasing remedy, are being mailed to all men who write to Dr. John S. Howell. So many who have battled for years against the mental and physical suffering of man weakness have written thanking him for the great benefit received, therefore, Dr. Howell has decided to send free trial treatments to all men who write. It is a home treatment and all who suffer with any form of weakness, resulting from youthful folly, premature loss of strength and memory, weak back, lack of vitality and confidence can now receive this strength-giving treatment at home.

The treatment has a peculiar grateful effect of warmth and seems to act directly to the desired location, promoting strength and development just where it is needed. It is given to relieve the ills and troubles that come from years of misuse of the natural functions, and has met with remarkable success, even in cases approaching advanced age. A request to John S. Howell, M. D., Suite 1205, Auditorium Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, stating that you desire one of his free trial packages, will be complied with promptly.

He is desirous of reaching that great class of men who are unable to leave home to be treated, and the free sample will enable them to see how easy it is to successfully treat man weakness when the proper remedies are employed. Dr. Howell makes no restrictions. Any man who writes will be sent a free sample and literature, carefully sealed in a plain package, so that you need have no fear of embarrassment or publicity. Readers are requested to write without delay.

WACO IS BAD LAND FOR VAGS

The Danger Sign Is Hung Out for "Gents of Leisure"—Must Skidoo.

Vagrancy has come to be a bugaboo in Waco. Far down the line and up the word has gone forth that Waco is a town to steer clear of, if one does not intend to walk the straight line. The vagrancy law is being enforced in Waco at the present time, probably more rigidly than ever before. Yesterday two convictions were obtained at the afternoon session of police court in which the defendants were accused of vagrancy. Harry Davis was fined $100 and Jeff Brown $25.

25 Nabbed in Two Weeks. Information comes to Chief of Police Hollis Barron that the vagrants are giving Waco a wide berth. "I heard yesterday from a well known traveler of the idlers' clan," said Chief Barron, "that the word has been passed among the hangers-on that Waco and Cleburne are two towns where the vagrant is not wanted. We are trying to clear Waco of this variety and from what I can learn of Cleburne the same effort is being made there."

At least twenty-five persons have been convicted of vagrancy in police court within the past two weeks and fines ranging from $100 to $10 have been assessed. In the main those convicted are not the regular bum and loafer, but are the dressed up "vags," who are said to be more of a menace than his lowly brother.

Editor Connelly of the Dispatch wondered whether foreign capital could be induced to build a hospital here, the Kinder Deughters, or some other similar organization.

Judge Porter Talks. District Judge Horton B. Porter declared that he did not believe Hillsboro needed to call upon foreigners to help build such an institution here. He felt certain that it was essentially a job for the home people.

He talked of the inconvenience and serious consequences which often follow of sending patients to distant cities for treatment. They do better under the treatment of the home physician, the danger of a railroad journey is eliminated, and they have their loved ones about them to buoy up their courage.

If hospitals built by the Kings' Daughters and the Sisters of Charity prove good business propositions, he declared it is all the more reason why a home product should be a success without the aid of assistance from the outside.

Dr. Connelly stated that he had merely made the suggestion and that he did not wish to be understood as favoring the plan unless at last resort.

Dr. Davis, at the request of President Thompson, then outlined the technical details with reference to the equipment and operation of a hospital and showed that profit will be made on the money expended by the stockholders, proving that it will be no free offering to secure stock in the plant.

HILLSBORO WANTS A SANITARIUM

BOARD OF TRADE AND YOUNG MEN'S BOOSTER CLUB DISCUSS JOINTLY.

COMMITTEE IS APPOINTED

Will Start Immediately on Campaign Plans—is to Be Strictly Local Proposition.

Hillsboro, Tex., Sept. 20.—A feature of the joint session of the membership of the board of trade and Young Men's Booster club, held in the offices of the Evening Mirror last evening, was passage of a resolution endorsing a plan of campaign for the erection of a sanitarium in Hillsboro to cost not less than $20,000.

The plan has been advocated for some time, and means the divorcing of the institution from the control of any single member or set of members of the medical fraternity, thereby giving it the united support of all the physicians in the county, and by stock subscriptions, which, it is declared, will be interest bearing, making the business men of the city directly interested in its successful operation.

Committee Has Charge. The committee named this morning by President C. G. Denman, of the Young Men's club, and President L. J. Thompson of the Board of Trade, is composed of A. W. Young, T. J. McMillan, M. W. Lovell, W. I. Satterfield, Mark Wightman, was directed last night to "take charge of the sanitarium matter and put it across in accordance with the plans outlined at the meeting."

These plans contemplate the organization of a stock company, shares being of par value of $100, one-fifth of the stock to be paid in cash and the balance in yearly installments.

Estimate of the money necessary for the building and equipment of the hospital was based upon the estimates from two architects as to the cost of a fire proof building, and of physicians as to the cost of equipping the institution, taking into consideration the manner in which numerous other like institutions are equipped in the state.

Stockholders are to control the institution and the members of the committee are to see that it is properly distributed. The stockholders will choose their own board of directors, and this board of directors will have direct control of the plant. The operation of the institution will be under the direction of a trained nurse, who will be known as superintendent.

To Get Stock Now. The work of getting together the necessary stock subscriptions will begin at once. Arrangements have been made for the handling by a local trust company of all notes in connection with the building of the structure.

Practically every one of the thirty men present last night urged the speedy erection of the hospital on the lines J. C. Thompson heartily endorsed the movement and urged that some action be taken.

Mayor M. W. Lovell declared that every man in the city would admit the need of a sanitarium here.

County Judge J. D. Stephenson favored the plan.

Editor Connelly of the Dispatch wondered whether foreign capital could be induced to build a hospital here, the Kinder Deughters, or some other similar organization.

Judge Porter Talks. District Judge Horton B. Porter declared that he did not believe Hillsboro needed to call upon foreigners to help build such an institution here. He felt certain that it was essentially a job for the home people.

He talked of the inconvenience and serious consequences which often follow of sending patients to distant cities for treatment. They do better under the treatment of the home physician, the danger of a railroad journey is eliminated, and they have their loved ones about them to buoy up their courage.

If hospitals built by the Kings' Daughters and the Sisters of Charity prove good business propositions, he declared it is all the more reason why a home product should be a success without the aid of assistance from the outside.

Dr. Connelly stated that he had merely made the suggestion and that he did not wish to be understood as favoring the plan unless at last resort.

Dr. Davis, at the request of President Thompson, then outlined the technical details with reference to the equipment and operation of a hospital and showed that profit will be made on the money expended by the stockholders, proving that it will be no free offering to secure stock in the plant.

Personal Mention. Edward E. Robinson, fire inspector, reached this city yesterday. He will be here for about a month examining into the character of the risks of the companies with which he is connected.

Mrs. J. W. Brightwell has returned from Canadian, Texas, where she spent the summer with her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Saunders.

Billy Hammond will make a business trip to Bryan tomorrow.

O. K. Stetler will make a trip to Temple by automobile today, accompanied by his wife.

Miss Virginia Paul has returned from a visit of several months with relatives in the east. Most of Miss Paul's visit was spent in Washington.

She was with the family of K. B. Price.

J. R. Downs and Guy Taylor are expected home from Colorado Tuesday. They have been in the mountains on a vacation trip since the first of the summer.

S. M. Panick, district bank examiner, has returned to Waco and will make his headquarters for the fall and winter.

E. C. Kelly returned from Colorado yesterday. Mr. Kelly made the trip by automobile, and was due to reach Waco several days ago, but the weather of last week held him at Amarillo.

MR. JOHN N. WATKINS.
Mr. John N. Watkins, 3421 A Crittenden St., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"Among all the greatly advertised medicines for kidney and bladder trouble, there is nothing which equals Peruna. I suffered for several years with this trouble, spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicine and all to no purpose, until I took Peruna.

"One bottle did me more good than all the others put together, as they only poisoned my system. Peruna cured me. I used it for four months before a complete cure was accomplished, but am truly grateful to you. The least I can do in return is to acknowledge the merits of Peruna."

A Remarkable Recovery.

The Women of Texas

What They Are Doing in Various Phases of Their Work

Reported Weekly in The Waco Morning News by Miss Kate Friend, Editor, 525 Terrace Row, Waco, Texas.

THE WEEKLY LETTER FROM STATE PRESIDENT

The request has come to your president from the editor of the General Federation Magazine that I send to her at once the names of all of the members of the individual clubs that hold membership in the Federation.

I therefore ask each club president through this letter to be good enough to send to Mrs. Harriet Bishop Waters, editor-in-chief, General Federation Magazine, 25 West 42nd street, New York City, N. Y., a year book from her club, for the club roster being incorporated in said book will give Mrs. Waters the desired information, and if you will be kind enough to do this at once the information will reach her with little delay, and your president will be very grateful to you for doing her this favor.

Be sure to send to your president and to your corresponding secretary, Mrs. James B. Cunningham, 1816 North Flores, San Antonio, a copy of your year book, for it is very important that we have the names of the newly elected officers of the clubs. If your book is not ready, will you not be good enough to instruct your secretary to write on a post card the names of your town, your club, your president and your corresponding secretary, and mail same to your president, 521 West Main street, San Antonio, and to your state corresponding secretary without delay.

There is important literature that must reach you at once, and it is imperative that we have the correct names of these club officers.

Letter From The Hague.

Dear friends, you remember that I appointed two delegates to attend the Peace congress at The Hague. Unfortunately neither could attend. I sent their names to Prince Henry, Duke of Mecklenburg, chairman of the executive committee of the congress, and the other day the mail brought the following reply, written in crude English as follows, for I want you to read it just as I received it, and to show you that the action of the Texas women is appreciated.

It is dated "The Hague," 19th August, 1913, and reads: "Dear Mrs. Hertzberg: I received your letter of August 2 and in answering that letter I have the honour to send you a programme of our congress and from this programme you will see that it is impossible to take part already in the congress, because it is beginning just today and so it will be impossible for your delegates to come in 'The Hague'."

"I am very sorry it has gone in this way and that we could not appear earlier on your interesting in this movement. We have taken your letter as an appreciate mark of sympathy and I am quite ready to send you all from the congress you want to receive."

Through the work and enthusiasm of Mrs. Christensen, our state chairman on peace committee, the movement is assuming large proportions in our state. Member of the legislature, Representative Haney of Henrietta, has now espoused the cause, and only good can be the outcome of this interest.

I hope that every club has set aside one day in the year to be devoted to the consideration of this tremendous subject.

Federation Song.

At Fort Worth it was voted that all future annual conventions of the Federation be closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," this by the entire audience. What a tremendous volume of song we shall have at Corpus Christi, for everybody will, of course, join in, for knowing the words of this song gives one the confidence that is lacking when one is not acquainted with the words. Am I not right?

Federation Motto.

The contest for a suitable motto for the Federation is creating a great deal of interest. I have received several letters from residents of other states asking if they might enter the contest. I will say here that only members of Texas clubs have the right to compete. You know, of course, that the winning motto will be awarded ten dollars.

Federation Contests.

Then, too, do not forget the Federation song contest. This, too, will be interesting. Also the contest in original literary work. Results of these contests will be announced at the convention, Corpus Christi, November 11-14, and I hope to see many, many of you dear women there, for they are making great preparations for us, and we are going to have such a good time. I understand that one of the entertainments planned is a fish and oyster fry. This will indeed be a treat.

Always faithfully yours,
MRS. ELI HERTZBERG,
Pres. T. F. W. C.
San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 18, 1913.

IS THIS YOUR CONDITION? CAN YOU RELIEVE IT?

"There is a Tyler ordinance that all grocers shall screen with netting all fruits and vegetables and other open foods, and shall raise the same above the sidewalks. If not done, the vegetables serve as stopping places for dogs. Men spit on the floor, rub in with the foot, dries, and touches exposed cheese, smoked meats and so forth."

The above is an extract from an excellent paper read by Mrs. Elizabeth Herndon Potter before her home club. But, is it Tyler alone? Is not this condition more or less in every Texas town? Is it not in order for every club to give this matter attention, and to take action which shall better the condition?

SHORTER HOURS FOR WOMEN TAKE EFFECT WITH OCTOBER

The club women worked arduously for the law to regulate the working hours for the Texas women. This law is now on the statute books and goes into effect with the first day of October. In Waco the merchants whom the law affects have already held conference. It is to be hoped that the same has been done in other places. If it has not, it is in order for the local club to call attention to the fact that such must be done. It is not all for the club women to "mother" a bill. They must follow it up after it becomes a law, so that the benefits will be experienced. The Waco merchants first of all agreed to close earlier on Saturday nights. No woman will be worked longer than ten hours each day. Shifts of women will be arranged. Some will come to work at one hour, others an hour later, and so on. Those who come first are relieved first in the afternoon. A longer or noon hour will be allowed. It was the general sense that Waco will obey the law to the letter.

Is it not a good idea for a copy of this law and give the same to the working women? That is, if no effort is made to conform in the local town. Many a working woman does not know such legal relief has come to her.

MORE SCHOOL CLUBS NEEDED. WILL THEY BE FORMED?

Now that the schools are resuming, the necessity of mothers' clubs (we still do not feel the necessity of including the fathers, for their is an empty honor) is more felt. Why not make this the first work of each organized club in the town where there is no school club?

THE BROWNWOOD CLUB SENDS NOTE OF INTEREST

Mrs. J. H. Grove writes from her club, the Twentieth Century, of Brownwood, that a dual study is to be taken this season, "The English and American Novel," with "General and American government." This shows that these women, while pursuing culture, are to go deeper into the soul of things and seek to understand the principles, not only of our own country's government, but of the country from which we sprang. Mrs. Grove writes, too, that the club hopes to present speakers from other parts of the state along the line of study.

A PEACE PROGRAM GIVEN BY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS

Mrs. Christensen, chairman of the peace committee for the Federation, is arousing much interest along her line of endeavor. In her own town, Wichita Falls, she awarded medals to the boy and the girl whose papers on Peace were judged the best. A number of visitors heard the students' program. The judges were Dr. Peacock, a well known instructor of Texas, who in presenting the medals, took occasion to say that what he had heard had decided him to hold a Peace contest in his own school of boys ever year. The program presented music in peace, theme alternating the reading of the papers in the contest.

THE WOMEN ARE PLEASED AT TARIFF ON FEATHERS

Mrs. William Gerhardt of Corpus Christi, chairman of the Humane committee, was energetic in her efforts to turn sentiment on the tariff revision in the question of importation of Texas plumage. The pressure proved sufficiently strong from all parts of the country, so the milliners will find the importation too expensive to be profitable. This means the life of the plumage bird.

PURE FOOD DEPARTMENT RECOGNIZES CLUB WOMEN

All club women throughout Texas watched with keen interest the exciting race between Gainesville and Brownwood for first place in the Clean Town contest. Twice, if we have it right, there was a tie, and the third time, Gainesville lost, only because of over confidence in the men. It seems that a new court house had been built, and the women depended upon its newness to be cleanly. They lost by a paltry point. In this clean town work the women's club of Gainesville took the lead. It is an amusing story to hear them tell of how, in their own buggies, they carted off under cover of darkness, the tin cans and other menaces to the town, when they heard the inspector had arrived. The Gainesville women did not get the prize, but they now have public recognition. One of their members, Mrs. Elizabeth Darwin, a leader in the clean-up, has been appointed assistant in the state pure food and drug department. This is recognition of Texas women as well as of a Gainesville woman.

THE YEAR BOOK HAS COME FROM BEAUMONT CLUB

Among the new year books distributed in advance of the opening year, comes that of the Woman's Reading club of Beaumont. This is a program of unusual interest, since it is in this club that the incoming president of the Fourth district holds her membership. This is a department club, the consolidation of the several clubs organized independently in Beaumont. A decided distinction for the Woman's Reading club is that it has its own club house, the result of women's work. Three departments are so far formed, Literature, Shakespeare and Music. As with all department clubs, there is union upon any public measure promoted by the club as a whole. The history as a club is, organized in 1895, joined the State Federation in 1899, the General Federation in 1901, was chartered to transact business in 1905, and re-organized into a department club in 1908. This in itself speaks the advancement of this body of women. The president for the year of 1913-1914 is Mrs. John W. Mackey. The club membership is active, honorary and associate. Each department has its chairman, vice chairman and secretary-treasurer. Each department meets three times a month, the fourth being the general session of the club. The department of literature will study the national dramas. These programs are interspersed with reservations for broader topics, such as the schools, the child especially. The Shakespeare department will study three plays, Richard the Third, Henry the Eighth, and Troilus and Cressida. The music department has three topics: First, the evolution of music and musical instruments; second, the origin and development of the opera and the oratorio; third, representative American women composers. This department will give a complimentary recital.

During the year each department prepares a program for one of the general meetings.

This club numbers about one hundred members.

One program is worth the publication in that it should be observed by every club in Texas. That is, the idea should be applied by each club to its home town. This is:

A DEPARTURE IS NOTED IN CLUB EFFORT

What next for the club women? The latest united is a western club which has organized a department to teach young women to ride horseback. We thought art, music, literature, philanthropy, eugenics, domestic science, and many other branches had come into club life, but we were not prepared for this. At first it seems irrelevant to the club purpose. But wait just a moment. Why not the club reach out for the interest of the young woman who, drawn to a club, may make the valued member in the hereafter?

SOME NOTES GLEANED FROM THE STATE CLUBS

Among the letters received, not for publication, it is evident that club activity came with the first refreshing breath. Daily the women are notifying others of their club plans. Letters are exchanging rapidly among all the organizations looking toward resumption of activity. Down in San Antonio there is planning for the state convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy. This comes first in the new year. Mrs. Mable Mussey Bates of San Antonio, with the Mesdames W. E. Spell and J. W. Downs, of Waco, who have the program about ready. The illness and absence from home of the state historian, Mrs. Barrett, of Huntsville, has retarded a few details which makes the publication of the program still deferred. Mrs. Muse, who is chairman of the program for the club women, has already made an informal report for the Morning News. Mrs. Henry Fall has announced the order of Miss Julia Lathrop's library, and the several towns are making ready to hear this distinguished woman. Mrs. Harry Hyman, as president of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is marshalling her forces for the session in November. In the meantime the local chapters are electing their delegates. So it is the town literally for the women of Texas to get busy.

Down in Corpus Christi the report comes all is interest over entertaining the club women. In her weekly letter this morning Mrs. Hertzberg announces that a fish fry and oyster roast will be one of the entertainments. This reminds of the wonderful variety in Texas. In Beaumont the Federation was shown the wonderful city of oil wells. Out in El Paso there was the genuine Mexican lunch and music. San Angelo gave the breeze of the West. Fort Worth had the inspection of the mammoth packeries. San Antonio drove to the missions. Truly, Texas is a wonderful state!

The Waco women are in line with their Cotton Palace work. Doubtless the women of Dallas are doing the same. While these are not permanently organized endeavors, they are a part of what the Texas women are doing for the promotion of public benefit.

Among the individual clubs, much is noted for this early season. In Reagan and out in Plainview the women are organizing new study clubs.

In Marlin the sanitation of the town is engaging attention.

In Llano and in Gatesville, both unfederated clubs, Shakespeare is to be resumed at once.

Hearne is to begin regular session with the first of October. The play is Antony and Cleopatra.

Out in the little West Texas town of Asperment an unfederated club is beginning Antony and Cleopatra.

The Shakespeare club in Cleburne is making ready for Twelfth Night as a late season play.

The Merry Wives of Peccos are beginning a half year with the abstruse Hamlet.

Mrs. R. F. Eads is the incoming president of the Marshall Shakespeare. Her club will study Merry Wives.

Whitesboro will leave Shakespeare for a year with Browning's Colombe's Birthday and Milton's Paradise Lost.

Out at Cooper Mrs. J. F. Henslee writes of making ready for the beginning of Julius Caesar.

Elgin, Mount Vernon, Granbury, Liberty, the Fort Worth Shakespeare, Flatonia, Seymour, Kaufman, Big Springs, are all ready with their programs. The most of these are to have Shakespeare. Big Springs takes Browning's Colombe's Birthday. Elgin has a course on Myths and Myth Makers. Seymour is to study the Twelve Great World Pictures.

Brownfield, out in West Texas, is busy with a program, which is not yet definite.

Shiner is flourishing in membership. This club studies Taming of the Shrew.

These are clubs heard from by the editor of this department. Their activity is but the reflection of what is going on throughout the state.

Bad News.

Excitement is oftentimes the cause of queer remarks as well as the cause of strange telegrams, says Harper's Weekly.

A man who had been one of the passengers of a vessel which had been widely circulated as lost was rescued almost by a miracle. On arriving at a place from which he could send a telegram he forwarded the following dispatch to his partner:

"I am saved. Try to break it gently to my wife."

A Strong Attraction.

A lawyer is observed running rapidly along a country road, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. He is recognized by his forensic voice and his bulging brow.

"Whither away, brother?" cries a partner in the profession. "Do not stop me," replies the hurrying man. "They have caught an American lunatic across the border and his friends are opening a bar!"

And at once the second lawyer began running, too.

RESOLUTIONS OF
BAR ASSOCIATIONARE PRESENTED TO MRS. MARY MILLS BAKER BY COM-MITTEE.

COURT COMMITTEES NAMED

High Tribute Is Paid to the Deceased Lawyer, Waller S. Baker, by Associates.

Resolutions of regret on the recent death of Hon. Waller S. Baker, adopted by the Waco Bar association at a meeting held Wednesday morning, were presented to the widow of the deceased attorney yesterday. The presentation was made by a committee composed of attorneys who had known Mr. Baker through his lifetime. Judge W. H. Jenkins as chairman of the committee presented the resolutions to Mrs. Mary Mills Baker. The resolutions were lengthy and contained a sincere expression of regret at the death of the Waco jurist.

Aside from the committee who made the presentation to Mrs. Baker, other chairmen of committees were named as follows to present the resolutions to the various courts: Nineteenth District court, Judge W. H. Jenkins; Fifty-Fourth District court, R. H. Rogers; county court, S. P. Ross; state supreme court, W. M. Slesper; court of civil appeals, J. E. Yantis; court of criminal appeals, J. W. Taylor Sr.; federal court, C. A. Boynton.

The resolutions were as follows:
Waco, Tex., Sept. 16, 1913.
To the Hon. John W. Davis, President of the McLennan County Bar Association.

Your committee appointed to present resolutions in memory of our brother, Waller S. Baker, beg leave to offer the following:

Waller S. Baker was born at Lexington, Kentucky, on the 26th day of March, 1855. He came with his parents to Texas in 1858 and settled in McLennan county, Texas, where he continued to reside to the time of his death. He was educated in Waco university, from which institution he graduated with the class of 1875. After his graduation he entered the law office of Gen. Thomas Harrison as a law student, was thereafter in 1877 admitted to the bar, and on the 9th day of September, A. D. 1913, he took his place in the "silent halls of death."

If these recitations were all that could be said of our brother we would turn away from his grave without a tear or a sign and the clouds would cover his memory as well as his mortal frame. But this is not all. In the years that came to him he has built a character, a good character, a great character, and character never dies. The body perishes, but the character lives on. Death can not hide it, the grave can not hide it, men can not forget or ignore it, and God crowns with honor a good character.

Your committee approaches with diffidence the duty of giving expression to the sentiments of this body, and its own, on the life and character of our brother. To do him justice and yet not be fulsome, to be fair to him and not apparently exceed the limits of moderation, is a task which calls for such wisdom and discrimination in statement that we fear to undertake it.

Remarkable Man.

Mr. Baker was a remarkable man. At whatever angle he is viewed he is equally admirable. His varied characteristics, acting as checks and balances reacting one upon another, made him so well rounded and symmetrical in his mental and moral proportions

The Waco Co.

J. T. Davis, President. J. Lee Davis, Sec.
W. I. McReynolds, V.-P. and Gen. Mgr.

that to the casual observer he did not appear as massive as he really was. With his courage, his fierce love of the mastery, his faith in himself and his unyielding fidelity to his convictions, he would have been a tyrant to be dreaded, but over against these characteristics was arrayed a gentleness that was almost womanly, a broad, exhaustless charity for his fellow man and a keen appreciation of the rights of his neighbor and of his obligations to him. These opposite characteristics, reacting one upon the other, wrought out that strong harmonious, symmetrical character the like of which we shall scarcely see again.

He was one of the most unselfish of men. The night was never too dark or the day too hot or cold for him to serve a friend, and he had that rarer quality of serving those who had no claim on his friendship other than that they were human beings and in need of help. Could all his deeds of charity to the needy, of kindness to the stricken and of helpfulness to the struggling be written, it would make an astonishing record. He was especially the friend of the struggling young man. His cultured home was always open to him and within its hospitable precincts many, very many, of this class received encouragement and inspiration that helped them to conquer life's battles.

As a lawyer Mr. Baker easily ranked with the ablest in our state. With him the profession of law was not a mere means of a livelihood, that was only an incident. It was not a business, but a great and noble profession set for the defense of right and the attainment of justice by and through legal methods. And hence his conduct as an attorney in his office and in the court room was always on a high plane. He never sought an unjust advantage, never asked a ruling of the court he did not believe to be in the interest of justice, and never forgot the honor due to the court or lowered his own dignity as its officer. He was a strong adversary. No man ever met him at the bar or on the hustings that did not recognize him as a foe-man worthy of his steel. He always fought in the open, gave blow for blow, asked no quarter, and fearlessly stood for what he believed to be right. He never went into the trial of a case unprepared, he knew his own side and that of his adversary. He never suffered a surprise. Never was there a fairer adversary, seldom one harder to overcome. Yet our brother made no enemies. When the smoke of the conflict cleared away the heat and acrimony passed with it, and there was not a corner in his great, loving, manly heart where a corroding spark of malice could hide itself. Mr. Baker's ideals as a lawyer were high and he counted not the cost to himself in measuring up toward them. Determining when a young man to make a great lawyer of himself, he never for one moment swerved from his purpose. Gifted with a rugged constitution and a vast capacity for labor, he taxed both to the limit of endurance to compass his ambition, and how well he succeeded the bench and bar of Texas know. Though burdened with a large practice, he never ceased to study and hence to grow, and when death claimed him, his mind was still fresh and active and strong as in his early manhood, but he did not go till he had attained his ambition, so it might be truthfully written on his tombstone, "Here lies a great lawyer."

Mr. Baker had the bearing and appearance of an aristocrat, but his sympathies were always with the masses. The glamour of wealth and place and power had no charm for him. He could have had high office, but he would not. His chosen place was in the ranks with the people and he was always ready to fight their battles and help to bear their burdens. He was fair in his estimate of wealth and just in his judgment as to its rights, but in his thinking, the wealth accumulated by oppression and wrongdoing was stolen property. Neither wealth nor poverty were factors in determining the worth of a man, what he was and not what he had was the test of the man.

This hasty and imperfect sketch of our brother's well rounded, helpful, noble life, would be sadly marred if your committee could not leave in this enduring form, the testimony that Mr. Baker was a Christian. A little more than a year ago in this city, in the presence of a vast concourse of his friends and neighbors, he publicly declared his faith in Jesus Christ as his Savior, and today as we lay his mortal remains away, that good confession throws a glorious light back over his noble life and illumines the dark portals of the grave with the hope of a blessed resurrection.

In view of such a life.
Resolved first: That the bar of Texas has lost one of its most distinguished and able members, the state a wise, patriotic citizen, this community a noble and loyal neighbor, and humanity an unselfish friend.

Resolved second: That we tender to the bereaved wife of our brother our sincere sympathy in this hour of her great sorrow and wish for her that sustaining grace that can only come from our Father in Heaven.

Resolved third: That a copy hereof be presented to our several courts of record and to the city press for publication, and that a copy be spread at large on our minutes, and a copy be conveyed by a committee of this association to the wife of our deceased brother.

Respectfully submitted,

HIS FARM TO SLUM BOYS.

A Michigan Man Gives Chicago Lads "A Chance."

(Chicago Inter-Ocean.)
Twenty-five Chicago boys—children of the city's slums—who have longed for a chance to live in the open among the horses, cattle and chickens, are to have a real farm of their own.

The twenty-five boys who are starting a regular "back to the soil movement" are representatives of the Chicago Boys' club.

R. E. Jennings, the owner of a well stocked farm near Paw Paw, Mich., came to the city at the time "The World in Chicago" was being given in the Coliseum. He saw some of the boys of the Chicago Boys' club and became interested in them. He visited the congested districts on the North and West sides and saw where the boys live, and remarked that they "did not have much of a chance."

He returned to his farm and kept thinking of the boys in the slums of Chicago. He then wrote to J. H. Witter, superintendent of the Boys' club, offering his well stocked farm of ninety-seven acres to the club. The farm is given to the boys without cost for a period of from three to five years and for a longer period if the experiments prove a success.

Mr. Witter at once accepted the offer and Gill Ogden, a retired farmer and a worker among the boys, has been selected to take charge. It is the plan to keep twenty-five boys on the farm constantly. Here they will be taught the care of horses, cattle, chickens and to do farm chores, so that after leaving they will be able to hold a place working for any farmer. As soon as one set of lads learn the work they will be given positions and other boys sent to the "farm school."

Mr. Witter is confident that the "farm school" will be a great success and that it will be the means of saving many boys from the bad influences of the city.

This is the only photograph taken of the actual arrest of William Traversa Jerome, former district attorney of New York county, who went as special deputy attorney general of the state to Canada to try to bring back Harry Thaw. Jerome was accused of gambling. He did play penny ante on his dress suit case with a few newspaper men while sitting in his automobile. The constable who arrested Jerome was not going to take any chances. He wound his hand about the collar of the lawyer's coat as if he were afraid the victim would break and run. Jerome was calm enough, as the picture shows, to smoke his usual cigarette.

TO MOVE A WHOLE TOWN.

Cardiff, Ill., Abandoned Because of Fatal Coal Gas.

(Kankakee, Ill.) Dispatch.

Two men have bought the mining town of Cardiff, at the west end of Kankakee county. The purchase includes more than 85 buildings, store, icehouse, a big tower and 77 dwelling houses.

The purchase was made from the Cardiff Coal company of Chicago, and work will be started soon in the removal of the buildings to Kankakee, practically removing the entire town and leaving an abandoned field where stood a prosperous community. The town was built by the Indiana, Illinois & Iowa railroad in 1900, when Theodore P. Shonts was its president. It is now owned by the New York Central system and is known as the Chicago, Indiana & Southern railroad.

The Cardiff mine was then sunk, operated for a few years and later abandoned on account of coal gas, which killed a number of miners, whose bodies are still in the mine. In the purchase there is 1,250,000 feet of lumber, and the buildings will be refashioned into modern homes in the outlying districts.

Of the 77 dwellings but nine are as small as four-room cottages.

October 1, building 50x145 on Washington street, now occupied by Alexander Livery Stable. Commission to any agent securing satisfactory tenant, N. M. Gay, both phones.

HAY RICKS IN FLIGHT.

Remarkable Phenomenon Said to Have Been Witnessed.
(London Chronicle.)

A strange phenomenon, said to have been seen by a party of people walking on the Strathblane road, close to the Glasgow Corporation's Mugdock reservoir, Milngavie, is reported with all seriousness and circumstance by the Glasgow Herald.

"They witnessed," says the Herald, "the remarkable sight of a rick of hay, weighing some hundredweights, rising in the air in front of them."

"When it had reached a certain altitude the stack burst, and the hay was blown in all directions. There was nothing in the atmospheric conditions or on the spot to indicate the reason for the strange happening."

Noticing an account of the incident in the Glasgow Evening Times, Mr. John McLuckie, manager of Ganderloch colliery, Larkhall, writes to that paper describing a similar incident in a hayfield adjacent to the colliery office. "The farmer, Mr. Struthers, Alexander Kidd, and others were standing at the smithy door about 1:15 p. m. The heat was very great at the time and there was no wind. Strange to say, without any visible warning a coil of hay was suddenly taken up into the air in a whirling manner to a height of probably 400 feet or there by. Just when it seemed to be at its greatest height it began to spread out in the air and fell to the ground.

"Since that date I have on two occasions witnessed similar phenomena, not with hay, but with dust which was heaped on the roadside, and which was suddenly whirled into the air in a body, notwithstanding that there was no wind at the time. The cloud of dust remained combined until it reached a height of 30 or 40 feet. It then spread out somewhat suddenly and fell to the ground. All these incidents happened about 1 o'clock in the day, when the heat was great. The hay lifted in the air would weigh several hundredweights."

JOHN BURNS IS MILITARY LOVER

ON HIS VACATION DAYS HE GOES TO ENCAMPMENT AND JOINS MARCH.

SOLDIERS ALL ADMIRE HIM

Would Like to See Him Secretary for War—Is Out of Sympathy With Social Reforms.

London, Sept. 20.—"Why not not John Burns made secretary of war?" is a question British soldiers will ask. Whenever the head of the board of works wants recreation he goes into the country to some military encampment and marches a few miles with any detachment of soldiers that happens to be on the move, consequently the soldiers all know him and would like him at the head of the war department.

John Burns is a great walker. Twenty miles a day is relaxation from work for him. He is very much in evidence at all the Aldershot maneuvers, and he frequently joins some band of Territorials on the march, and then after a day, or an afternoon of tramping in the country, takes a train back to London.

Apart from his fondness for walking with soldiers, and a passion for attending fires and advising the firemen about their work, John Burns is in these days the least conspicuous member of the liberal cabinet. He, who in his former incarnation of labor agitator loved nothing more than to raise his voice in denunciation of the crimes of capitalists, seldom gets upon his feet in parliament. Some say that this is because he is out of sympathy with the advanced social reforms of the government, and with home rule. Certainly he is out of sympathy with his old time "pals" in the ranks of labor. They cannot overlook the fact that he attended in knee breeches and gold braided coat. And they never fail to remind him, since he has been drawing a minister's salary of £25,000, that he once declared it was impossible for any man to earn more than $10,000 a year.

Japs Get Torpedoes.
The new Japanese battle cruiser Kongo, which has just sailed from Plymouth for home, is taking with her forty torpedoes of a new and secret design. These torpedoes, a twenty-one inch weapon officially known as the V. L. are as great an improvement upon the British admiralty's Harcourt weapon as that torpedo was upon its cold air predecessors. Both are propelled by compressed air, but while the Harcourt had a range of 3000 yards, the V. L. can travel from 10,000 to 12,000 yards at a speed of 48 knots.

The trials of the Japanese super-weapon were made under the personal supervision of the officers of the Kongo, and the tests were carried on with the greatest secrecy. They are said to have been highly satisfactory.

In a few weeks the company manufacturing this new weapon will begin on a large order for delivery to the United States navy.

Puts Ghost to Flight.
An obstreperous ghost that has annoyed the residents of Ashford, in Leicestershire, for more than thirty years, has been solemnly "laid" by the rector, the Rev. F. A. Gage Hall, according to published accounts. Arrived in cassock and surplice the rector went into the haunted room and, standing on a stool, he departed "in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost," in accordance with the ancient tradition.

The rectory is an old-fashioned rambling building, which has in its past been the residence of a family of "quality," and the scene of many tragic deeds. The tale that the building was haunted has been a cherished conviction with servants, and some visitors claim to have experienced happenings which could not be attributed to natural agencies.

The Rev. C. H. Strudwick, vicar of Whetstone, a neighboring Leicestershire parish, slept for several nights in the house. He relates that on the first occasion he was alarmed by the small hours of the morning by a violent tugging at his bed clothes. He held on tightly but the clothes were pulled off, and when he lighted a candle the door was still locked and there was no visible explanation of the mystery. The sister-in-law of the rector suffered a similar experience. The rector says that the place has been reputed to be haunted as long as he can remember, but since the exorcism the ghosts have not manifested themselves in any form.

PURCHASE WASHINGTON HOME.

Ancestral Estate in England to Be Presented to America.

London, Sept. 20.—George Washington of Nashville, Tenn., a lineal descendant of one of President Washington's brothers, is visiting Sulgrave Manor, the ancestral home of the Washington family.

An option has been secured on the manor, which will be purchased by the British committee for the celebration of a Hundred Years of Peace, as a lasting memorial of the occasion. It is said that £15,000 is needed to complete the purchase of the property, and while Joseph G. Butler, of Youngstown, Ohio, was here to unveil the Ohio panel of the Pilgrims monument at Southampton, he offered to raise $10,000 of the amount on his return to America.

The British committee hopes to raise the full amount in England and thus make the presentation of the ancestral Washington home to the American people one of the graceful acts of the celebration.

APPLES A CURE FOR LOVE?

Thus Saith a Cooking Teacher Out in Colorado.

"Plenty of oranges will cure drunkenness," said Mrs. Romine, instructor in domestic science, at the Clay County Teachers' Institute. She added that fruit juices are the best germ destroyers—that pineapple juice will cure tonsillitis; that lemon juice destroys the typhoid germ; that grape juice will assist in the cure of the grip and apples will cure stomach trouble, bad temper and love.

Mrs. Romine put up peaches and apples and prepared jellies on a gasoline stove fire before the teachers as she outlined a model domestic science lesson.

SMALLPOX GERM HAS BEEN FOUND

BERLIN PHYSICIAN HAS SUCCEEDED IN ISOLATING PROTOZOAN.

TO GET VACCINE DIRECT

Important Discovery Will Be Useful in the Treatment of the Disease, Is the Claim.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—The germ of smallpox, a protozoan so infinitesimal that it has passed through the minutest filters and escaped the trained gaze of microscopists for decades, has been finally discovered by Dr. Walter Fornef, staff physician at the Kaiser Wilhelm academy.

Dr. Fornef claims not only to have discovered the germ, but to be able to propagate it. This means that it will henceforth not be necessary to inoculate a calf or cow with smallpox virus in order to secure lymph for vaccination, and consequently that a pure culture can be secured. The lymph won by present methods contains numerous bacteria which must be exterminated before it can be used for vaccination. What further Dr. Fornef's discovery may mean cannot yet be told, but it opens the way for experiments along hitherto unknown lines in the treatment of smallpox.

Apart from the possibility that Dr. Fornef's discovery may result in new methods of treating smallpox, it is important in that it will make possible the preparation of a pure vaccine virus which may lessen the ill results sometimes following vaccinations, and thus deprive the German anti-vaccinationists, whose number is already very considerable and steadily increasing, of much ammunition. The German law requires the vaccination of all children in their first year and again in the twelfth, and is very rigorously enforced.

Prophecy of a Queen.

Recent events in the Balkans have brought to mind the wise prophecy of a queen, nearly thirty years ago, which prevented uncle and nephew from being arrayed against each other in the war just closed by the treaty of Bucharest.

In 1879, the Bulgarians, having finally thrown off the Turkish yoke, set out to choose a ruler. Among the candidates for the Bulgarian throne was Prince Waldemar of Denmark, then but twenty-one years old. The choice finally fell upon Prince Alexander of Battenberg.

Alexander abdicated seven years later and the Bulgarian government began negotiations with the Danish royal family to secure Waldemar as king. The negotiations came to naught through the energetic opposition of the Queen of Denmark. "The nationality and the interests of the Greeks and the Bulgarians," she said, "are so diametrically opposed that a lasting understanding between them is impossible. Hence, it could happen that the two brothers, one from Athens (King George, eldest brother of Waldemar), and one from Sofia, would be compelled to become enemies and to wage war upon each other. It is for us to prevent this terrible possibility with all the means at our command. Our son in Athens shares our view."

Hunting Gophers for Soldiers.

The efforts of the Prussian and Saxon ministers of war to secure the co-operation of chambers of commerce in obtaining places in business for retired army officers, concerning which reference was made in these dispatches some time ago, continues to excite the opposition and indignation of business organizations in Germany.

In the circulars sent out by the ministers, commercial interests see not only a campaign to crowd regular business men out of lines of promotion, but also a decided reflection on business life. They resent the cool assumption that a man who has been found not good enough for the higher commands in the army is, nevertheless, fully competent to occupy a responsible business position. The Senior Merchants' Guild of Berlin has adopted a condemnatory set of resolutions, in which it is pointed out that few retired officers could, at their age, acquire the theoretical and practical knowledge required of them, and that they are, as a rule, no longer able to adapt themselves to a new calling. Only in a few branches of manufacturing, in which engineer and artillery officers can utilize knowledge acquired in their military service, does the Guild see any prospect of success.

In answer to the contention of the ministers that such officers are especially fitted for positions of trust entailing the management of men, the guild points out that full technical or special knowledge is required precisely in such positions, and that commercial firms have no lack of employees, trained for years in their own offices, who have both the character and the intelligence to fill higher positions satisfactorily. It would not be fair to these men if outsiders were taken in and promoted over their heads. Moreover, it is argued, the officers would be able to accept lower salaries on account of their pensions and thus cut down the standard of payment for all.

Municipal Milk Business.

The Berlin municipality, in addition to its many other lines of business and social activity, has decided to go into the milk business, and beginning October 1 it will undertake to supply the poor of Berlin with milk from its own farms.

The municipality has been forced into this business by the results of a year's investigation of the milk supplied the board of charities through private dealers. Frequent complaints of the quality of the milk supplied had been received, and tests in the city laboratory surprised even the critics. The milk was far below standard, both in richness and cleanliness. The board of charities first attempted to remedy this condition by depriving all dealer milkmen of their contracts to supply the poor. But even this drastic procedure did not result in material improvement, the dealers being bound up by long-time contracts with outside dairymen who could not be reached by the municipal authorities.

It was then decided to establish an experimental dairy on one of the municipal farms in the outskirts of the city and supply from this the poor of one district. The municipality will not engage in delivering milk, but will turn over the product of its dairy to one of the regular milk firms for this purpose. If the experiment is successful, the system will be extended to other poor districts of the city.

FOSSILS IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Pig-Like Animal Flourished During the Ice Age.

A report has been made by J. W. Gidley, assistant curator of the National Museum, Washington, on the petrified remains found in blasting the big limestone cliff at the boundary of the town of Renick by the Renick Stone company. He says:

"The specimens are remains of a pig like animal known as Platygonus. The animal is related to the peccary, now living in Central and South America, but was much larger than the present species. They were very abundant in the Eastern and Central United States during the Pleistocene or Ice Age."

A skull found among the fossils was in an especially fine state of preservation and looks not unlike the skull of a horse, though much smaller, with immense tusks. Mr. Gidley says the skull is of especial interest, as it probably represents the undescribed species and because it supplements another recent discovery of somewhat similar character near Cumberland, Md.

Arrangements were made with the stone company to protect the deposit until an experienced collector can be detailed to visit the place.

Markets By Telegraph

Cotton.

New York, Sept. 20.—The cotton market was active and more or less excited during today's trading, with prices making new high records for the season on general buying. December contracts sold up 13.46 or 6 points above the previous best level, and approximately 14 per bale above the low figures of last week. There was naturally heavy realizing on this advance, practically to the 13 1/2-cent level, but offerings were well absorbed and the close was steady at a net advance of 12 to 16 points.

There was a big demand on the opening owing to higher Liverpool cables, unfavorable weather in the south, continued reports of heavy rain in Texas and Texas exporters were "laying down" on some of their contracts for forward shipments. Private advices attributed the advance in Liverpool to covering against these developments in the southwest and the local market steadied at an advance of 2 to 4 points.

Sold out longs appeared to be replacing part of their cotton, while there was covering by recent sellers for a reaction of fresh bull support and further trading. Profit-taking caused some irregularity, but the general tendency of the market was upward and active months closing net gains of from 15 to 22 points. Closing prices were 7 to 8 points off from the best under realizing, with the last month's relative firm.

The forecast pointed to continued wet weather in the eastern belt, which has been sending in more numerous reports of damage recently, while the forecast was for lower temperatures west of the river, and New Orleans wires claiming that storm warnings had been ordered for the Texas coast.

The reports from Liverpool that Texas shippers had defaulted on some of their export contracts attracted a good deal of attention. Such reports are frequently in evidence during seasons of rapidly advancing prices, but are generally regarded as indicating either a short yield or difficulty in securing required grades. London cables reported a poor prospect for the export of cotton, but troubles and reviews of the dry goods markets indicating a continued active demand, doubtless helped the advance.

New Orleans. Sept. 20.—The cotton market reached new high levels for the season today's session, buying for the long account was heavy, and save for the great amount of realizing of profits of buyers of the earlier portion of the week the advance has been widened. The short interest was nervous and covered freely.

The market opened steady at an advance of 3 to 7 points and gradually worked up to a level 16 to 21 points over yesterday's close. The March option closed 13.46. After this there was a reaction of about 10 points because of realizing sales from the long side. The market then steadied at a net gain for the day of 11 to 14 points.

Liverpool stood much lower than due on its close and private messages from the cotton region, Texas getting its share of it because of the way the storm from the belt from the northwest, and the storm warning for the Texas coast. The short interests were fearful of reports of heavy rain in the cotton belt, and were worried by private reports on condition, showing a heavy rain for the month of as much as 6 to 8 points. It was a typical bull market even though the reaction caused by long's realizing kept prices from soaring.

Grain.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—More than a million bushels of wheat suddenly thrown on the market in the last hour today by a few leading houses caused a decline in prices. Prospects of a large increase in the visible supply Monday was said to have influenced selling. The close was weak, 1/4 to 1 cent under last night. Corn dropped 1/4 to 3/8 cent, oats 1/4 to 1/2 cent and provisions 1/2 to 3/4 cent.

Piling up of wheat stocks northwest prepared the way for the setback in wheat. Firmness of cables tended to sustain the market until selling became aggressive and more rains, favoring seed operations in the winter wheat belt, however, acted as a check on the bulls.

As wheat declined corn prices flattened out. Previously the market had shown a tendency to drop weather, which was expected to delay farmers' deliveries. There was reason, however, to believe that the elevator companies recently have been making contract corn on a large scale.

Early firmness of oats gave way to the heavy sales of wheat and grain. Many week and long sold out.

Provisions, after holding steady most of the day, showed depression. The chief reason seemed to be that pit traders on the bull side here refused to let go of holdings, rather than carry the property over to next month.

RISE IN PRICE OF OIL.

At the Same Time Production Is Kept Down.

(Washington Cor. New York World.)

While the quantity of petroleum produced in 1912 increased less than 1 per cent, its value increased 22.41 per cent. These figures, made public today by the United States geological survey, may throw some light on the luscious dividend millions sliced by Standard Oil.

The total production of petroleum in 1912 was 222,538,694 barrels, with a value of $164,987,342. These figures, of course, deal with petroleum alone. There was a falling off of several million barrels in the output of the mid-continent field, which includes the rich oil lands of Oklahoma, and a corresponding increase in the yield in California.

With an increase of 22.41 per cent in the value of petroleum, necessarily there was a corresponding advance in the value of its many products.

Change of Date From Spring to Fall Makes It Better—Crowning of Queen.

POLE WAR ON "THE FIGHT" AND "THE LURE" IN NEW YORK.

SCARBOROUGH WROTE ONE

Waco Boy Gets in the Limelight Because of His White Slavery Drama.

Fort Worth, Sept. 20.—Approximately $25,000 in prizes has been hung up by the National Feeders and Breeders' show, which will hold its eighteenth annual exhibition here November 22 to 29. Of this amount about $17,000 will be given for exhibits of livestock in the day show, while $7000 and a number of silver loving cups will be distributed in the Horse Show.

The management of the National Feeders and Breeders' show plans to make this fall's event the largest in history, both in number of exhibits and prizes awarded. With the idea of attracting a wider range of exhibitors and to permit for the better conditioning of cattle, the date of the show has been permanently changed from spring to fall.

Additional classes have been added for grass and feeder cattle, which heretofore have had no part in the exhibition. This is expected to attract an entirely new class of exhibitors. Classes have also been added in the sheep division for Oxford Down and Rambouillet breeds that have been growing greatly in popularity in Texas within the past few years. Additional classes have also been added in the hog and baby beef classes.

Cattle To Be Prominent.

Silos and silage feed cattle are expected to play a prominent part in this year's exhibition. Contracts have already been closed with nine of the leading silo manufacturing companies for exhibits. Texas cattlemen have been feeding silage more extensively this year, and this class of cattle is expected to make a splendid showing, particularly in the baby beef division. The management of the show is also very busy attending to the thousands of details for staging the great exposition. In this they are being assisted by many public spirited citizens outside of the directorate of the show.

The poultry show is arousing more interest than ever before in history. More premiums will be offered and it is anticipated that the entries will be far more numerous and come from every part of Texas. The poultry show has done much in an educational way for the industry in Texas and the exhibits this year will witness more variety. Poultry judges of nation-wide reputation have been engaged.

Thavin's band, one of the premier musical organizations of the country, has been secured for the Fat Stock show. It consists of forty-two pieces and is accompanied by an operatic sextette of nation-wide reputation.

Change of the Date.

That the public generally and exhibitors in particular are much pleased because of the change of date of the show from spring to fall is evidenced by the letters that have been received by the management. The exhibits in all classes are certain to be much larger than ever before.

Assisted by a corps of prominent society women of Fort Worth, who in turn will invoke the aid of prominent women in dozens of Texas cities, the management of the show is actively engaged in planning for the magnificent state-wide social event that will mark the opening of the show this fall, on the night of November 22.

Queen of Horse Show.

Following the pleasing custom set last year, the coronation of the queen of the horse show will be the central feature of the opening night's brilliancy. A Fort Worth girl will be crowned queen, her identity being a closely-guarded secret until she enters the vast amphitheatre of the Coliseum building. Her royal party will consist of a bevy of Texas beauties from dozens of different cities and towns throughout the state. The gathering will be representative and, taking last year's event as a criterion, thousands of people will come from every section of the state to witness the splendid ceremony and its attendant features.

Last spring the coronation of a queen was an experiment; this year it is an institution. The management of the stock show, cheered by the splendid success that has been attained, will "take off the lid" and bend every effort to make the event unparalleled in brilliancy. Last year a Kirmess, or Dance of the Nations, followed the coronation. In this splendid event hundreds of children, in vari-colored costumes, performed the dances of almost every nation on the globe. This year it is expected to vary the show to a considerable degree, but the plans have not been worked out definitely as yet.

Theme of the Story.

"The story of a woman running for the position of mayor in a western town is to thwart the influence of a senator who is determined to defeat her chances. In order to do this she is dragged into the brothel scene, which is not, of course, the first method by which the playwright accomplished this purpose. As 'The Fight' was first produced here, the second act showed the interior of a brothel in this small western town. The landlady appeared smoking the customary cigarette and was followed by one of her third charges. They discussed the comparative amiability of the other inmates of the house in the presence of the cadet, who palled from the effects of opium smoking, puffed faintly on a cigarette that dangled from his lips.

"To this pleasant family group there enters a representative of the senator, although he is not described so accurately. He is the customer, however, who wants to see a very young girl and will not be satisfied with the present occupants of the landlady's stalls. She must be very young, altogether unfamiliar with such surroundings and fresh in beauty if the $500 is to be forthcoming. As it happened later, the money was paid before the senator had a chance to see his victim.

"Standing by a window of her beautiful red parlor, its owner sights a young girl across the street. She calls the cadet and sends this expert young man out on the job and watches results from the window. It is evident that the girl is frightened and repels the advances of the man determined to insult her. When she is sufficiently embarrassed, madam opens the window and looks into the street. Then she calls to the young girl to come to her house, as she will protect her. In a second the young girl is within the room.

"It is not long before she senses this danger. In vain she declines to accept the hospitality offered to her and wants to leave the house. But that is not to be allowed. Assuming her that all a room and locks the door. Then nothing remains but to await the arrival of the senator. When he enters the mere statement of the madame that she has the girl locked in a room awaiting his arrival is sufficient to bring forth the $500. Then he gets the key, advances toward the room and opens the door behind which his victim is concealed.

"Oh, father!" one hears her cry. "I knew that you would come to take me away from here."

"Of course, papa knew nothing of the kind himself, or else he might have never come. But that episode, imaginative, noble and really evidence of high literary ambition in a dramatist, closes the act. At least it closed the act on the first night of the performance, although it may never do so again.

Prince of Monaco, Owner of Monte Carlo Games

FLIES MENACE TO BABIES.

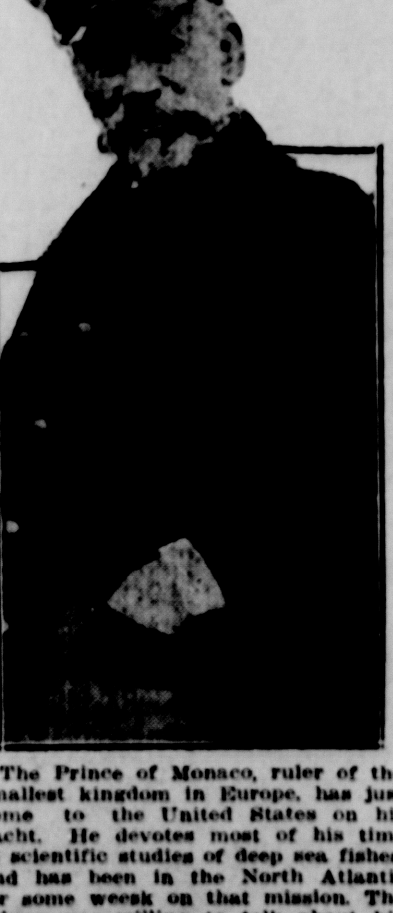

Keep Them Away and See That the Child Gets Air.

(Theora Carter, President of the Society of Good Cheer.)

Keep the flies away from your baby—they are more dangerous than elephants. The big thing shows the big danger. The little fly builds into refuse heaps—filth—putrefaction, and then comes to baby, bringing all kinds of disease germs. Flies are deadly. If baby is unable to overcome the deadly germ the fly brings, baby leaves you. I have been watching the work of deadly flies for many years. I know two families living in the little town of R. B. These families were neighbors—one lady brought out a family of three and they are robust youngsters. Mother kept them out of the reach of flies. She went hunting the flies—covered her youngsters regularly in the summer time. The other mother did not believe a little fly could hurt her young—she paid no attention to the fly. One by one she laid away her babies until now there are three silent, empty places in her heart, and gloom is in the household.

If you can't keep flies out of the house cover the baby with a netting, or if you can't afford a net, get a piece of cheesecloth—anything that will give the baby air. See that the baby gets air, and keep it away from the fly.

If you can get a little carbolic acid, mix with one part of carbolic acid and three parts of water. Get a wash broom and spray with the broom on the floor of the room where baby sleeps in the day. We will need good men and women for our future—don't let the fly carry one single one away. The danger is in front of you—it's as real as a big elephant.

The Prince of Monaco, ruler of the smallest kingdom in Europe, has just come to the United States on his yacht. He devotes most of his time to scientific studies of deep sea fishes, and has been in the North Atlantic for some weeks on that mission. The prince was willing to talk about his scientific studies, but he would not discuss gambling in any form.

A New Chapter in Your Home Life

The possession of a home carries with it a responsibility—a responsibility which is at the same time a privilege—to make it as bright and cheerful as you can, within your means.

Let your home be as handsome as it may, let the shelves of your library be filled with the best literature, let your walls be adorned even with master works of art, unless you have provision for music in your home, you are neglecting the fundamental necessity of happy home-life.

This is not open to argument. Witness on every hand the multiplication of instruments for furnishing music in the home; witness the great industries to supply such instruments, built up in recent years. Such a vast, world-wide demand shows that the need is universal.

Among all the modern instruments for supplying music to the home, none so fully meets ideal requirements as the Mehlin Player-piano.

For generations the piano has proved itself the home instrument par excellence. No other approaches it in musical capacity, versatility and special finish.

The Mehlin Player-piano is the pianoforte idealized—made so that all may play it.

Every advantage of the conventional piano, tone, action, appearance, hand-playing facilities, etc., the Mehlin Player-piano possesses. In addition, it places at the command of everyone, even the least musical, a piano-playing ability far more proficient than that of the most gifted amateur.

For the rare entertainment it affords, for the cultural and refining influence it exerts, for the brightness and happiness of home atmosphere it makes possible, and, greatest of all, for the vast benefit it is to your children if they are studying music, let the genuine Mehlin Player-piano make this year the beginning of a new and happier era in your home life.

Story of The Lure.

"Down at the Maxine Elliott theatre, where the managers are able to do a little bit of white slaving on their own account, their piece is called 'The Lure.' It was written by George Scarborough, at one time a journalist and later an officer in the department of justice, who had been employed in tracking down the so-called white slavers in various parts of the country. Mr. Scarborough says that his play represents his experiences in this branch of his work and that he put it before the public in the form of a drama because he thought its appeal would be most potent in that field. So instead of writing a tract or a novel he prepared the sequence of events revealed in the various episodes of the play. Its production at the Maxine Elliott theatre was made at a few hours notice and all preliminary preparation for the performance was kept secret. Mr. Scarborough says that this was done because 'The Gentlemen From No. 19,' a French farce, was expected to stay at the Maxine Elliott theatre for a long run. On its prompt failure, however, 'The Lure' was substituted. It is said that there was no question of politics in the matter, as the sudden necessity for a play at the Maxine Elliott compelled the performance of 'The Lure' so early and so suddenly that there was no time for a preliminary announcement.

"Mr. Scarborough says that Leo Shubert would never have accepted his play for performance had it not been accompanied by a strong letter from William Lynch assuring the managers of the truth and sincerity of the drama.

Here is a Poor Girl.

"The heroine of the play, if 'The Lure' may be called a play, is a poor girl with a mother dying for lack of nourishment and the proper medical treatment. In the first act the daughter remembers that she has a card given her once by Mme. Something-else, who told her that she always had extra work for girls in the evening. To her the poor girl goes in the expectation of finding dreammaking to be done there.

"She finds the madams she is looking for very much agitated by the fact that one of the young ladies boarding in her house has just killed herself rather than become a permanent inmate. Other misfortunes have befallen the kind lady who had extra work for girls in the evenings. She has become involved with the federal government because she imported one of her young lady boarders from the other side of the state line. Soon after the girl appears, timidly inquiring for work she learns of the character of the house into which she has strayed. She wants to run away, as they are all said to want to run away first, but she is prevented. She not only appeals to the woman who keeps the house, but to the cadet who transacts her business, and before she knows it the weak girl finds herself diked out in elaborate clothes furnished by the house.

Officer Is Her Lover.

"It happens that the secret service officer detailed on this case of white slavery is her lover, and when he finds her in this condition there is the usual mistaken conclusion of the disappointed lover. In vain she tries to escape but the landlady demands the price of the finery which she is wearing, which may now of course be considered only second hand. As a culminating point in a succession of brotchel horrors, in this act there appears the new victim shrieking and clawing as she is introduced to the establishment by the cadet. This is all there is of 'The Lure,' which has attracted the least attention. Nothing else in it would have interested the public for five minutes. In the end the secret service officer rescues the girl, still innocent of any evil, and takes her and her mother to the country, where everybody is supposed to be good, or to become so soon after they arrive there.

"Nothing but the brotchel scene in these plays has caused great excitement about them. 'The Fight' is such a good play without the brotchel second act that it seems a shame that its managers should have been compelled to add this poisonous growth to the rest of an otherwise innocuous if interesting drama. It is to be hoped that the amputation of the second act may not kill the piece. It is difficult to see what could be amputated from 'The Lure' without causing rigor mortis to set in immediately and force the life out of this play, which depends wholly on its white slave incidents for its existence."

"77" COLDS

A hard stubborn cold that hangs on, is broken up by Humphreys' "Seventy-seven"

The first sign of cold is lassitude; a gone feeling of weakness, as if some serious illness was pending.

If you will get to recognize this first feeling of catching cold and fly to the cupboard for a dose of "Seventy-seven," you will break up the cold at once.

If you wait until your bones begin to ache it may take longer. "Seventy-seven" is a small vial of pleasant pellets that fits the vest pocket, easy to carry, easy to take.

Is for sale in every store in America that sells medicines, price 25c and $1.00, or mailed on receipt of price.

CONFESSES TO SERIOUS CRIME

Col. Berchardt, 63 Years, Contributor to Delinquency of Girls.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 20.—Colonel Francis J. Berchardt, 63 years old, a justice of the peace, well known in national guard and political circles throughout Wisconsin, today was sentenced to nine months in the state reformatory for contributing to the delinquency of girls. Four young girls were in court to testify but were not called because a plea of guilty was entered.

The girls told District Attorney Yockey that Justice Berchardt gave them money, made improper remarks to them and had them appear nude before him. No criminal attack was made on any of them.

Berchardt was a member of the state assembly for two years from 1885, a captain of the Wisconsin Guard for fourteen years, a colonel on Governor Rusk's staff for five years and a justice of the peace for fourteen years. He was a candidate for district judge at the last election, opposing Judge Page, who today sentenced him.

Sailors Killed. Sept. 20.—Two men, killed by falling off a freight train, were identified today as sailors from the United States navy. They are H. M. McAlpin, a machinist of the U. S. S. Virginia, and Augustus Koch, attached to the Brooklyn Navy yard.

Another body viewed was identified as Ernest Swanner, 30 years old, a sailor from the U. S. S. Constitution, who killed himself by shooting himself in the head. Swanner's parents live in McCormick, Ind. He left the navy hospital at Newport on Wednesday.

CHARGES S. P. BEING FAVORED

REPRESENTATIVE FROM ILLINOIS SAYS GOVERNMENT'S CASE MISHANDLED.

COMPANY IS TANKING OIL

Lands Worth Hundreds of Millions Being Sued for—Kern Company Is Involved.

Washington, Sept. 20.—Allegations that the government's case against the Southern Pacific Railroad company for the recovery of oil lands valued at hundreds of millions of dollars has been so handled by the department of justice as to be most advantageous to the Southern Pacific are contained in a resolution which Representative Charles M. Thompson, progressive of Illinois, announced tonight he would introduce in the house Monday. The resolution would demand a detailed statement from Attorney General McReynolds as to the facts connected with the Southern Pacific litigation requiring him to report specifically:

"Whether the government has tried to stop the Southern Pacific company from constructing wells on the disputed territory.

What steps, if any, have been taken to prevent the extraction of oil from the lands in question.

What action has been taken to protect the government's rights to the lands other than the filing of a suit December 20, 1912, in the case now pending in the federal courts of California.

The lands in controversy embrace about 125,000 acres, of which it is claimed the government expressly reserves minor rights. The suit filed last winter was to recover 46,000 acres of this area and other suits for the balance are under consideration. The Kern Trading and Oil company, which handles much of the oil, also is involved in the case. Suits filed by private individuals, the outcome of which the department is said to be waiting, the resolution asserts, are not similar to the government case and a supreme court decision in them would not preclude the success of government proceedings. It is alleged that oil worth $250,000 is being taken monthly from 150 wells on the property.

PRINCESS SOPHIA'S FUNERAL.

Only Small Number of Persons Are Present.

Heidelberg, Germany, Sept. 20.—Only a small number of persons, chiefly the representatives of princely houses, were present at the funeral this afternoon of Princess Sophia, the only daughter of Prince William of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenbach.

Hans H. Blocher, for hopeless love of whom the princess killed herself, did not attend the service. It is understood he was asked not to attend, and he left Heidelberg after a three hours stay.

The aged father of the princess repeatedly threw himself across the casket.

$15,000 Fire at Fort Worth.

Fort Worth, Sept. 20.—Starting in the rear of the Hardy Company's paint store, 288 West Eleventh street, today at 7 a. m. a fire swept through J. J. Langewer's sign store next door and upward to the Olive hotel, driving out the guests in a panic. It raged for nearly an hour before firemen got it under control.

A big hole was burned in the floor of the hotel. Carpets and furnishings were ruined by water. The contents of both Hardy and Langewer's stores were practically ruined. The total loss caused by the fire is estimated to be $15,000.

Langewer nets his loss at $3,000. He had no insurance.

Hardy's stock of wall paper and paints was damaged to the extent of $4,500. It was insured for about half this amount. The damage to the hotel and the building was estimated by Chief Redeker to be about $5,000.

Spontaneous combustion among old paint pails is thought to have caused the fire.

Fourteen Men Acquitted.

Breslau, Germany, Sept. 20.—Seven of the fourteen prominent men arrested and accused of improper relations with young girls have committed suicide, among them one officer and one former police official. The police are in possession of the names of nearly a hundred girls, who, it is alleged, were implicated.

Home Run Record.

Charleston, W. Va., Sept. 20.—What is said to be a new world's record for home runs was made today by Cecil Gray of Charleston, in an Ohio State league game with Mayville, Ky., when he pounded out two and brought his record for the season up to 32. The former record was 31.

Emigration through the German ports of Hamburg and Bremen in the first seven months this year was almost 100,000 more than in the corresponding months last year and 14,000 more than in the record year, 1907.

An Omaha inventor has patented an electric alarm for refrigerator drip pans.

How to Keep Face Young and Attractive

(National Hygienic Review)

The way to ward off old age is not to fear it, not to allow one's self to be oppressed by the dread of advancing years. Use only legitimate preventatives and avoid trying experiments with preparations not indorsed by physicians. An entirely safe and very effective way to keep the complexion young-looking and beautiful is to apply ordinary mercurized wax at bedtime, using it like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. This gradually absorbs the withered, faded cuticle, which is replaced by the more youthful, pink-tinted underskin. One ounce of this wax, to be had at any drug store, is enough to completely rejuvenate a worn-out complexion.

Crow's feet and other wrinkles, the first signs of advancing age, may be removed by a simple, harmless preparation made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. It is used as a face bath.

SLAYER PRIEST AND CAPTORS, DIAGRAM OF CUT UP BODY AND CLEW WHICH LED TO ARREST

New Feathers Chicago Grace 20x27 Size 89 Price $1.00 GUARANTEE ON REVERSE SIDE

LABEL ON THE PILLOW

A label in a pillow case in which part of the body was wrapped led to the arrest of Father Schmidt.

Following his dramatic arrest in the rectory of the Church of St. Joseph of the Holy Family, Hans Schmidt made three confessions of his guilt. The first was an oral one to Inspector Faurot and the policemen with him at the rectory; the second, a more complete one, given with a stenographer present, at Police Headquarters, and the last a full recital of even the smallest details of his crime, to Deacon Murphy, Assistant District Attorney, connected with the Homestead Bureau.

This last statement, which covers forty pages and includes facts regarding his association with Anna Annmuller from his first meeting with her until the time of his arrest, is made in the form of a least confession of guilt, although Schmidt was not asked to sign it. It was made in the presence of witnesses and will be offered for Schmidt's signature when transcribed in type-written form.

Mr. Murphy announced that the detailed confession would not be made public nor will the one given to Inspector Faurot in the presence of a stenographer, but the substance of the information given by Schmidt was repeated by both officials.

Schmidt told the police and Mr. Murphy that he had killed the girl because he loved her too much to allow her to live apart from him. He realized that he was a priest and that he belonged to the Church and although he wanted her with all his heart he could not bring himself to leave the Church and bear the disgrace which such action would bring upon him.

He had assented to the girl's honest desire to marry him by performing a ceremony himself after having obtained a marriage license at the City Hall last February. She was content to let matters go along as they were, but he, without money and with the realization that the girl's condition made some action imperative, decided that the only way to right the situation was to destroy her.

INSPECTOR JOSEPH A. FAUROT, HANS SCHMIDT, AND CORONER I. L. FEINBERG.

The Rev. Hans Schmidt, an assistant rector of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Joseph of the Holy Family, New York city, confessed to the murder of Miss Anna Annmuller, twenty years old, whose torso was found in halves more than a week ago on the New Jersey shore of the Hudson River.

The identity of the slain woman was revealed when police forced an entrance to a flat the couple had rented and found a postal card addressed to her at the rectory of St. Boniface's Roman Catholic Church. Miss Annmuller was discharged as a servant there two weeks ago.

The crime, which parallels the famous Guldensuppe mystery, was solved through the tracing of a manufacturer's tag which the murderer left on a flowered pillow, into which he packed one section of the torso he threw into the river. The tag led directly to the flat in which Father Schmidt admitted he and the woman had lived as man and wife.

In an interview in the Tombs cell Father Schmidt said to the Rev. Father L. J. Evers, who made a report of the conversation to Mar. Lavelle for Cardinal Farley, that he was directed to commit the crime "by St. Elizabeth, who is my patron, as a sacrifice, to be consummated as was the sacrifice of Abraham, in blood."

With the weight of his terrible crime on his mind, the accused priest had gone about his duties in the Harlem church seemingly unaffected. He is declared to have said mass on the same morning on which he killed Miss Annmuller and to have gone from the holy sacrifice to throw the dismembered sections of her body from a Fort Lee ferryboat.

Except for the few dramatic moments when he first was accused of the crime, the priest, whom the police and Assistant District Attorney Deacon Murphy declare their belief is sane, showed absolutely no emotion and seemed not to realize the enormity of his crime.

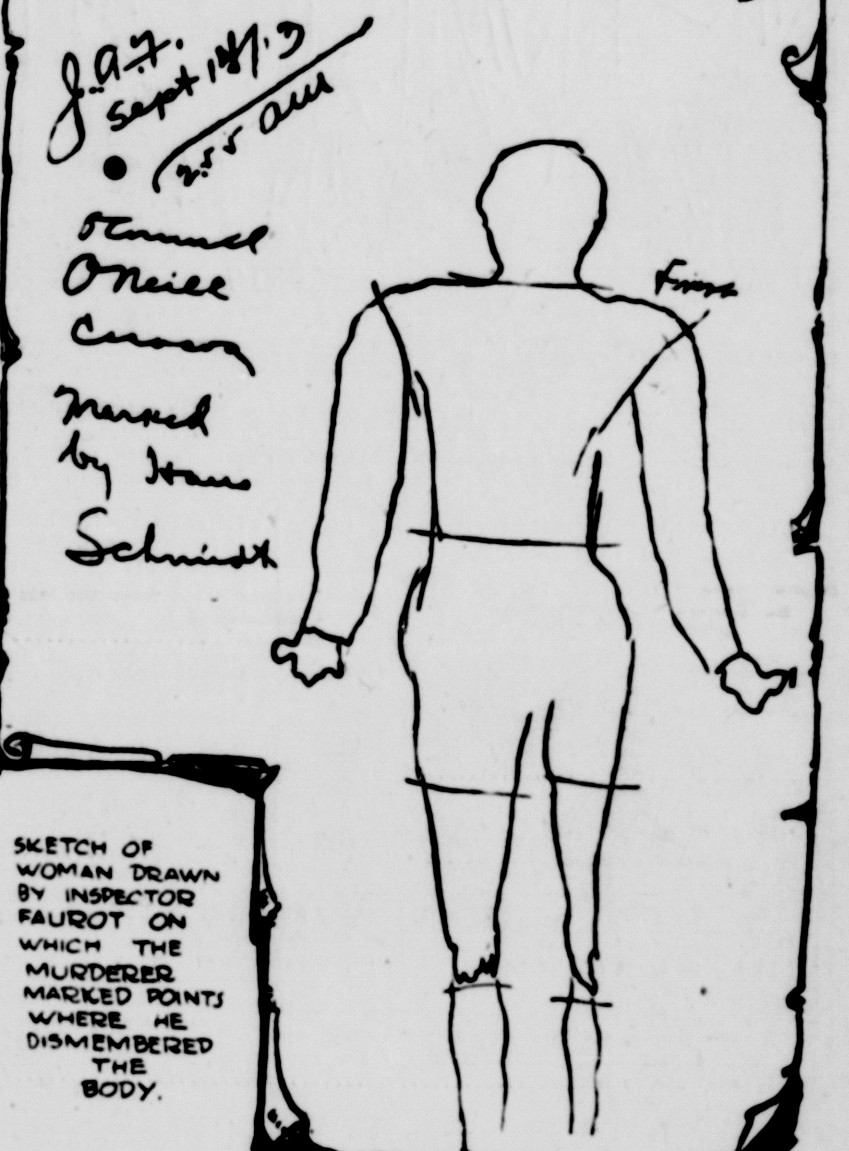

The murder, according to the priest's confession, was committed at midnight on September 2. Dismemberment of the body followed immediately with a knife and saw purchased in Centre street, less than one block from Police Headquarters.

Although it has not been found, the priest declared the head of the murdered victim was the first section of the dismembered body he threw into the river.

The priest is held in the Tombs without bail.

IS FIGHTING REQUISITION

McCormick Construction Engineer Is Charged With Swindling at Fort Worth.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Charles McCormick, who was president of the Underground Construction company, of Fort Worth, Texas, where he is wanted on charges of swindling and conspiracy to swindle that city, began a court fight against requisition today, when Judge Goodwin, on petition of McCormick, granted a writ of habeas corpus, returnable next Monday. He was released on $2,000 bond. A requisition for McCormick issued by Governor Clegg of Texas, recently was honored by Governor Dunne, Detective T. W. Wren of Fort Worth, was preparing to return to Texas with his prisoner today when he was stayed by Judge Goodwin's writ. Counsel for McCormick attacked the sufficiency of the Fort Worth indictment.

Manager of the Levin Hat Works and $2.00 Hat Store

The rise of this enterprising young man in the business world has been rapid, his career has been a series of successes.

Last Monday, September 15th, three years ago, Mr. J. N. Levin came to Waco from Galveston with the sole idea in his head of establishing here a first-class hat works. Having started and remodeling business with less than two dozen hat blocks, a dozen flanges and a few tools, his work was of such a high order and his diligence and close attention to business so marked that his progress upward and onward came as a natural consequence. Today he commands and operates one of the largest and best equipped hat works in the state; it is the largest hat concern in the city and the largest between Dallas and Houston. With the present prospects it will take a higher rank in comparison.

Most of the hat cleaning business of Waco and Central Texas goes through his establishment. The Galveston concern also controls most of the hat renovating and remodeling business there. Of the members of the firm, the father, I. Levin, and two brothers, S. Levin and G. Levin, in charge of the Galveston concern, and J. N. Levin, whose cut accompanies this article, is the manager of the Waco institution. How well they know their business, and how honestly they execute their work is evidenced by the many expressions of satisfaction from their patrons everywhere and the high recommendations given them by every one having anything in their line to have done. They are not only experts, but they are known to be thoroughly reliable and straightforward in all of their dealings with every business and personal relation.

They are hat makers that have established a reputation for dependable work that is a most enviable one. They have made their reputation by using nothing but the best material and inflexible methods, and by the indisputable fact that they know their business thoroughly. They have the most complete equipment and general facilities that any similar concern ever had in this city or Galveston. In the seasons of the year it requires five cents to handle the hat business in Galveston. In Waco Mr. Levin has five and six assistants under his personal supervision.

Mr. Levin has had more than seven years of practical experience and is one of the most skilled hat makers in the south. He is thoroughly acquainted with the business and with every detail in the art of renovating and remodeling hats and also of making hats.

Mr. Levin has not only earned the credit of giving Waco the first hat works that is second to none in the state, he has also earned the distinction of being the originator of Waco's first exclusive and two dollar hat store. He buys hat bodies in the rough, in all colors, from the leading hat factories, and is making up hats in Waco in all styles and shapes and sizes for stock as well as hats made to order. They are all new hats.

The hat store is located at 418 Franklin street, in the new Walker building, the work room being in the rear of the store.

"LORDS OF THE WORLD."

Writer Contends That Irish Held Complete Sway Over Europe.

(New York Sun.)

Irish. The Gauls of Caesar's Commentarii were Gauls or Irishmen, many of them from Ireland and England, then an Irish dependency, and so were the Boii, Coritavi, Helvetii, Senones and Aedui, the Germans of the north, being their born thralls till their revolt 500 B. C.

That Europe was then Irish speaking is evidenced from the names of mountains and rivers, and from the appellations of the heroic chiefs who fought for the Irish empire in its decline. The Alps are the Irish alps (huge mounds of earth); Seine or Sena is seach anban (river of separation); Garonne is garbh anban (rough river). Verdenetrix is Fear cinn gacha torrish (the man at the head of every expedition); Dumnorix is domadh an torrish (second person of the expedition); Eporedorix is ab (father) orra (and chief) torix (of the expedition); Orestorix is orra (chief) gach (of every) torix (expedition), and so on, the name being lost in the military title. These men were Irish knights-errant from Ireland and other parts of the empire, heirs of those who took Spain from the Carthaginians, occupied Rome and extended the empire of Erin to the Black Sea. The colony of Galatians in Asia Minor, made famous by St. Paul's Epistle, was Irish, isolated by the disruption of the empire, but speaking Irish in St. Jerome's time.

The Roman's never heard of Alexander the Great. Neither Alexander nor Herodotus ever heard of the Romans. Both the Greeks and Romans knew the Gauls or Gaels and made war and alliances with them before they knew each other.

Irish literature of every kind abounds in records of foreign invasions and alliances; and from 1000 B. C. when the definite Irish monarchy was founded, the Gaels of Ireland were perpetually making expeditions, sword in hand, into the heart of Europe. Uaine Mor, or Hugony the Great, king of Ireland, circa 600 B. C., is called supreme king "of the whole of the west of Europe as far as Muir-Torrhan" (Tyrrhan or Mediterranean sea) by the Four Masters who ascribe foreign sway to Aengus of the Nine Hostages and other Irish kings.

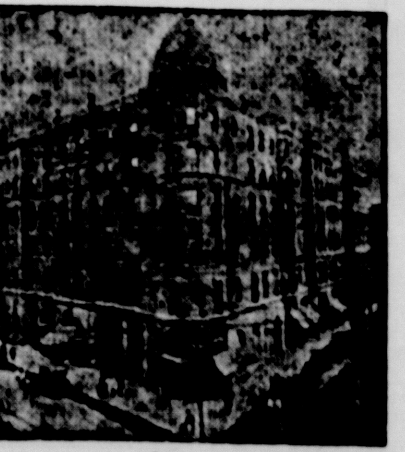

Ireland is remarkable for the extraordinary massiveness of the prehistoric military stone forts with which the tale is covered. The wonderful Dun Aengus and other strongholds in the islands of Aran; the vast sepulchral mounds or artificial hills of Drogheda, Knowth, Dowth and New Grange rank only after the pyramids of Egypt for the stupendous efforts required to raise them. Ireland's wealth in gold is absolutely amazing; stripped and robbed as it has been, the number of ancient gold ornaments (recently found in boxes) in the Dublin museum weigh 550 ounces to those of 50 ounces in the London museum. Montelius says: "Ireland's wealth of gold in the Bronze Age is amazing." The Encyclopedia Britannica says: "The profusion of articles of gold is remarkable; in the Dublin museum may be seen bracelets, armlets, finger rings, torques, crescents, gorgets, necklets, fibulae and diadems, all of solid gold and the most exquisite workmanship."

Whence these evidences of overflowing wealth and power? In the fact, testified to by ecumenical councils, that Ireland was the heart of a vast empire, and that the Irish before the Romans were "lords of the world."

Sanger Storeitorial

Our FALL Opening to Be Thursday and Friday Sept. 25 and 26

All through the Summer months we have been planning to make the Fall Opening of 1913 the greatest and most comprehensive Fashion Exhibition that has ever taken place in Waco. We have been planning to excel in every way our triumphant achievements of past years and those who know—who have attended Sanger Store Openings—appreciate that to eclipse the former success that this store has enjoyed in these events is no small task. But after diligent and thorough work, after careful search of the markets both in America and in Europe—Fifteen representatives of Sanger Brothers, Waco, in New York and other American Fashion centers and personal representation in Europe—we feel confident that when next Thursday comes that the verdict of the buying public will be that we have assembled without exception the most complete and comprehensive array of merchandise that has ever been brought together in one store in the Southwest.

But we have not stopped in our preparations with the mere assembling of these greater varieties and assortments. We have, in the remodeling and expansion of the Sanger Store, installed every modern facility for the proper display of our merchandise—creating a store service that is a service-in-fact—catering to your comfort and convenience; to your complete satisfaction from the time you enter the store, make your purchase and until the article purchased has demonstrated its dependability.

A Living Model Display

The Feature of the Sanger Store Opening For Fall, 1913.

The greatest style attraction that has ever been brought to this city—A Living Model Display. A trip to Paris, a visit to the shops on the famous Rue de La Paix where are located the style creators of the world, would not give you more of the new style ideas or more inspiration than this Fashion show on next Thursday and Friday will bring forth. We will display the most recent original models and adaptations in Dresses, Costumes, Suits and Wraps from the designs of the most noted of the Parisian artists and just as they are shown in Paris on Manequins or Living Models. This display will be made on our Second Floor and these experienced models who come here from New York for this purpose will demonstrate the beauty and cleverness of the New Styles for Fall in the same way that the most exclusive Shops of Paris and New York conduct their Openings.

The Latest in Neckwear

A season of Ruchings in all widths from 1 inch to the high Medici Collars that touch the ears. White predominates, but there is a good showing also of colors in Street and Evening shades.
